USH ALL LAW ENFORCEMENT BILLS: HOOVER

Tells Congress Jails, Courts Are Clogged.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special]—President Hoover today urged congress to speed up action on law enforcement legislation recommended by the Wickersham commission and the department of justice.

In a special message to the senate and house the President called attention to the lack of progress made on the various pending bills and asked that they be pressed to final passage before the end of the present session.

The President enumerated the prohibition bureau transfer bill, which has been passed by the house and reported was approved by the senate judiciary committee; bills for the relief of congestion in the courts, which have become involved in controversy in the house judiciary committee; the prison bills, which have been passed by the house and approved by the senate judiciary committee; the border patrol bill, on which hearings were announced last week before the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, and the District of Columbia prohibition enforcement bill, on which hearings have been held before the senate district committee.

Comments of Leaders.

Comments of senate and house leaders indicated that the President's appeal might have some effect toward securing enactment of a considerable part of the program. The bill transferring the prohibition bureau from the treasury to the department of justice is scheduled for consideration in the senate next week and prospects are favorable for its passage.

This bill was sent back to a subcommittee today by the senate judiciary committee for clarification of a disputed section, but it will reach the senate floor within a few days. The bill likely will become law in time to be effective on July 1.

It is also expected that the half dozen prison bills sponsored by the department of justice will be enacted into law. They either will precede or follow the prohibition bureau transfer bill on the senate program.

The President fails to refer specifically to the Wickersham proposal for increasing powers of court commissioners as a means of expediting disposition of minor prohibition cases. The reference is thus given that he might be satisfied with legislation increasing the number of federal judges. So much opposition has developed to the court commissioners bill it appears unlikely congress will approve it.

Wickersham Program.

The recommendation of the Wickersham commission and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon for creation of a united border patrol affects immigration and customs matters as well as prohibition, and its fate is regarded as in doubt. Difficulties over the District of Columbia prohibition enforcement bill have been due chiefly to the desire of some of the ardent drys to put more teeth in the search and seizure provisions than Attorney General Mitchell has regarded as desirable. The President upholds the attorney general on the proposition.

President Hoover pointed out that in messages submitted to congress in June and again in December he had presented "the urgency of certain improvements necessary to effective criminal law enforcement."

"Substantial progress has been made upon some of the measures proposed," said the President, "yet we are nearing the end of the present session, and I cannot too strongly urge the necessity of action upon all these recommendations before adjournment.

His Five Recommendations.

"1. There should be a transfer of the functions of detection and prosecution of prohibition cases from the treasury department to the department of justice, and thus an ending of divided responsibility and effort. An act providing for this transfer was passed by the house of representatives and has now been reported to the senate by its judiciary committee.

"2. There must be relief afforded from congestion in the courts. While this congestion is evidenced by the dockets in many courts, its full implications are now shown by them. The so-called bargain days, when light fines are imposed as the result of pleas of guilty, clear the docket but the result distinctly undermines respect for law. No conclusion appears

Calls "Yellow Dog" Ruling a Bar.

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—Opponents of the nomination of Federal Judge John J. Parker to the United States Supreme court today won the opening round in the senate fight over his confirmation when Senator W. E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] blocked a move to postpone the contest and took the floor to denounce the North Carolina jurist's opinion in the famous "yellow dog" contract case.

For more than an hour the Idaho senator held gallery crowds and colleagues seemingly spellbound as he argued that in upholding the validity of "yellow dog" contracts, under which nonunion coal miners bound themselves not to join labor unions, Parker demonstrated his unfitness for the Supreme court bench.

Negroes in Gallery.

Among the house members who thronged into the chamber to hear Borah was Representative Oscar De Priest [Rep., Ill.], Chicago's Negro congressman, and scores of Negroes occupied seats in the gallery, attracted by that phase of the fight on Parker which makes an issue of his alleged race prejudice.

In the face of Borah's warning that a final vote on the nomination cannot possibly be had before Wednesday or Thursday, Senator L. S. Overman [Dem., N. C.] abandoned the attempt to postpone consideration until Senator F. M. Simmons [Dem., N. C.] could return to Washington and at once entered upon a defense of Parker, presenting numerous indorsements of the jurist, not only of the southern bar associations, judges and other notables, but by Negro leaders as well.

Opposes Judge's Principles.

"I am opposed to Judge Parker's confirmation," declared Borah, "because he is committed to principles and propositions to which I am opposed. The proposition here involved is fundamental. The nomination of Judge Parker has brought up for consideration a contract known, not without reason, as a 'yellow dog' contract. And in my opinion, Judge Parker has gone farther in sustaining the principle of this contract and in enforcing it by the power of injunction than any other judge called upon to decide a matter of this kind.

Reviewing the facts in the "yellow dog" contract case, which grew out of a West Virginia coal field strike, Borah conceded that there was ample justification for issuance of an injunction to restrain violence, threats and intimidation on the part of union organizers. The injunction upheld by Judge Parker as a member of the Circuit Court of Appeals went much further, however, according to Borah, and enjoined union men from "peacefully" attempting to persuade the nonunion miners to break the contract.

Calls Opinion Far Reaching.

"Such a thing is of vital interest to the whole people—the question of whether workers may associate with their fellows and talk to them and discuss with them," said Borah. "This is the only case in the world so far as I am able to find," he continued, "where a court has gone so far. Bear in mind that the union did not complain against the injunction to restrain violence but that they complained solely against the 'peaceful persuasion' ban.'

"It seems to me," said Borah, "that the judges who wrote the opinion in the 'yellow dog' case were anxious to find something to sustain the contract when they overlooked the later decision of the Supreme court.

Right of Personal Liberty.

"What is the consideration for such a contract?" he asked, attacking the validity of the agreement. "What does an employer pay a man to surrender his priceless right of personal liberty? It's not the workman's wages, because they are a return for his services. The workman signs because he must —because his wife and children are going hungry he signs away his right to associate with his fellow man.

"But even if there were a consideration, such a contract would be still against public policy because it places the workman who signs it in a position of inequality where he cannot protect his interests against the employer. It is defended under the principle of liberty of contract, but that liberty is curtailed and circumscribed by public policy."

STOCK PRICES DROP; BREAK WIDEST ONE TO DATE THIS YEAR

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—Persistent offering of stocks, stimulated by the publication of further unfavorable earnings statements by industrial and railroad companies, resulted in the widest break for the year to date in today's trading on the New York stock exchange.

Measured by the CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S combined averages leading stocks lost $5.37 a share of their open market value and fell to a level $14.61 below their recent high touched last April 10.

The gilt edged issues, usually looked to for leadership on the exchange, were the heaviest sufferers, although virtually all sections of the list were carried downward as the selling wave gathered impetus during the day.

The number of shares dealt in during the five hours of trading totaled 4,852,190, a volume which is nowadays looked upon as about normal. At tonight's closing prices the combined average price of 25 railroads and 25 industrial stocks stood at $230.99, compared with a high on the recovery from last fall's decline of $245.60, reached on April 10. Today's drop amounted to $2.66 a share on the average for the railroad group and $5.37 a share for the industrials.

Report China Bandits Shoot 2 U.S. Priests

SHANGHAI, April 29.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—Chinese press advices received here today said that two Catholic priests, kidnaped yesterday by bandits who raided and looted Sientaochen, Hupeh province, had been shot by their captors. Sientaochen is about 50 miles northwest of Hankow.

The priests were believed to have been Father Patrick Lassan and Father Francis Murray. They were attached to the mission established by the Chinese Mission society of St. Columbans, Neb. Most of the personnel of the mission are Irish born priests.

Members of the Swedish mission at Kienli, Hupeh province, were reported to have fled when the city was attacked by 6,000 communists.

Stationed in China 5 Years.

Omaha, Neb., April 28.—(AP)—Two Catholic missionary priests kidnaped by Chinese bandits at Sientaochen are believed to be Father Patrick Lassan and Father Francis Murray, who left St. Columbans college near here about five years ago, authorities of the school announced tonight. Fifty missionary priests have been sent into the province of Hupeh by the college, which is maintained for the training of missionaries. School officials said Fathers Lassan and Murray had been stationed at Sientaochen for the past six months.

REDS MASSACRE 1,000

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 28.—While martial law was being declared in the Chinese section of Shanghai, news came that communist and bandit uprisings, heretofore largely confined to south of the Yangtze river, had spread northward. A force of 500 mounted bandits, armed with machine guns, last Saturday raided the town of Kiangingchen on the border between Kiangsu and Anhwei provinces.

They masacred 1,000 men, women and children, and then sacked and razed the city. Every house was burned to the ground. About 1,000 were ridden down by the bandit horsemen, who forced the captives to transport their loot to the mountains.

A report from Canton tonight said pirates had laid mines in the Canton river and blown up a boat plying between Canton and Chungshan. One hundred men and women passengers were drowned.

Report 2,000 Reds Slain.

A report from Hankow said government troops in the Sinti district of Hupeh province had defeated a large communist force. The reports said more than 2,000 communists were killed. The military authorities charge that the communist gang during recent weeks had killed nearly 1,800 villagers.

As a result of yesterday's communist demonstration and the distribution of Red literature in Shanghai, after which 110 student and labor agitators were arrested, the Chinese authorities tonight declared martial law throughout the Chinese areas adjacent to the foreign settlements. These regulations will continue until after May 1.

PIGS IS PIGS AND BOAS IS BOAS, AS SEA TRIP PROVES

The captain yelled down the hatchway. "Bring up those 53 snakes."

"Six, I said," Bartels repeated.

"Yeah? Well, I said 53, and if you don't believe it—count 'em. Forty-seven of 'em were born on the way up here."

HUNT HERE FOR STOLEN WORKS OF OLD MASTERS

On their rounds today and hereafter, detectives of the pawnshop detail will keep a sharp lookout for forty-three etchings by Rembrandt and five engravings by Albrecht Dürer, stolen last Sept. 5 from the national library of Spain at Madrid.

Vincente Mora, director general of police in the ministry of interior of King Alphonso's government, believes these forty-eight works of two famous old masters may be hidden in Chicago. The missing works are valued at $400,000.

A letter from Señor Mora, which has been lying around police headquarters since April 4, was finally translated from Castilian into English yesterday at the Spanish consul's office. In it Señor Mora "respectfully requests Police Commissioner Russell to see if it be possible to locate some of these objects of art and to issue whatever orders may be deemed convenient to effect their recovery."

The letter was turned over to Lieut. William Davern, who conceded he is no art critic, but he promised to do what he could to assist Señor Mora.

Million Dollar Ingersoll Mansion Destroyed by Fire

Montclair, N. J., April 29 (Tuesday).—(AP)—The Ingersoll mansion, for many years the home of Charles H. Ingersoll, the watch manufacturer, was destroyed by fire early today with a loss estimated by fire officials at more than $1,000,000.

3 Destroyers Give Escort to Leviathan

BULLETIN.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

ABOARD S. S. LEVIATHAN, April 28.—With an escort of three destroyers preceding her in arrowhead formation and the dirigible Los Angeles floating in a brilliant sky, the steamship Leviathan approached American shores tonight, bearing the returning delegates to the London naval conference.

The battleship Texas awaited the liner off Tompkinsville to give an appropriate salute, due Secretary of the Navy Francis Adams and Admiral Pratt, commander of the Atlantic fleet, who, with Secretary Stimson and Ambassador Morrow and Senator Robinson, are aboard the liner.

At 3 p. m. the delegates stood on the bridge of the United States' largest ship and watched the destroyers and the dirigible.

Convoy Passes in Review.

The destroyers swung into convoy formation, with one preceding the Leviathan and the other two to port and starboard sides. The officers and crews of the destroyers stood at the side of their vessels at attention as the ships passed in review before the naval delegates on the Leviathan's bridge.

The dirigible meanwhile cut five mile wide circles over the Atlantic. On the third and fourth circles the Los Angeles lowered a gleaming silver mail bag at the end of a quarter mile long rope and, after one unsuccessful attempt, dropped it to the Leviathan's deck. The mail bag nearly landed down one of the Leviathan's mighty smokestacks, and, as it was, became entangled in the radio antenna. But no harm was done and the delegates appreciatively read greetings and newspapers which the pouch contained.

New York Preparing Reception.

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—Members of the American delegation to the London naval conference headed by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson will get a warm reception from New York on their return tomorrow aboard the Leviathan after three months of labor on their peace mission. The Leviathan was expected to reach quarantine at midnight, but will not anchor until morning.

The delegates will be greeted at quarantine by the mayor's reception committee, headed by Police Commissioner Whalen and a group of distinguished citizens.

Staffs of Delegates Included.

In the delegation to receive the city's salute, in addition to Secretary Stimson, will be Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, and Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow. Returning with the delegates are their wives, secretaries, and members of their staffs. Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, another member of the delegation, remained in Europe for a short trip to the continent.

The reception committee will leave pier A at the Battery at 8 o'clock on the municipal tug Macom and will board the Leviathan at 10 o'clock. Secretary Stimson and his fellow delegates will then be transferred to the Macom, which will return to the Battery between 11 and 11:30 o'clock.

The delegates and the reception committee will drive to city hall with military and naval escorts. The trip to city hall will be up Broadway.

BANKERS GIVE ASSURANCE OF TRANSIT MONEY

$200,000,000 System Put Up to Council.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The $200,000,000 program of extensions and improvements in local transportation, promised under the proposed indeterminate franchise, was presented to the council transit committee yesterday afternoon.

In the $200,000,000 is the cost of about 1,100 new steel cars for elevated and subway operation, 800 to 1,000 surface vehicles, either street cars or motor buses, and the elimination of the kinks in the Northwestern "L" between Chicago and North avenues.

The expenditure of $200,000,000 for improvements is provided in the completed draft of the indeterminate car franchise ordinance, which also provides for the consolidation of existing transportation facilities. The list of improvements, however, is not included in the ordinance. They are to be embodied in an exhibit referred to in the ordinance, and accompanying it.

Transform Riding Habits.

The appeal of the franchise ordinance is to be made in supplying more rapid transit facilities. The general plan, with universal transfers, is to have the surface lines and buses feed traffic to the elevated for long distance rapid transportation. By the use of subways through the central business district, by extending the elevated lines, and by adding elevated express tracks, it is planned to transform the riding habits of a third of the population.

Of the total traffic on the surface and elevated lines now, 80 per cent is carried on the surface and 20 per cent on the elevated. With the new system it is proposed to use the rapid transit facilities for from 50 to 60 per cent of the traffic.

The bankers' committee—Frank O. Wetmore, Eugene M. Stevens, C. F. Clarke—told the aldermen yesterday that it is feasible and practicable to raise the $200,000,000 for improvements under the transit franchise ordinance.

The Subway Plan.

In addition to the $200,000,000 to be raised and spent by the proposed consolidated transit corporation, the city is to spend from $85,000,000 to $100,000,000 for subways. The first of these bores, which will be four tracks, will be located in State street. It will join the elevated at 18th street on the south side and at Chicago avenue on the north side, turning west in that thoroughfare to the existing steel structure.

The second subway, which will be constructed after the first is completed—which it was estimated yesterday will require three or four years—will be in Clark street or Dearborn street. The south end will turn west and follow Harrison street to Blue Island avenue, then southwest to 19th street, where it will hook up with a new elevated line extending southwest to Ashland avenue. The north end will run west in Ohio street and connect with a new elevated line at Milwaukee avenue and Elizabeth street. This elevated will run northwest along Milwaukee avenue to the elevated which now terminates at Logan square. This will be extended to Lawrence avenue.

The Humboldt park branch will be extended westward along North avenue to North Austin avenue.

Two South Side Extensions.

The south side elevated will have two extensions. One will extend to South Chicago, starting at 63d street and traversing Stoney Island avenue to South Chicago avenue, and then southeast to the terminal. Or it may run down the Baltimore and Ohio right of way, instead of South Chicago avenue from Stony Island avenue. The exact route has not been determined.

The other extension runs from 63d street, along South Park avenue to 95th street.

There is also to be the midcity trunk line, which will probably be the first built. It will extend southward from the Douglas park branch along Ashland avenue to 87th street. There is an existing track between the Douglas Park branch northward to the Logan Square branch. From Logan Square a new line is to be built northward to connect with the Ravenswood branch. Thus, there will be a continuous straight line from Ravenswood south to 87th street.

New Express Tracks.

To increase capacity and gain speed many miles of new trackage are to be added to the present "L" structure. The south side trunk line is to have four tracks between 18th and 40th streets, and then three tracks south to 63d, with provision for adding a fourth when traffic requires it.

The midcity trunk line is to have three and four tracks. The Logan Square branch from the Square to Marshfield avenue will have three tracks. The Humboldt park branch is to have three tracks between Lawndale and Milwaukee avenues. A third track is to be added to Lake street between Laramie avenue and Clinton street. The Garfield Park branch will get a third track between Cicero and Marshfield avenues, and the Douglas Park branch will get a third track between Clifton Park avenue and Marshfield avenue. The Northwestern "L" now has four tracks for most of its heavy traffic.

How Time Will Be Saved.

By transfers from the surface cars or buses to these revamped and extended elevated roads it is represented that the car rider will save much traveling time. To illustrate, Maj. R. F. Kelker, transit committee engineer, said that a rider using the midcity trunk line from 55th street would save 19 minutes in reaching the loop compared with the time now required on the surface lines. From 63d street the saving will be 26 minutes, and from 87th street it would total 31 minutes. From Lawrence and Milwaukee avenues Maj. Kelker gave the saving as 28 minutes.

"The average saving for outlying districts will be 20 to 25 minutes," said the major, "after due allowance for time consumed in surface transportation to get to the rapid transit lines."

Because the aldermen insisted on speed Kelker was unable to present any figures on the population which will be served by rapid transit, the estimates of cost of individual improvements, mileage involved, particular increases in capacity or description of routes with his maps of the proposed transportation improvements. Generally speaking, Kelker said the capacity of the elevated is to be doubled.

It is planned to place the "L" extensions over private property, instead of over public easements, according to Kelker, which will add to the cost substantially.

The Surface Line Program.

It has not yet been determined whether the surface extensions shall be specified in the exhibit dealing with that subject. It will provide that 30 miles of surface extensions be provided each year for the initial period of 10 years. Where frontage consents can be obtained the surface extension will probably be a street car line; otherwise a bus line. On his map Kelker suggested where these surface lines—street cars or buses, be placed; but that is still indefinite, and is subject to change later by the local regulatory commission provided in the franchise ordinance.

On the question of whether the $200,000,000 can be raised the bankers gave optimistic opinions.

"There is no doubt about the ability of the new company to finance itself with this ordinance as written," said Mr. Wetmore. "The ordinance is fair to the city and the company and offers an excellent basis for establishing credit."

"In my opinion this ordinance permits a financial structure by which the money can be raised," said Mr. Stevens. To his own favorable expression Mr. Clarke read a wire from Harry L. Stuart saying: "You certainly may say for me that the money can be raised under the terms of the ordinance."

Citizens Make Suggestions.

Several of the speakers for civic and business organizations appeared before the committee yesterday and suggested that more power be retained by the city to compel the pledged improvements. H. H. Haylett, managing director of the greater south side chamber of commerce, desired two extensions which are not provided on the map presented. He also suggested that street cars and buses be looped at terminals on private property.

George Williams of the Peterson Woods Protective association asked for an "L" line west of Western avenue.

The Rev. Father J. F. Green of the Southwest District association, said that his organization "is interested in getting extensions to accommodate the people."

L. E. Jones of the South Chicago chamber of commerce asked "more definite than oral assurances" that the extensions promised will be built.

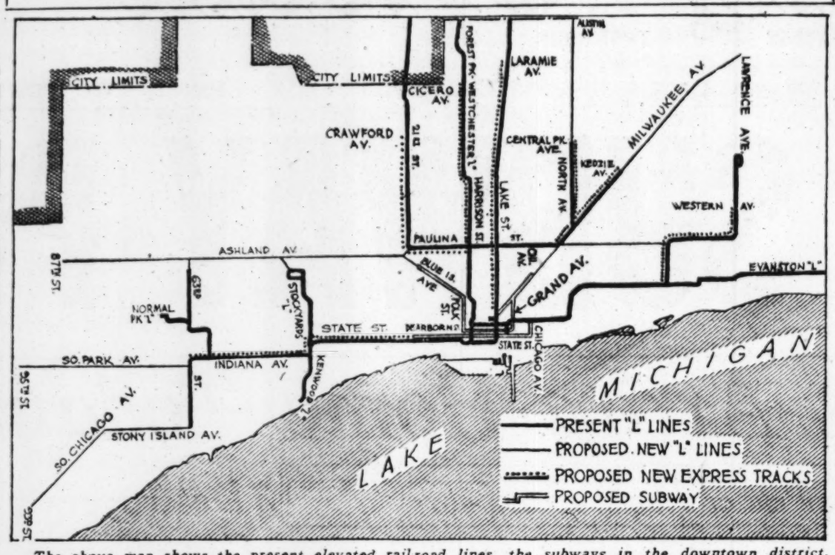
The public hearing on the transit ordinance will be resumed this morning.

Transit Extensions Proposed Under New Franchise



The above map shows the present elevated railroad lines, the subways in the downtown district, which it is proposed they shall use in place of the present Union loop, and the extensions of these subways to the north and west sides. It also shows the proposed new elevated lines, most of them being extension of present lines, and proposed new express tracks, which will be built beside existing elevated railroad tracks.

DAVID IS VICTOR; STAYS ON BENCH IN SAME COURT

Executive Committee Fails to Act.

Judge Joseph B. David yesterday won his dispute with the executive committee of the Superior court. In defiance of the committee's order the judge refused to be transferred to the Criminal court, and sat in his courtroom in the county building to hear his law calendar.

The judge arrived in the county building as the executive committee discussed his challenge to their authority. The committee met in the chambers of Judge Denis E. Sullivan, a member, with Chief Justice Harry A. Lewis and Judge Oscar Hebel. When word of Judge David's arrival in his court was brought to the committee the meeting adjourned.

Will Take no Action.

Members of the committee refused to comment on the meeting other than to say that they would take no action for contempt of court against Superior Court Clerk M. S. Szymczak for giving the judge a clerk. It was expected that the committee would cite the clerk for contempt if a clerk was supplied to the judge after the committee had given notice of the transfer.

When Judge David convened court Deputy Clerk Henry Pendl was on duty. The courtroom was crowded with spectators. The crowd thinned when the judge ordered the first case called without comment on his dispute with the committee. The judge continued to hold court through the afternoon, adjourning at 4:30.

Mr. Szymczak issued a statement explaining his assignment of a clerk to the judge. The judge had not issued an order on him demanding a clerk and the executive committee had not issued an order instructing him to withhold a clerk, his attorney, Cornelius J. Harrington, said.

Must Follow Instructions.

"It is not a matter of choice with the clerk," Mr. Szymczok said. "Judge David is a duly elected and qualified judge of the Superior court, and it is not the province of the clerk to determine what orders may or may not be entered. He must follow the instructions of the court.

The controversy arose last Friday when the committee issued a transfer order after the judge had withdrawn his consent to the assignment. In a statement the judge charged that members of the committee have violated the constitution, holding that assignments should be made, as nearly as possible, in alternation. He charged that Judges Sullivan and Hebel have not sat in the Criminal court for many years, while he had served there recently.

THREE COURTS WILL TRY AUTO OFFENDERS ARRESTED IN PARKS

Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court announced yesterday that beginning May 1 speeders, drunken drivers, and reckless drivers arrested by park policemen will face trial in a branch of the court near the park. Lincoln park cases will be heard at the Town Hall branch, west park at the Fillmore street branch, and south park at the Wabash avenue branch. Minor violations will continue to be tried in the Speeders' court.

Three deaths yesterday raised the 1930 Cook county motor toll to 290. The victims:

Leather Lafayette Foster, 4 years old, 121 East 25th street. Fatally injured when he fell beneath the wheels of a milk truck on which he had been playing in the alley near his home.

Swan Hanson, 40 years old, 7225 Champlain avenue. Died in Ravenswood hospital of injuries when the automobile in which he was riding with Carl Carlson, 7746 Langley avenue, collided with a taxicab driven by Stanley Hansen, 7715 North Paulina street, at Broadway and Foster avenue.

Mrs. Rose Hertel, 41 years old, 7709 South Wood street. Died Sunday as the result of injuries received in an auto accident April 6.

The body of a woman killed Sunday night by an automobile at Sheridan road and Balmoral avenue was identified at the Lake View hospital as that of Mrs. Catherine Wilkins, 55 years old, a widow, employed as housekeeper in the home of Mrs. Fay Liebling, 5555 Sheridan road.

And Fish Answer to Science's Whistle.

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—A microscope that by use of ultra-violet rays photographs the interior of a living cell was explained to the members of the National Academy of Sciences today by Francis F. Lucas of the Bell Telephone laboratories.

Lucas said the new instrument was expected to prove valuable in the study of such diseases as cancer, which are believed caused by obscure cell abnormalities.

Lucas said that by use of the new microscope a picture of the invisible cell, magnified 5,000 diameters, had been produced in 30 different tests. He added that the work of the cell was not interfered with, and estimated that the efficacy of the method was about twice that of any other known means.

Whistles for Minnows.

Dr. Karl von Frisch of the University of Munich, Germany, said that in experiments he had taught blinded minnows to react to sounds of whistles and tuning forks and to distinguish between a sound meaning food and a warning sound carrying punishment in the form of a light blow with a glass rod. Some of the minnows were able to differentiate between the sounds at a distance of 200 feet, he said.

Dr. Yandell Henderson of the laboratory of applied physiology at Yale university said healthy men who climb up mountains such as the Himalayas develop an acclimatization which permits comfort even when they undergo great physical exertion. But if the ascent to such altitudes be made in a few hours by balloon or train, he said, intense mountain sickness, physical incapacity, and even death might result.

Why Breath Speeds Up.

The study of the process of acclimatization convinced Dr. Henderson that the volume of breathing per unit of gaseous exchange in acclimated persons corresponds to the decreased pressure of oxygen.

He ascribed the increased breathing rate, which is about doubled at 20,000 feet, primarily to the effect of low oxygen tending to render the blood temporarily more alkaline than normally.

Several hundred employés of Montgomery Ward & Co., Chicago avenue and Larrabee street, fled to the street yesterday when a fire broke out in the basement of the building. Nine city firemen and a company commander were overcome by smoke while fighting the flames.

The firemen were treated by inhalator squads and the house physicians of the mail order house. Those overcome are Capt. Arthur Barcal, engine 14; Lieut. Charles Brelle, engine 4, Charles Mackin, engine 4; Dan Cahill, truck 19; John Figg, engine 14; Thomas Hickey, engine 14; Roy Hoff, engine 14; Thomas Maher, engine 14; Capt. George J. Sweeney, engine 4, and Renig Landuyt, fire chief for Montgomery Ward & Co.

Charles A. Schmidt, foreman of the hardware department, was the first employé to notice the fire and he sounded the alarm. The damage was estimated at $1,500.

TWO DIE FROM BURNS.

Kate Scott, 36 years old, colored, 4266 Evans avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital from burns incurred while cleaning with naphtha on April 11. Edward Adams, 47 years old, colored, 3848 South Dearborn street, died in the hospital from burns incurred while lighting a fire with kerosene.

CALCUTTA, April 28.—(AP)—More than 200 lives were feared lost here today with the reported sinking of the river steamer Condor during a storm on the Jamuna river of eastern Bengal. Thus far only 20 out of the passenger list of 300 are known to be safe.

BOY IS KILLED IN ATTEMPT TO SAVE ANOTHER

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—Theater goers waiting for trains at the Queensboro Plaza station in Long Island City tonight were startled to see a youth leap onto the tracks in the path of an oncoming train. Another youth leaped after the first with the apparent intention of snatching the would-be suicide to safety. The train was coming too fast, however, and struck both youths, hurling the first to one side and killing the boy attempting the rescue act.

The boy who gave his life was not identified. The other, who escaped with a broken leg, described himself as Frank Santonia, 17 years old, of Brooklyn.

ECLIPSE CASTS CHILLY SHADOW OVER FAR WEST

San Francisco, Cal., April 28.—(AP)—The phenomenon of a total eclipse of the sun was witnessed over a narrow swath across northwestern United States today, and in addition to being a spectacle of much interest, may have brought to astronomers new information regarding our chief source of heat, light and energy.

As a spectacle the eclipse brought countless thousands of persons in northern California, Nevada, Idaho, and Montana out into the open with smoked glasses to witness the sun's occlusion by the moon. The path of totality was both narrow and relatively short. Starting at a point in the Pacific ocean west of San Francisco about 9:36 a. m. [Pacific standard time] the moon's shadow moved northeastward at a rate of 1,200 miles an hour, entering Nevada at Honey Lake, Cal., and passing onward into Idaho and Montana, where it left the earth.

Shadow 3,000 Feet Wide.

The path of totality was about 3,000 feet wide. In each direction from that path the percentage of totality diminished until 400 miles away there was little to see. The darkness occasioned by the eclipse was a kind of an eerie twilight. Not only darkness but a coolness resulted that brought the mercury down perceptibly. There was also a hush that may have been partly imaginary, but the usual reports of chickens and birds going to roost were received. In San Francisco, the largest city near the center of totality, where the sun was 99 per cent obscured, lights were necessary indoors.

A peculiar phenomenon was noticed at the exact second of totality. Coming apparently from nowhere, a cloud gathered over the moon. This was said by scientists to be peculiar to an eclipse and possibly was due to sudden condensation of moisture in the atmosphere where the sun's heat was shut off.

Astronomers were especially interested in the sun's chromosphere, that portion of its atmosphere closest to its surface.

The elapsed time of the eclipse was about one hour and fifty minutes.

Photographs a Success.

Camptonville, Cal., April 28.—(AP)—After alternate periods of hope and despair, astronomers of Lick observatory and others were able to get a virtually unobstructed view of the sun's eclipse near here today.

With both spectroscope and telescope the various phases of the phenomenon were recorded and hundreds of photographic records made.

The definite scientic result of the expedition, one of the most comprehensive and intricate ever attempted, will not be known until studies have been completed. But casual inspection of many of the negatives revealed that much of the detail of the eclipse was photographed with exceptional clarity.

W. W. Campbell, president of the University of California, expressed himself as satisfied with the results.

Radio Plays Big Part.

Reception of the radio signal by which plates were dropped an eighth of an inch each second across a narrow slit through which the spectroscopic exposures were made, was good, and it was believed that a virtual moving picture of the spectrum was obtained. The signal came from Mare Island observatory, and by means of a chronograph automatically moved the photograph plates across the light slot of one of the spectroscopes.

The ceolostat, or mirror and lens device through which the image was obtained for the spectroscopes, was kept in focus on the moon in its movement across the face of the sun by a chronometer set by radio time signal.

DISAPPOINTMENT HERE.

A fleeting and unsatisfactory glimpse of the solar eclipse, which occurred over this region yesterday between 1:04 and 4:24 p. m., was presented to Chicagoans possessed of patience and keen eyesight.

The sky, which dawned murky, remained gray all day until about 3:35, when a break in the clouds over the loop revealed the solar disc with its upper left hand segment blotted out by the shadow of the moon.

C. A. Donnel, chief of the weather bureau, and members of his staff, who had spent more than an hour peering at the sky through smoked glasses from the top of the federal building, saw the phenomenon for about 15 minutes. Observers at the University of Chicago weather station were equally alert, but saw nothing.

Astronomers at Yerkes observatory had their telescopes and cameras trained on the sun but secured no photographs of value, according to Director Edwin B. Frost. The sky above the observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., was murky except for a few minutes at inception of the eclipse and again when it ceased.

RECONCILIATION IS FIZZLE, WIFE OF PROFESSOR SAYS

Mrs. Ethel Kesner Synnerdahl yesterday told Superior Judge Sabath that the reconciliation which he effected last week between her and her husband, Joseph M. Synnerdahl, former professor of astronomy and mathematics at Loyola university, had ended. The judge sugested a reunion when the wife appeared before him asking that her husband be sentenced for contempt of court because he had failed to comply with an order of the court requiring him to return some clothes to her.

Synnerdahl served five days in the county jail under a sentence imposed by Superior Judge Gentzel for perjury. After the reconciliation he beat her, the wife said. She testified that he told her that if she believed that he loved her, as he told Judge Sabath, she was foolish.

Synnerdahl was not in court. It was reported that he was seeking a view of the eclipse of the sun. The judge continued the case until May 12 so that Synnerdahl might offer a defense.

Gunmen Bind Girl and 3 Men; Take $3,350 Gems

As Carl M. White, proprietor of a collection agency, was about to close his office on the fifth floor at 35 South Dearborn street last evening, three gunmen strode in, forced White, his clerk, Miss Cora Jones, and two colored collectors into a rear room, and bound them to chairs. From White they took two diamond rings and a diamond stud, valued by him at $3,350, and without molesting the others or touching the cash register they departed. White freed himself and his employés and telephoned the police.

BUILDING GRAFT CHARGES FLY AT COURT HEARING

Mention Paschen in Story of $10,000 Bribe.

The name of Building Commissioner Herman P. Paschen was involved yesterday in disclosures of grafting on building permits in the trial of a civil suit before Superior Judge Martin Kavanagh. It was charged that an agent of the commissioner demanded a $10,000 contribution to the commissioner's campaign fund to overlook violations of the building code in the plans of an apartment building. The testimony was given by Jules Masse, a draftsman for Roy F. Hance & Co., architects, in an action to collect $2,658 on the note of Victor Nelson, 7400 Phillips avenue. In January of 1928 Nelson contracted with the firm of architects for plans for a proposed thirteen story apartment building to be erected at 72d street and Cities avenue.

Refuses to Pay Note.

Nelson accepted a price of $20,000. He said that he paid $17,500 and gave a note to the firm for the balance. The note was turned over to Masse for stock wages, according to the plea. Nelson refused to pay the note on the claim that the plans violated the building code and he was denied a permit. Masse obtained a default judgment before Superior Judge Pam last December. Through Attorney William A. Logan Nelson secured a trial before a jury in Judge Kavanagh's court.

Nelson testified that for days after he had signed a contract for the plans he was asked to pay $10,000, which was to be offered as a bribe to secure a permit. When he refused on the theory that he had asked the firm to draw a set of plans in conformity with all laws, he said that he was unable to secure a permit.

Goes to See Paschen.

On the stand Masse produced the note and declared that the transaction was valid. He had given plans according to the contract, he said. Under cross examination by Attorney Logan, Masse admitted having gone to Paschen in April, 1928 to secure approval of the plans.

He said that he made the visit at Nelson's insistance that a permit be issued so that Nelson could arrange for a loan. Masse went to the office of the commissioner with William Nichols, a salesman for the Wisconsin Lime and Cement company, said to be a friend of the commissioner. At the meeting with Paschen it was pointed out that the plans violated the building code in that they had garages in the basement of the building, had no windows in the bathrooms, and called for fire escapes and corridors of insufficient width.

"I asked Mr. Paschen what could be done about it," Masse said. "He replied that Nichols would get in touch with me in a day or so. The next day Nichols called me and said that it would be fixed for $10,000. He said that the money would go to Paschen's campaign fund."

Charges $50,000 Graft Paid.

Under questioning by Attorney Logan, Masse said that $50,000 had been paid to his knowledge to the office of the building commissioner in 1926 and 1927 to secure approval on other plans drawn by the firm. He declared that he did not know whether the sum was paid by the firm, the builder, or contractors. He named the buildings as the Lake Shore Towers, 3930 Lake Shore drive; the Coronada hotel, and the Fullerton Towers.

Attorney Rogen asked that the jury be instructed to return a verdict of not guilty. When this was done he announced that the facts are to be presented to State's Attorney Swanson.

"The building laws are as sacred as other laws," Judge Kavanagh declared in instructing the verdict. "Pure bribery of this character cannot be countenanced. The courts are not intended to serve in a process of corruption."

FATHER WRITES NOTE TO SON; ENDS OWN LIFE

Coming downstairs for breakfast yesterday morning in his parents' home at 911 Sheridan road, Wilmette, Edward H. Yonkers Jr., 25 years old, found on the dining room table a neatly scrawled note which read:

"Edward, My Son: I woke up twice during the night and had to come downstairs to get fresh air. My breath was coming shorter and shorter. What's the use of living if you must suffer so. DAD."

The young man hastened to the library and there, reclining on a divan in his pyjamas and dressing gown, lay Edward H. Yonkers Sr., 57 years old. Afflicted for many years with a heart ailment, he had shot himself in the head.

Yonkers Jr. and his brothers, John, 22 years old, and William, 19, lifted the unconscious man into his car and drove him to the St. Francis hospital, Evanston, where he died last evening. He was president of the E. H. Yonkers Tailoring company, a wholesale concern at 116 South Wells street.

Purchase of Islands as Eden for Wild Life Proposed

Tagus cove on Albemarle island, one of the Galapagos group, which it has been suggested by lovers of wild life that the United States purchase from Ecuador and maintain as a preserve for the creatures which abound on the islands. This picture, and others showing some of the strange animals on the islands, were taken by Commander Eugene F. McDonald and U. J. Herrmann, who have just returned from a visit to the islands. (Description of wild life found on island is given on editorial page.)

MILLION CASH, $150,000 A YEAR FOR A DIVORCE

Reno Shows Speed for Banker's Wife.

Reno, Nev., April 28.—[Special.]—Helen Warner Catchings today was granted a decree of divorce from Waddill Catchings, president of the Goldman Sachs Trading company, one of the largest investment concerns in the United States.

An agreement was made out of court, which although not made part of the court record, is said to provide a cash settlement of about one million dollars, an annuity of $100,000 a year for the three children of the couple, and an additional $50,000 a year on Mrs. Catchings. The Catchings were married in 1914.

Catchings, according to reports in the east, is to marry Mrs. Mabel D. Francis, former broker's clerk, who obtained a divorce here last January from Cedric E. Francis of Montreal.

Sues Day of Arrival.

Mrs. Catchings arrived in Reno from the east this morning and filed for divorce a few hours later, although she had never resided here. It has been assumed that Catchings himself was to file, as he had established residence.

Mrs. Catchings charged mental cruelty, alleging that her husband neglected and ignored her. This is one of the few times in Reno divorce history that a divorce has been granted the plaintiff upon the residence of the defendant as provided for in the statutes.

Catchings appeared in court to give testimony as to his residence. Mrs. Catchings then took the stand and related mildly some of the things she had charged her husband with doing.

Catchings is a director in Sears, Roebuck & Co., the Sloss Sheffield Steel and Iron company, the Amalgamated Leather companies, the Cluett Peabody company, the Continental Can company, the B. F. Goodrich company and other big corporations.

Two Other Divorces.

Basil Gordon, Princeton graduate and president of the Monumental Aircraft corporation, was divorced by his wife in a decree issued today.

Mrs. Jane Speller won a decree of divorce from Robert Speller, writer. She charged desertion and failure to provide.

SCHMIDT ASKS $150,000 TO PAY FOR STATISTICS

City Controller Schmidt sent a letter to the city council yesterday requesting an additional appropriation of $150,000 to be used in complying with a state law enacted last year. The law requires cities of 300,000 population or more to publish a list of their receipts and expenditures, together with a list of employés and their addresses, positions, and salaries. It further provides that this list shall be published not later than 60 days after Jan. 1 and July 1 of each year. In his letter the controller pointed out that he has neither the employés nor a fund to be used in compiling the list.

REPORT BISHOP MAY QUIT OVER VELASCO CASE

Lexington, Ky., April 28.—(AP)—The Rt. Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, Episcopal bishop of the Lexington diocese, today refused to confirm or deny a statement made by A. E. Stricklett, Covington, that he was seriously considering resigning because of the verdict in the trial of the Rev. Julius A. Velasco, Dayton, Ky. Stricklett was chief prosecution counsel at the ecclesiastical trial last week.

Velasco was found guilty of a charge of using defamatory language to his bishop, with the penalty of a reprimand. He was acquitted of a charge of violating a preordination agreement that he would resign his orders if he married a Catholic, and of conduct unbecoming a clergyman.

Stricklett was quoted today as saying that the bishop was "much chagrined" at the verdict, and "I do know that he is seriously considering tendering his resignation."

"I have no statement to make," Bishop Abbott said.

E. E. Armstrong Vanishes; Family Asks Police Search

TROOPS OF INDIA MUTINY IN FIGHT ON RIOTING MOB

Two Platoons of Hindu Soldiers Involved.

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON April 28.—Indications of serious trouble among the native sections of the Indian army are revealed tonight in an official statement through the India office from the government of India. The communique contains only a bald reference to the "unsatisfactory" conduct of Hindu troops belonging to an Indian battalion during the recent Peshawar riots, in which 20 met death. London official circles are perturbed following sensational rumors and unconfirmed statements of other incidents. The communique reads:

"In view of the possibility of exaggerated and misleading rumors, the government of India thinks it advisable to make it known that during the recent disturbances in the city of Peshawar, when troops had to be employed, the conduct of a small element—namely: two platoons of the 2d and 18th Royal Garhwal Rifles—was found to be unsatisfactory. The battalion has been sent to Abbottabad, where an inquiry will be held in due course."

Have Great War Record.

Abbottahad is a military station in the Punjab, 95 miles from Peshawar.

The Garhwal Rifles are recruited from the Garhfal district in the Himalayas. They consider themselves high caste Hindus. During the world war they covered themselves with honor in France, being awarded regimental Victoria crosses.

Gandhi Opens New Drive.

BOMBAY, April 28.—(AP)—In the absence of any serious disorders today Mahatma Gandhi introduced a new move in his civil disobedience campaign that may mean more trouble for the British authorities. The Nationalist leader authorized nonpayment of land revenue taxes in the districts of Broach and Taluka, and that, in the opinion of observers here, may have serious consequences.

Mrs. Gandhi sponsored the chief activity of the mahatma's nonviolent program today. With women volunteers in two motor buses she left Jalalpur for Onjar to carry on the fight against liquor. The women followed their usual procedure of picketing saloons and marching in the streets while chanting songs against the evils of drink.

KARACHI, India, April 28.—(AP)—While a British war plane hovered overhead 8,000 Indian Nationalists today burned a pile of foreign made cloth fifteen feet high in inauguration of a new phase of civil disobedience and passive resistance.

GUARDSMEN USE TEAR BOMBS ON REBEL CONVICTS

BULLETIN.

Columbus, O., April 28.—(AP)—National Guardsmen who searched the tunnel containing the prison's electric light and power wires and heating lines reported they were unable to find the convicts who were believed to have been hidden in the place after others had surrendered.

Columbus, O., April 28.—(AP)—Thirty-one National Guardsmen with loaded rifles and tear gas bombs were sent into Ohio penitentiary tonight to quell disorders among prisoners in a tunnel leading from a cell block to the prison power house.

A "shoot to kill" order was issued by Warden Thomas.

First information that the convicts were in the tunnel came when they cut off the power supplying lights in the White City idle house. When the cell blocks became black soldiers cut two holes in the roof and trained searchlights into them.

Cut Through Concrete.

Later tear bombs were dropped into the tunnel and most of the convicts soon came out. It was learned that the mutineers had cut through a concrete wall in order to reach the tunnel.

Soldiers were kept on the cell block roofs, and a company of guardsmen was stationed across the street from the main entrance to the prison.

Seven of the soldiers went into the prison court, while twenty-four men stationed themselves in the guardroom with fixed bayonets.

Col. Robert Haubrich, commander of the National Guardsmen stationed outside the prison since last Monday's fire, in which 320 convicts died, preceded the soldiers into the court.

Showdown Expected.

Indications were that tonight's activities would bring about a showdown in Warden Thomas' determination to end the passive resistance movement against his rule. The fresh outbreak came just after he had announced "no more compromise with the prisoners."

It previously had been thought the mutiny had been broken up this afternoon when leaders in the movement were transferred to the London, O., prison farm. The convicts, however, apparently found new leaders.

The mutinous convicts had kept prison officials in a constant state of turmoil today, obtained concessions from them and refused to work. The prisoners rose up in revolt again after a comparatively quiet week-end.

Dollar Year City Manager Given Salary in a Frame

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 28. —[Special.]—In lieu of a $12,000 salary refused a year ago when he was appointed city manager, George W. Welsh tonight was given a framed silver dollar and a resolution of thanks by the city commission. Since he took office, Welsh relieved the city of a $1,300,000 deficit.

BRITAIN BARES SECRET MOVES TO KEEP RULE OF SEA

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, April 28.—The British government will make public tomorrow its sixth volume of official documents of "origins of the world war." Publication of this mass of diplomatic correspondence and other foreign office documents was authorized by Prime Minister MacDonald in his first premiership in 1924, when he also held the post of foreign minister. The work was carried on by the succeeding Conservative government and taken up again by the Labor government.

The sub-title of volume VI., "The Anglo-German Tension," includes many confidential letters that passed between the foreign office and the various British ambassadors in Berlin and other European capitals between 1907 and 1912. It reveals hates, fears, prejudices and jealousies on the part of conspicuous governing individuals and indicates the futile devices and maneuvers on the part of the diplomats to smooth things over before they could bring about a clash of peoples.

Sums Up Tense Situation.

A summing up of the tense situation is best given in the pages of the book devoted to the secret minutes of the committee on imperial defense on May 26, 1911, at which meeting Viscount Grey of Fallodon, then Sir Edward Grey, the foreign minister, explained to representatives of the British dominions what the British foreign policy then really was, and why sea supremacy was indispensable to continuance of the empire.

Reading these documents reveals the sharpest of contrasts between the present day Wilsonian methods of conducting international affairs openly and those existing before the foundation of the league of nations.

"There must be absolute secrecy," said Sir Edward to the imperial defense committee in 1911. "Our foreign policy is really anything but Machiavellian. It is most simple and straightforward, but you cannot show your hand openly to the rest of the world, which is not showing its hand to you. That is one reason for absolute secrecy. In the next place you cannot deal with the foreign policy of this country without discussing freely your opinions on the foreign policies of other countries, and these even more if we dislike the background."

Recalls Situation in 1892.

To make clear the situation existing in 1911, Sir Edward went back to 1892 when he said, "The two restless powers in Europe were France and Russia, while the solid, quiet group at that time were the triple alliance powers—Germany, Austria and Italy."

It had been the policy of Lord Salisbury and afterward of Gladstone not to definitely join with the triple alliance, but to "generally side with it in diplomacy" as being the stable group in Europe and the one securing peace. It was soon after 1892 that the situation began to change and culminated in the Anglo-French agreement of 1904. Then followed the deterioration of the friendly relations of England and Germany. But even seven years later, Sir Edward felt justified in saying:

"We are most anxious to keep on good terms with Germany, and I believe she is anxious to keep on good terms with us, so we must smooth over matters arising between us without difficulty. But we must make it a cardinal condition of all our negotiations with Germany that we maintain good relations with France and Russia."

Sir Edward outlined what would happen to England if the strongest European power or group of powers should adopt the Napoleonic policy of crushing the lesser powers, as a result of the situation from which England had held aloof.

"I may say," he continued, "we are not committed by any entanglements which tie our hands. But I feel very strongly that, should such a situation arise and there was a risk of a group of European powers acquiring a dominating position, making it the arbiter not only of peace and war but of the diplomacy of all other powers, and if, while that process was going on, and we were appealed to for help by other powers and sat by doing nothing, the result would be one of a greater European combination and England left outside without a single friend.

"If that resulted, the naval situation would be this: If we meant to keep command of the sea we should have to estimate as the probable combination against us not the fleets of two powers, but of five.

Would Fight to Rule Sea.

"While there is no reasonable prospect now of our being involved in serious trouble with Europe, it is possible that under such conditions as I have described the question might arise as to whether we ought to take part by force in European affairs. If we did, it would be solely because our sea power and the necessity of our keeping command of the sea was the underlying cause and motive of our action.

"If control of the seas were lost, it would not only be the end of the British empire so far as we are concerned, but all the dominions would be separated from us, never to be rejoined, because control of the seas, once having passed to a great European power, would never be allowed to return again and not only would the dominions be parted from us, but entirely separated from each other."

After declaring that British relations with Italy and Austria, the other two powers of the triple alliance, were safe and friendly, Sir Edward returns to Germany. The further increase in naval expenditures, he said, would lead to the inevitable conclusion that Germany was building for the sole purpose of taking sea control from England.

Sought German Sea Pact.

"Therefore it is on the matter of naval expenditure that we are trying to come to some agreement with Germany that will make it clear that no rivalry exists. Though we must build if Germany builds, we are ready to give every guarantee that we are not building with aggressive purpose and, indeed, we could not, so far as Germany is concerned, so long as we keep our army at its present small dimensions. Because Germany, with her powerful army, if she had a fleet bigger than ours, could not only defeat us at sea but be in London in a very short time with her troops. But, however much superior our fleet to hers, however much we defeat her at sea, we could not commit a serious aggression by ourselves on German territory."

Sir Edward then summarized British relations with other powers, dismissing the United States with a brief reference to the Monroe Doctrine and adding:

"We haven't the least idea, and would be very foolish if we had, of attempting to acquire fresh territory on the American continent."

NAVY DELEGATES TO BE GUESTS AT WHITE HOUSE

Hoover Invitation Sent to Men at Sea.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—A warm White House welcome awaits the arrival of the American delegation to the London naval reduction conference.

At the direction of President Hoover, a message was radioed to the Leviathan this afternoon inviting Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and the other delegates to attend a luncheon at the White House Wednesday, the day after their arrival in New York City.

The certified copy of the treaty which the delegates are bringing with them for submission to the senate will be formally handed to President Hoover Wednesday morning while flashlights boom and still and motion pictures record the proceedings. The delegates are scheduled to call in a body at the executive offices of the White House Wednesday morning for this ceremony.

Pact Going to Senate.

At conferences held during the day with Secretary Stimson and other members of the delegation preparations will be completed for placing the treaty before the senate. George Akerson, the President's secretary, said today that the pact will go forward as soon as the necessary preparations can be made.

According to White House officials the President will forward with the treaty a message outlining reasons why the administration believes the pact should be ratified.

It was indicated that in this message the President will restate some of the arguments he advanced in behalf of the treaty at the time of its formal signature in London. At that time Mr. Hoover asserted the treaty represented a big saving for the United States in future naval expenditures and eliminated competition among the principal powers in warship building.

Editorial Is Quoted.

The Army and Navy Journal, a service publication, suggests editorially in the current week's issue that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald should be made an earl by King George for his success in persuading the United States to accept a treaty limiting the construction of American eight inch gun cruisers. The editorial states in part:

"In 1916 congress provided for a fleet of modern battleships. At the 1922 Washington conference Balfour was made an earl for sinking these same American battleships. At the 1927 Geneva conference Coolidge, Gibson and Jones saved American sea power, and congress responded with fifteen eight inch gun cruisers. At the 1930 London conference the Anglo-Japanese alliance induced the United States to agree to a lot of flivvers [referring to six inch gun cruisers] in place of five of these cruisers, and weakened the American position vis-a-vis Japan. For this exploit MacDonald and Wakatsuki ought to be made earls likewise."

YALE PRESIDENT TELLS OF NEW WELFARE GROUP

In this group is an association of departments concerned with the study of man from one viewpoint or another. Included are the school of medicine, the New Haven hospital, the school of law, certain engineering divisions; the graduate division of psychology, sociology, economics and government, and a newly formed Institute of Human Relations. NEGRO POLICEMAN HELD AS SLAYER BY INQUEST JURY

Charged with Killing Youth in Auto.

Patrolman Thomas Chapman, only Negro member of the west park police force, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter by a coroner's jury yesterday. He is charged with the slaying of Salvatore Decianni, 19 years old, 834 South Oakley boulevard. The youth was killed by a bullet fired by Chapman on Saturday night, when an automobile in which Decianni and several companions were riding did not stop for a traffic light at Washington boulevard and Ogden avenue.

After hearing the verdict of the coroner's jury Capt. William Schramm of the west park police took Chapman's star and ordered his suspension from the force.

At the inquest, which was conducted by Coroner Bundesen, Chapman testified that he fired upon the car after the driver failed to heed his command to halt. He said the occupants of the machine appeared suspicious to him and "might have committed a felony." Other witnesses did not corroborate the policeman's testimony that he thought he had been fired on from the car.

Victim's Companions Testify.

Tony Orlando, 837 South Claremont avenue, one of those who was riding in the automobile, told the inquest jury, which was composed of three Negroes and three white men, that he and his companions were going to a wedding. On their way to meet a friend, they were driving northeast in Ogden avenue and arrived at Washington boulevard just as the lights flashed red, he said.

Unable to stop, Frank Amato, 835 South Claremont avenue, who was driving, passed a car which did stop and turned into the eastbound traffic in order to avoid a collision, Orlando said. This version was corroborated by Amato, who said he had not heard the command to halt, although he saw the policeman.

No Gun Found in Car.

Decianni's companions denied having a gun and none was found in the car when it was examined by Sergt. Thomas Connelly of the detective bureau, the jury was told.

Commenting on the case, Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, said:

"Placing the most favorable construction possible upon the policeman's conduct and intentions, he took human life in attempting to apprehend a person supposedly guilty of a misdemeanor. A policeman generally may use a deadly weapon, even to the extent of taking life, if necessary to arrest a felon, but the rule by the great weight of authority is that except in self-defense he may not use a deadly weapon or take life to effect an arrest for a misdemeanor.

William J. Toomey, suspended south park policeman, was reported named in a true bill voted by the grand jury yesterday charging him with the slaying of Phillip Rinella, 27 years old, 627 West 25th street, on April 15. The policeman is alleged to have shot Rinella after a quarrel following an automobile accident at 26th street and Wentworth avenue. Toomey was off duty at the time.

Divorces Artist; Deserted for Moving While Posing

Mrs. Hildegard Staack, 1920 Burling street, yesterday won a divorce from Fred Staack, an artist, before Circuit Judge Lynch. She charged that her husband deserted her two years ago to return to Germany after he was unsuccessful in an attempt to have her pose for him for two hours without a rest. She testified that he was so angered when she moved that he left her.

30 WASHINGTON RELATIVES NOW BURIED IN VAULT

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—Remains of more than thirty members of the Washington family, buried on the Wakefield, Va., estate where the first President was born, were gathered from their graves today and placed in a reconstructed vault as part of the restoration of the historic spot.

The Washingtons whose bones were moved today belonged to four generations, all antedating the President, and including Col. John Washington, the first of the family to come to America; Maj. Lawrence, Capt. John, and Augustine Washington, the great-grandfather, grandfather, and father of George.

The restoration, undertaken by the Wakefield National Memorial association, is for the purpose of turning the estate over to the government for preservation as a national monument or park. A duplicate of the home in which Gen. Washington was born is to be built upon the original site.

The reinterment today was accompanied by services conducted by Bishop Freeman of Washington in the presence of official witnesses.

HIT BY ENGINE; LOSES BOTH LEGS

Michael Godazalues, 45 years old, lost both legs yesterday when struck by a New York Central switch engine at 13th street. He is married and lives at 4423 South Wood street.

COOLIDGE GIVES HIGH PRAISE TO BUTLER, SENATE CANDIDATE

Boston, Mass., April 28.—[Special.]—The Boston Herald tomorrow will print an exclusive signed story by former President Calvin Coolidge, in which he pays high tribute to William M. Butler, former United States senator and chairman of the Republican national committee in the 1924 election, who is again a candidate for the Republican nomination to the United States senate from Massachusetts. The former President wrote:

"Senator Butler is always loyal. He is loyal now. He emphatically announces that he proposes to support the President of the United States, the governor of Massachusetts, and the Republican organization. He has never posed as the only honest man or set himself above his party or his country. While he will sacrifice no vital principle, he will always seek to carry out the declared policies of his party rather than his mere personal predilections.

"It is for this reason that his fellow citizens have been willing to intrust to him the management of their private and public affairs, their business and their government. They know in his hands they have a wide margin of safety. They trust his judgment. In these days of turmoil and doubt, of distrust and recrimination, there is something wonderfully satisfying about a man who is loyal and safe.

"The power of the man abides. He represents the dignity, the candor, the character, and the moral fiber of the commonwealth."

With a simple ceremony devoid of speech making, ground was broken yesterday for the new laboratory museum of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, a Gothic structure, which will rise at 58th street and University avenue in the same block as the university chapel.

Robert M. Hutchins, president of the university, handed a silver spade to Dr. James H. Breasted, Egyptologist and curator of the museum, who turned the first clod of earth. The thirty members of the history, archeology and anthropology departments of the institute, who witnessed the ceremony, smiled, shook hands with Dr. Breasted, and dispersed.

Erection of the laboratory and augmentation of its staff were made possible by a $1,500,000 gift from the International Educational board, a Rockefeller foundation. Resources of the institute for the study of the origin of mankind and of lost civilizations now exceed $10,000,000.

Says Wife Got His Money by Plot with Landlord

Morris Resnicke, 222 South Western avenue, yesterday asked Superior Judge Sabath to deny temporary alimony to his wife, Lena. He declared she entered into an agreement with their landlord by which the latter raised the rent $5 a month, which increase was turned over to the wife. She saved $1,200 from this, Resnicke said. Despite his plea, however, the judge ordered him to pay $12 a week alimony and $4 a week for his 8 year old daughter's music lessons.

EXCLUSIVE REPRESENTATIVES FOR DOBBS HATS IN CHICAGO

ALDERMEN FIND WATER BUREAU IN CASH CRISIS

Urge Full Meterization of City as a Remedy.

An aldermanic subcommittee yesterday predicted chaos and bankruptcy for Chicago's water bureau if the present method of operation is continued. The prediction was made in a report prepared by the committee after studying the finances of the city's water system. It came as a surprise to other aldermen who have been informed at budget sessions that the water bureau is operating on a paying basis.

The committee, headed by Ald. Edward J. Kaindl [34th], was appointed nearly eighteen months ago to conduct a general survey of the water bureau. It received a hint early in its sessions of the "tendency toward insolvency," members said, and directed its energies to meeting that problem. Another report is to follow later on leak control, filtration, and kindred subjects.

Eight Recommendations Made.

The report makes eight recommendations for bringing the revenues from the sale of water up to the level of expenditures. Chief among them is a program for meterizing all water consumption, a program which, the report says, will bring about a reduction in water rates. This is the project Mayor Thompson opposed in his last campaign. Another recommendation is to eliminate the 15 per cent discount now allowed on bills paid within thirty days.

"The tendency, at first almost imperceptible, toward insolvency," the report says, "has gone on until, within the last few years, the situation has grown so acute as to occasion—in the minds of careful observers—a real concern for the future stability of the water system as a public service unit of the municipality."

What the Figures Show.

As evidence the report points out that while the total revenue from the sale of water for 1928 was $13,497,193, there was appropriated for the operation of the bureau for the same year $10,627,186. "It requires no great foresight to foretell what will be the result to any class of enterprise carried on under similar conditions" the report adds.

Figures obtained by the committee show that from 1925 to 1928, inclusive, the water bureau spent $18,065,648 above its revenue. If the city had been metered during those four years so that all the water pumped had been paid for, an additional revenue of $6,831,531 would have been obtained, which would have turned the four year deficit into a surplus of $23,567,179, according to the report.

Full Meterization Urged.

One of the committee's recommendations strikes at an amendment to the universal metering ordinance advocated by Mayor Thompson and passed by the city council. The amendment, which excludes two flat and single residence buildings from meterization, is recommended for repeal by the report. In another place the aldermen say the city should "lose no further time in carrying into effect a program of complete meterization" in accordance with the government's mandate for a 90 per cent meterization within a period of ten years ending March 3, 1936.

The aldermen found that the metering program is only in its second year, although half of the ten year period has expired. They estimate that approximately 75,000 meters have been installed and 400,000 more installations are needed to complete the program. The cost was estimated by Ald. Kaindl at $30,000,000 with the present methods of installation. This cost, he said, can be cut in half by changing to different methods.

Warn of High Costs.

"It can be seen," the report says, "that little precaution was exercised in the past in the selection of meters, their proper installation, or in the preparation of specifications under which they were purchased. Unless ironclad specifications are adopted by the city for the purchase of meters in the future, the water meter idea, despite its great importance to the city—if carried on under present methods of purchase, installation, and maintenance—will become hopelessly prohibitive.

Water is being sold in Chicago at two rates, according to the report. A rate of 6.8 cents a 1,000 gallons is charged to 16 per cent of the consumers, representing the metered service, and a rate of two cents a 1,000 gallons to the other 84 per cent of the users. Complete meterization, the aldermen say, would eliminate this favoritism to the largest number of users and reduce the cost to everyone.

Chance for Additional Revenue.

With control of water pumpage by meterization the surplus of water pumped can be sold to commercial and industrial users and adjacent towns, thus producing an additional revenue, according to the report. The aldermen say they believe that this additional revenue will be sufficient to absorb the cost of installing meters within five years. They would obtain the money for the installation from the sale of certificates issued against the water revenues.

Although filtration is not mentioned in this report, Ald. Kaindl expressed the opinion that it could be obtained by retaining the price of 6.8 cents a 1,000 gallons for every consumer. He said the cost of pumping and delivering the water is 4 cents a 1,000 gallons and inasmuch as Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe has said that filtration can be had for an additional charge of two cents, the 6.8 cents rate would be adequate if applied to every consumer.

The members of the subcommittee who aided in preparing the report are D. A. Horen [21st], J. B. Bowler [25th], T. F. Moran [16th], J. M. Arvey [24], J. H. Smith [32d], and D. R. Crowe [42d].

Edgar Luzabder, 33 years old, hanged himself yesterday on the rear porch of his home at 2415 South Kolin avenue. His widow, Florence, told the police he had been out of work as a wood carver since last September. She said she has been trying to support the family of eight children on $18 a week, but she was unable to keep up with the rent on the two room house. The youngest child is a year and a half old and the eldest is 12.

Col. George C. Reid of the United States marine corps, who formally retired from the service yesterday, was honored at a farewell ceremony by officers and men of the central recruiting division, where he has been in charge until his resignation. The ceremony was held in the division headquarters in the Transportation building.

Col. and Mrs. Reid, who live at 7642 Greenview avenue, will remove to a suburb of Cleveland, where, Col. Reid said, he expects to "raise a few chickens and enter the real estate business."

The colonel is now 52 years old. He had seen almost 32 years of service with the marine corps.

URGES REVISION OF TAX BOARDS BY LEGISLATURE

Fairweather Asks Action at Special Session.

A plea that the special session of the legislature be permitted to consider changes in the tax assessing and reviewing machinery of Cook county was made last night by George O. Fairweather, chairman of the joint commission on real estate valuation. Speaking before 200 members of the Woodlawn Property Owners' association at the Woodlawn Masonic temple, Mr. Fairweather expressed the hope that on issuing his expected call for the special session Gov. Emmerson will give the legislature sufficient power to consider methods of preventing future financial ailments for the local governments as well as remedies for the present situation.

Some days ago Mr. Fairweather announced that the real estate valuation commission had given its approval to a plan for complete reorganization of the boards of assessors and review, which would be presented to the governor. This plan proposes that the present method of electing the boards be abandoned and that the county board appoint a single assessor and two reviewers, who, with the assessor, shall perform the duties of the present board of review.

Strikes at Tax Boards.

Last night Mr. Fairweather declared that Gov. Emmerson was being importuned from some quarters to limit his call for the special session so that "imperative changes in the assessing and reviewing machinery may be excluded." To do so, he said, would not give the legislature "a full and fair opportunity to deal with the people's problems."

"If there is one thing more firmly and generally accepted in this community than another," Mr. Fairweather said, "it is that the boards of assessors and review have throughout the years so administered their office, contrary to law, that equality and uniformity in the treatment of taxpayers became the exception rather than the rule.

"There are those who say that it would be unwise for the governor to grant relief to the people because of some alleged fear that he or somebody else is supposed to have of antagonizing the political power behind the two tax boards. I do not agree with this fear theory. No individual in this county or state is willing to assume the responsibility for denying a county of 6,000,000 inhabitants their proper or necessary relief at the hands of their own legislature."

Looks at Mayoralty Campaign.

Mr. Fairweather reviewed the situation which he said might exist if the taxpayers are denied relief.

"It is no secret that there is at least one and maybe two mayoralty aspirants on the board of review, probably Charles V. Barrett and possibly Edward R. Litsinger," said Mr. Fairweather.

"Keeping in mind the conditions which confronted this community last winter when the tax administration was delayed and the rescue funds had to be raised, is it not highly probable that a similar delay will occur next winter and spring until after the mayoralty primaries and election in order that the bad news may not get out to the voters in time to affect the election of one of those gentlemen?"

SEARCH RIVER FOR AUTHOR OF SUICIDE NOTE

Coast guardsmen yesterday dragged the Chicago river for the body of the author of a suicide note found on the lower level of Wacker drive at State street. The note said that "fate has taken love out of my life," and the writer indicated he had swallowed poison and then jumped into the water.

Another paragraph of the note said: "Love, what youth and happiness it brings to one's life and what sorrow and pain it causes when it leaves. I contemplated taking this action before, but fate made a queer turn and brought love into my life. Then, with another turn, my love left. You may call this a coward's exit. But try it yourself, unbeliever."

The note said the writer was 5 feet 10¼ inches tall and weighed 154 pounds. It concluded with:

"Please, Peggy, forgive me, and good-by, mamma."

HOTEL BELMONT IN NEW YORK TO BE TORN DOWN

New York, April 28.—(AP)—The blight that threatens all New York buildings as they approach the quarter century mark, especially if they are strategically situated, descended today on the old hotel Belmont at 42d street and Park avenue—"old" because it was built way, way back in 1906.

The hotel will serve its last meal Saturday noon, and a few hours later will close its doors to all except moving men and house wreckers.

What will replace the hotel when its 22 stories have been leveled to the ground was not announced, but there were indications there will arise there another giant skyscraper to commune with the Chrysler, Lincoln, and Chanin buildings in the altitudes above the Grand Central.

TEACHERS' UNION PROTEST DELAYS AIRPORT LEASE

Board Heeds Behest for Further Inquiry.

The school board postponed action again yesterday on the leasing of 600 acres of school property to the city for the expansion of the municipal airport at 63d street and Cicero avenue. The matter was referred back to the building and grounds committee at the request of the teachers' unions and the Chicago Federation of Labor. The labor organizations asked more time to investigate the terms of the proposed lease.

President Caldwell of the board, who said recently that he would insist on quick action on the lease to end uncertainty on airport improvements, explained yesterday that the request of the teachers' organizations justified a further delay. The negotiations to obtain additional property for the inadequate airport have been carried on for two years. Aviation leaders were present again yesterday to urge the approval of the lease.

Delays Chafe Air Leaders.

The advocates of the airport improvements pointed out that on April 1 Caldwell announced the adoption of the airport lease was virtually assured and only awaited the return of several trustees who were out of the city. Two meetings have been held since these trustees returned to the city, but the lease proposal has not been put to a vote.

Merrill C. Meigs, chairman of the Chicago aero commission, told the trustees that the airport is woefully small and is dangerous to flyers. "If a disaster happens we at least have given warning," he said.

Mr. Meigs argued that the lease would be a benefit to the school children as well as the public. Similar statements were made by William McDonnell, publisher of a south side community newspaper, who said he represented the sentiments of sixteen civic organizations in his district; by Dan Carey, commander of Aviation post, American Legion, and by others.

On April 1 President Caldwell said the eight votes necessary for adoption of the lease appeared to be available. He said last night, however, that he was not certain whether more than six affirmative votes could be rounded up.

May Name New Trustees.

Proponents of the lease pointed out yesterday that the mayor may appoint three new members to the board who are favorable to the lease. The terms of Theophilus Schmid and James Mullenbach end tomorrow. Dr. Otto Schmidt resigned from the board a year ago. His place has never been filled.

Mullenbach has opposed the lease on the grounds that it will not provide sufficient revenue to the board. Schmid, chairman of the building and grounds committee, favors it. President Caldwell said last night that he would urge Mayor Thompson to make his appointments soon.

The trustees settled one long drawn out controversy over the disposal of school property yesterday. By a vote of 9 to 1 the board approved the sale of 248 acres of the board's 285 acre tract of land in Austin. Mullenbach voted against it.

SHOOTS ROBBER, SAVES CASH.

Galesburg, Ill., April 26.—(AP)—It was a faux pas for a robber to try to hold up Ira Garrett, filling station attendant, last night. Instead of "sticking 'em up," he shot at the would-be robber, who dropped his gun and ran, leaving a trail of blood.

SENATOR SENDS UP A LETTER TO READ; IT'S PERSONAL ONE

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—The senate enjoyed a good laugh today with Senator Lee Overman [Dem., N. C.] when he sent a personal epistle to the clerk to read to the senate instead of an official one he had intended.

"Hold on there," shouted Senator Overman as the clerk began reading the letter. "That's not the right one."

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, April 28.—In the presence of the president of the French republic, Ambassador Edge and many other distinguished citizens of France and the United States, "American house" in the Paris university city was formally dedicated this afternoon.

The ceremonies marked the opening of an impressive though simple Parisian home for 300 American students, erected at a cost of $400,000, and places the United States on an equal footing with a dozen other nations which have already completed dormitories for their young men and women students. Each year between 4,000 and 5,000 young Americans come to Paris to study and the need for just such a properly guided development has long been apparent.

What American house lacks in exterior beauty it makes up in completeness of interior equipment. Nothing has been omitted to make students feel at home and cheerful.

GUILT OF RUM BUYER ARGUED IN SUPREME COURT

Justices Hear Two Test Cases with Interest.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—Eight justices of the United States Supreme court today listened to oral arguments on the proposition that an American citizen who buys liquor from a bootlegger is a criminal, subject to a fine and imprisonment under the Volstead act.

Two cases were before the court. The decision in either or both may affect millions of people. The cases were those of James E. Farrar, accused of purchasing two pints of liquor without a permit, and Alfred E. Norris, charged with conspiracy for ordering shipments of liquor to himself. Each for the first time brought before the high tribunal the direct issue of the guilt or innocence of a purchaser.

Assistant Attorney General G. Aaron Youngquist pleaded for the government for rulings to make both defendants guilty. Defense lawyers contended that the acts charged were within the law.

At the close of the arguments the court took the cases under advisement and presumably will act on them shortly. Questions asked by several justices indicated that they entertained some doubts as to the Supreme court's jurisdiction in the Norris case, owing to the legality of a bill of stipulations attached to the indictment.

Farrar Case Clear Cut.

The Farrar case, however, involves the liquor purchase issue directly. James E. Farrar was indicted at Boston on a charge of having purchased liquor from Frank Rotondo of Medford, Mass. The federal District court ruled that purchase was not an offense and quashed the indictment, whereupon the government appealed.

Assistant Attorney General Youngquist based his argument in the Farrar case upon section 6 of the Volstead act, which provides that "no person shall purchase . . . any liquor without obtaining a permit from the commissioner to do so."

This provision is not confined to persons to whom permits may lawfully be issued but applies to all persons, Youngquist maintained. The fact that the word "purchase" was not included in the ban on manufacture, sale, transportation, and so forth, does not mean it is lawful, he said.

It would be illogical to make purchase lawful, he said, in a law which says that "all the provisions of this act shall be construed to the end that the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage may be prevented."

As a matter of fairness, Youngquist explained, he also briefly presented to the court decisions holding the purchaser innocent. The sole purpose of the government in presenting the cases, he said, was to have the issue once and for all decided.

Defense States Case.

Attorney Lewis scoffed at the theory that congress intended to make the purchaser guilty. On the contrary, he said, the arguments on the 18th amendment showed that the word "purchase" was specifically ruled out when an amendment to insert it was defeated in the senate. He cited the pending bill of Senator Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.], co-author of the amendment, to put in the word as proof that he believed it was not originally indicated.

"Why pass the buck to this court?" Lewis demanded. "Let it stay in congress, where it belongs. If there is any ambiguity in the statute the Congressional Record of the debates on the 18th amendment shows that the buyer was expressly left out. One cannot escape the conclusion that it was done deliberately.

"Not until this case has any prosecuting officer had the temerity in indict a mere buyer. Failure to prosecute the buyer must have had the approval of the executive department of the government and neither administrative necessity nor convenience can now make the buyer a criminal unless the law plainly makes him so."

The Norris Case.

In the Norris case the defendant, a New York banker, was charged with violating the prohibition law when he placed orders with Joel D. Kerper of Philadelphia for the shipment of bootleg liquor. The Philadelphia District court convicted him of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, but the Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the ruling.

Mr. Youngquist, in this case, argued that in knowingly placing an order for the liquor the defendant conspired in its transportation to him and therefore was equally guilty with the shipper.

Attorney Frederic L. Ballard, counsel for Norris, disputed the contention that "the mere fact of purchase" could be interpreted as complicity to violate the law. The conspiracy law would have to be stretched out of all proportion, and in violation of the intent of congress to cover such a case, he said.

Observations on Enforcement.

"The government says that if the decision of the case at the bar is allowed to stand it will have a very detrimental effect upon prohibition enforcement," Ballard declared. "Quite the contrary. This decision works no change. The prohibition act has been administered for ten years without there ever having been one single conviction of a purchaser, such as Norris, for conspiracy to transport."

Ballard added that what will happen is that should Norris be held guilty "the thousands who violate the prohibition law will be turned into millions" and the government will have a much more difficult enforcement problem.

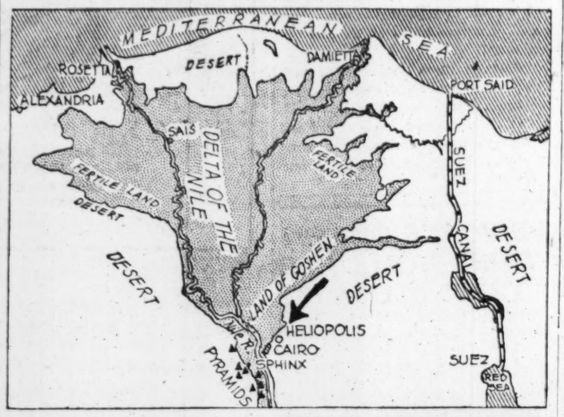
From Heliopolis, Egypt



Letter received by T. W. Rogers, 434 Webster avenue, Chicago.

This letter was mailed from Heliopolis, the city of the sun, located a few miles northeast of Cairo, on the dividing line between the fertile delta of the Nile and the vast Egyptian deserts.

It was written by a Mr. Huard, who serves with a photographic squadron of the British air force. During recent trouble between the Arabs and the Jews, Huard's division established a base at Heliopolis and from there sallied forth on scouting expeditions. They made photographic maps from the air and on them traced the movements of the native forces.

With his letter, Mr. Huard encloses photographs he has taken of many famous places in the neighborhood of Heliopolis and Cairo. He sends pictures of the temple of the sphinx, the mosque of Mohamet Ali, the pyramid of Sakkara, and the citadel of Cairo.

The city of Cairo, of which Heliopolis is practically a suburb, is the most populous in Egypt. Although the newer sections are laid out along European lines, there still are many quarters characteristically oriental. The older part has narrow, crooked streets, ill kept and poorly paved, but it also has many beautiful mosques and old residences of great elegance.

Cairo is the seat of Mohammedan learning. Its university, the largest in all Islam, dates back to the tenth century.

Warns Congress Courts, Prisons Are Clogged.

to have been reached as to the method of accomplishing this, either by the judiciary committee of the senate or by the judiciary committee of the house of representatives.

Extend Federal Prisons.

"3. There must be extension of federal prisons with more adequate parole system and other modern treatment of prisoners. We have already 11,985 prisoners in federal establishments built for 6,946. The number of federal prisoners in federal and state institutions increased 6,277 in the nine months from June 30, 1929, to April 1, 1930. The attorney general has stated that we cannot hope to enforce the laws unless we can have some point of reception of convicted persons. The overcrowding of the prisons themselves is inhumane and accentuates criminal tendencies. Bills providing for the relief were passed by the house and are now, I understand, in the course of being reported to the senate by the judiciary committee.

"4. We are in need of vigorous reorganization of the border patrol in order to consolidate various agencies so as effectually to prevent illegal entry of both aliens and goods. Proposals to bring about such reorganization are before the committee of congress.

"5. The District of Columbia is without an adequate prohibition enforcement law. A bill for that purpose has been introduced and hearings have been held before the senate District committee. It should contain the safeguards recommended by the attorney general."

President Hoover asserted that the legislation is necessary if he is to fulfill his duty in the enforcement of laws enacted by congress.

"We have within the limits of existing legislation improved the personnel and greatly increased the efficiency of the existing federal machinery in criminal law enforcement during the past year," said the President.

"The above reforms are necessary, however, if I am to perform the high duty which falls upon the executive of enforcement of the federal laws.

Where Crime Springs From.

"While a considerable part of this condition arises from the laws relating to intoxicating liquors, yet the laws relating to narcotics, automobile thefts, etc., which have been enacted by the congress during recent years also contribute to create the present conditions. This is well indicated by the fact that less than one-third of federal prisoners are due to prohibition.

"Our obedience to law, our law enforcement and judicial organization, our judicial procedure, our care and methods of handling prisoners, in relation to not only federal government but also to the state and municipal governments, are far from the standards that must be secured. These proposals, while they do not comprehend the whole which remains to be done in the nation, are a step toward lifting the federal standards which must have a general beneficial influence."

EVIDENCE SEIZED IN DRY RAID ON HOTEL HELD INSUFFICIENT

Philadelphia, Pa., April 28. — (AP) — Holding that the government had failed to make out a case following a prohibition raid on the Walton hotel roof garden recently, United States Commissioner Howard Long today discharged Charles Duffy Jr., manager, and J. M. Kaiser, assistant manager of the hotel.

They had been charged with illegal possession of liquor and maintaining a common nuisance. Prohibition agents who made the raid said they found flasks and bottles containing liquor.

Despite the dismissal A. P. MacPhee, assistant administrator, said he would recommend indictment of Duffy and Kaiser by the federal grand jury. Civil padlock action against the roof garden is pending.

PARIS HOPES FOR AUSTRIA'S AID IN PACT WITH ITALY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 28.—Chancellor Johann Schober of Austria arrived in Paris this afternoon for a three day round of official palavers and entertainments. The French press is hailing this visit as a diplomatic event of the first water. He will pay a similar visit to London afterwards.

Diplomats see in Dr. Schober's visit an opportunity to lay the foundation for an agreement to end the Franco-Italian rivalry. Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, is working on such an agreement at present, and assurance that there would be no Austrian-Hungarian-Italian hookup in central Europe against the little entente would greatly help to clear the atmosphere.

Ostensibly Dr. Schober's visit is of a bread and butter variety, for the purpose of thanking France and England for the kindness shown Austria at The Hague reparations conferences. Official circles, however, tacitly admitted that Chancellor Schober is not a self-invited guest of the western powers. It is understood he was gently but firmly invited to explain the exact meaning of his visits to Rome and Berlin, as well as the chat he had with the Hungarian foreign minister just before leaving Vienna.

Evanston Alderman Assails Operation of Water Plant

Criticism of the operation of the water pumping station at Lincoln street and Sheridan road, Evanston, and intimation that three oilers at $190 a month provided in the budget could not be found at the pumping plant, were presented before the Evanston city council last night by Ald. Peter Jans. Mayor Charles H. Bartlett supported a resolution for an investigation, although stating he thought that the charges, which included one that there was no one in charge of the plant from 3 a. m. until 8 a. m., would prove unfounded.

Since halitosis never announces itself to the victim, you simply cannot know when you have it.

Halitosis ruins romance—end it

If the one you're fond of has halitosis (unpleasant breath), it's your duty to call attention to it and suggest the effective remedy—Listerine used full strength.

Certainly this course is a better one than putting up with halitosis and saying nothing about it.

A great many people fool themselves in thinking they never have halitosis. What a presumption! Because nobody knows when he or she is a victim. Halitosis doesn't announce itself to you. But it does to others. And that offends.

Being an active germicide capable of killing 200,000,000 germs in 15 seconds, full-strength Listerine checks mouth fermentation and infection—both a cause of odors. Then it gets rid of the odors; it is a powerful deodorant. Use Listerine morning and night and between times, before meeting others. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U.S.A.

SEEKS $300,000 FOR INOCULATION OF DEADLY GERM

Woman Sues Estate of Patent Medicine King.

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—Trial of a suit by which Mrs. Mae L. Breaton, 44, hopes to gain $1,000 a month for the rest of her life for submitting to inoculation with germs of an incurable disease began today before Supreme Court Justice William T. Collins.

MRS. MAE L. BREATON. [P. and A. Photo.]

Mrs. Breaton is suing Mrs. Cora E. De Witt and Harold B. Niles, executors of the will of the late Eldon C. De Witt, patent medicine king, who left an estate appraised at $50,000,000, to enforce a contract by which she asserts he agreed to pay her $1,000 a month for life after he had discovered that she could not be cured of the disease with which he had caused her to be inoculated.

For Experimental Purposes.

In his opening statement, former Supreme Court Justice Daniel P. Donahan, counsel for the plaintiff, said: "We will endeavor to prove that De Witt wanted to use my client for experimental purposes and had her inoculated by a doctor with germs. His object was to devise a patent medicine for the cure of this disease, but when he found he could not, he, six years later, became panic stricken and offered her an annuity."

Mrs. Breaton, a tall and drawn faced woman, was not called to the stand because of the legal rule that prevents her from testifying to statements made by a person now deceased. Her story was placed before the court by Mrs. Jean McClurz Suydam, the plaintiff's lifelong friend.

On Dec. 9, 1925, Mrs. Suydam testified she was asked to meet De Witt and Mrs. Breaton at the offices of the Guaranty Trust company.

Tells of First Payment.

"Mr. De Witt met Mrs. Breaton in my presence, and, commenting on the fact that she looked poorly, said that he felt morally responsible for her condition."

"He took out ten $100 bills and pressed them into her hand, and told her that as long as she lived he would see that she got $1,000 a month."

De Witt died March 29, 1927, without making provision for Mrs. Breaton in his will. When a claim was made by her against the estate for $500,000 it was rejected by the executors. In the present trial a minimum of $300,000 is asked.

Accused Girl Bank Cashier Faces Citation Tomorrow

Miss Lavergne Lindgren, cashier of the defunct People's State bank of Maywood, failed to comply with the order of Judge Harry Fisher that she employ attorneys to defend her by yesterday. As a result the judge issued orders that all principals in the case appear before him tomorrow. The trial had been set for May 26. Elmer Langguth, president of the bank, is indicted along with Miss Lindgren on charges growing out of the collapse of the bank.

VIENNA, April 28. — (AP) — The Vienna Stunde today reported from Budapest that Archduke Albrecht, 33 years old, counter candidate to the young Otto for the Hungarian throne, is about to marry the wife of a high Hungarian official who is believed to have petitioned for a divorce. The paper said that Archduke Albrecht's intentions caused great agitation in his family, as his step would make him no longer eligible for the Hungarian throne.

VANDERBILT'S YACHT BLOWS UP IN EAST RIVER

Provides Spectacle, but Crew of 18 Escapes.

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt's steam yacht Winchester—a long, lean greyhound of the sea and the fastest thing in New York waters—blew up in the East river off the New York Yacht club pier at Twenty-sixth street today.

The roar of the explosion which set afire the flyer, on which the general and his friends commute between New York and Newport, startled a wide area of Manhattan and fluttered the nerves of 2,000 patients in Bellevue hospital, a short distance from the Winchester's anchorage, 400 yards out in the crowded river.

Spectacle for Skyscrapers.

Thousands of men and women perched high up in the lofty towers of commerce in mid-Manhattan had an experience which comes to few, even in this hectic age. They saw many of them, the explosion itself—saw a mass of material go shooting a hundred feet in the air, mushroom and spray downward upon the surface of the river, and they saw a column of flame leap upward as the oil and gas ignited in the yacht.

Eighteen of the crew of 22 were aboard—Capt. Leander Jeffries, the first mate, and sixteen seamen and cabin servants—but no one on the vessel was so much as bruised. By a bit of extraordinary luck all had gone forward to the forecastle to eat the noon meal when something went wrong in the oil and gasoline storage room deep down in the after part of the hull.

A quarter of an hour earlier or a quarter of an hour later, in all likelihood, several of the eighteen would have been blown to pieces, but luck was with them and they came out of it with nothing worse than a bad scare. When the vessel leaped to the terrific force of the explosion the men rushed from the forecastle and launched the boats. A dozen of them climbed in and dropped to the river. Capt. Jeffries, the first mate and three seamen stayed aboard.

Within a few minutes, after some of the fastest fire fighting the East river has seen in many a day, a fire boat drenched out the flames and the crew were able to climb back aboard.

Explosion Unexplained.

Nobody was able tonight to explain the precise cause of the explosion. All that is known is that the blast occurred in the gasoline storage tank immediately under the private quarters of the general. It was a good deal as if an explosion had taken place in the cellar of a private house. The upward force was so great that it blew through two floors—or decks—and carried away the deck planking, much of the structure of the after cabin, the after mast and the deck awning.

It will take probably $50,000 to repair the damage, it was estimated.

The Winchester was built fifteen years ago. She was faster than most torpedo boat destroyers and has done up to 35 knots. She is a steam turbine craft of 205 gross tons, with a length of 225 feet and breadth of 21, has twin screws and is of all steel construction.

Get Your Touring Information From Specialists

When you start out touring this summer, you will want the most authentic and complete touring information. Of course, you will want maps and logs. You will want to know the shortest and best route to your destination; you may want information concerning hotels; you may want special information on mountain driving, getting a car through the customs at Canada, or you may want to have arrangements made for taking your car abroad.

Members of the Chicago Motor Club obtain travel service at the main touring bureau downtown, at any of the thirty Cook county branches, and at the branches outside of Cook county in sixty-one counties in Illinois and northern Indiana.

You save money and you travel in greater comfort and security, when you get specialists to route you. Amateur road information is about as reliable as amateur information on weather conditions would be. The business of routing motorists is a highly specialized activity. Last year the touring bureaus of the Chicago Motor Club answered 310,267 calls for touring information. This was done by mail, by telephone and over the counters. The information given out was reliable and it was up to the minute.

Road conditions change overnight. Detours are established; new roads are thrown open for traffic. If you drove to New York over a certain route last year, would you take the same route this year? You might be wrong. Why guess?

Members are affiliated with motor clubs throughout the country. The Chicago Motor Club is one of 1,053 clubs affiliated with the American Automobile Association. In St. Louis, San Francisco, New Orleans or New York, you are always among friends. The touring bureaus of all affiliated clubs are at your disposal.

In addition to travel service, the club provides members with such services as these:

Free mechanical first aid and towing service at any hour of the day or night.

Bail bond service, which guarantees your appearance in traffic violation cases, where a bond not in excess of $100 is demanded.

Accident prevention work, which seeks to cut accidents, especially among school children, by means of safety posters and by fostering school boy patrols.

Home district service, which attends to special conditions around your home, such as seeing to it that refuse is promptly removed.

Insurance service, which provides the following features: The valued form policy, which in the event of total loss, pays the face value of the policy. Accessories are covered without additional charge. Last year the "exchange" returned cash savings to subscribers amounting to $711,332.11. Automobile insurance sales amounted to $3,894,706.04, more than the total sales in Illinois of the next three largest insurers.

These are a few of the many money saving services. Write or call for further information. There is a branch in your neighborhood.

RUSSIA OPENS NEW RAILWAY IN ASIAN WILDS

$100,000,000 Line Link with Turkestan.

AINABULAK, Kazakstan, Soviet Republic, April 28.—(AP)—Over lifeless deserts, trackless plains and peopleless mountain lands, once traversed by Alexander the Great, and Tamerlane the Conqueror, the soviet government today opened a modern 1,700 mile long railroad of its own construction, connecting the present central Asia railroad at Aris, Uzbekistan, with the great Trans-Siberian railway at Novosibersk.

The new road changes the whole face of middle Asia and transforms Kazakstan, which is the largest autonomous republic within the soviet federation, into a region of great potential economic significance.

Line Cost $100,000,000.

Next to the huge Dnieperestroy hydro-electric plant on the Iniepper river, which is being supervised by Col. Hugh L. Cooper, New York engineer, this new railroad, which was built entirely with native labor and without foreign techincal or financial assistance, is the greatest single mechanical achievement of the communist government since it came into power twelve years ago. It cost $100,000,000.

At the dedicatory ceremonies and celebrations, which will occupy several days, were Jan Rudzutak, soviet commissar of railroads, a number of other high government officials, and a large group of American and foreign correspondents, a special train having taken them over the 5,000 mile journey from Moscow.

Admit Foreigners to Turkestan.

It was the first time in the history of Russia that so many foreigners were admitted into the forbidden gates of Turkestan, the whole of Asiatic Russia having previously been closed to foreigners both by the czarist government and the soviet régime on account of its proximity to the Chinese, Afghan, and Indian borders.

The importance of the new railway rests in the fact that it will enable the government to supply to the primitive and undeveloped areas of Turkestan great quantities of wheat at low prices from the granaries of Siberia.

Turkestan will thus be freed from the necessity of raising wheat itself and will be able, in consequence, to enlarge its present cotton growing territories. The soviet government expects this expansion of the cotton growing fields to make the soviet union independent of the United States and Egypt for its cotton supply, on which in the past it had spent more than $70,000,000 annually.

The government will also be able to export abroad the wheat which it now sends to Turkestan from the Volga, the Ukraine and the North Caucasus. When the $250,000,000 irrigation works in Turkestan, which are being supervised by Arthur Powell Davis of Oakland, Cal., formerly head of the United States reclamation service, are completed, the soviet government expects even to export cotton.

RUSSIA OPENS $100,000,000 RAILWAY

Map shows new Turkestan-Siberian railway, which runs through lifeless deserts and mountains, from Aris, Uzbekistan, to Novosibersk. The new line connects the Central Asia railroad and the Trans-Siberian railway and opens up the isolated Turkestan and Kazakstan. It took four years to build. The road was built exclusively by Russian workmen.

ASKS ROOSEVELT FOR HIS STAND ON DRY LAW REPEAL

G. O. P. Leader Issues Challenge.

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—State Senator George R. Fearon of Syracuse, one of the leading aspirants for the Republican nomination for governor, questioned this evening the sincerity of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt on the prohibition issue and challenged him to say whether or not he was for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

After his speech Senator Fearon was cheered as "the next governor." In an interview afterward he said he favored repeal of the amendment, thus making himself the foremost anti-prohibition candidate for governor, but added that he was for enforcement as long as the amendment remained.

Puts Blame on Democrats.

Senator Fearon spoke at two Manhattan Republican clubs, those of the Twenty-third assembly district and of the Seventh assembly district. He charged the Democratic senators with permitting the killing of the Cuvillier bill to ask congress to call a constitutional convention for the repeal of the amendment on orders of the governor.

Senator Fearon's challenge obviously was intended to place Gov. Roosevelt in a dilemma in view of the governor's aspiration for the Democratic presidential nomination, a boom for which was launched here by Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana Saturday night.

"Able" to Run for President.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's health will not bar him from running for President in 1932 on the Democratic ticket, his close friends asserted positively today. The doubt expressed in Washington and elsewhere that Roosevelt may not be counted in the running as a candidate because of his physical condition was discounted and discarded here quickly and emphatically.

Mr. Roosevelt does not admit he is a candidate or that he has his eyes turned to 1932. He does not deny it and will not discuss it.

At the same time Democrats closest to Alfred E. Smith, former governor and nominee for President in 1928, suggested that Roosevelt should save himself for 1936.

ALCOHOL PUNCH PARALYZES NINE KANSAS WOMEN

Wichita, Kas., April 28.—(AP)—The Beacon said today that nine women, members of a bridge club in the fashionable College hill district here, were under the care of physicians following a bridge luncheon at the home of one of the members, where punch "spiked" with alcohol was served.

Three of the women were reported completely paralyzed, three others confined to their beds, having lost the use of their legs, and the others were able to get about only on crutches. Two of the women told their physicians they had but one drink of the punch and that they had partaken of no other alcoholic beverages for weeks.

Dr. M. H. Hostetler, county physician, today reported 25 new liquor paralysis cases outside the city in Sedgwick county. Twenty-eight men and one woman now are being cared for at an emergency dormitory at the county poor farm.

JUDGE CRAMPS STATE'S CASE AGAINST KOHLER

Editors' "Pilgrimage" Is Held Nonpolitical.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sheboygan, Wis., April 28.—[Special.]—Whether Gov. Walter J. Kohler's refusal to hand out political plums to his campaign workers after he was inaugurated will react against him in his trial under the corrupt practices act, which entered its second week today, is a question to which Wisconsin politicians now are awaiting the answer.

The trial hit the doldrums today, with the special prosecutors struggling to get in evidence against the governor concerning the political activities in which the Kohler company was involved, the examination being entirely confined to letters taken from the company files. These were searched earnestly by the state for some political texture or plot and offered in large numbers as "part of the chain," or "around the edge" testimony in which they hope to convict the governor by circumstantial evidence of a deliberate evasion of the $4,000 limitation on his campaign expenditures.

Aim at Milwaukee Men.

It takes on the color of a conspiracy trial, but the other alleged conspirators are still in the shadows. Frequent references to the activities and expenditures of the Milwaukee campaign committee, headed by George Gilkey, indicate that this is to become the center of the state attack soon.

Mr. Gilkey, a gray haired, benevolent looking gentleman, sat in court today for the first time conversing with Miss Marie Kohler, the governor's sister, in front row seats. Gov. Kohler sat behind his lawyers all day while his personal stenographer, George Meyer, was on the witness stand under the stubborn and oft repeated probing of Attorney Harold M. Wilkie.

Courtroom Is Crowded.

The astonishing part of the case is that, despite all this smother of dull and technical details, with scarcely a flareup of excitement all day, the courtroom remains crowded, many women and girls remaining there. They are getting some sort of a political education, at least.

Frank Prescott, Milwaukee assemblyman and one of the men who was active in the work of the Gilkey committee, remains in the courtroom for a reason. He is one of the eagerly awaited witnesses. He is a large and prosperous looking gentleman. R. A. Wipperman, who has been raising money for "conservative" Republican candidates in Wisconsin for many lean years, is also peering through the gloom of this case, pondering what he will be asked when he gets upon the witness stand.

Upon Wipperman, perhaps, or Prescott, the case will rest in the sense that the much discussed "agency" question must be settled before much of their testimony can be heard. It is a legal question upon which the court has indicated that he will be rather strict when the time comes.

Friends Exceeded Limit.

It comes down to this: Gov. Kohler's friends spent much more than $4,000 to help him. They spent, perhaps, $100,000. The defense is that this was all right. The theory of the prosecution is that it was all wrong. In order to make it legally wrong the spenders of the $80,000 must be shown legally to have been in some sense the authorized agents of the candidate.

Mere knowledge by the candidate of expenditures by others in his behalf is not to be considered in this case, Judge Gustav Gehrz said once today. It is the active participation of the candidate that must be shown.

Auditor Anton Braun of the Kohler company went on the stand late today and the invoices of the company will be searched for political disbursements.

Judge Gehrz took one argument away from the state today when he ruled that the visit of Wisconsin newspaper editors to the Kohler plant early in the campaign was not of a political nature.

WOMAN IN RACE WANTS RASKOB TO BE RETIRED

Lincoln, Neb., April 28.—(AP)—Entering the Nebraska senatorial campaign today, as the first Democratic candidate to file, Dr. Jennie Callfas of Omaha, who bolted the party in 1928, announced she would demand the removal of John J. Raskob, Democratic chieftain, in her Nebraska campaign.

"He's certainly out of place there," Dr. Callfas observed, explaining that her withdrawal in 1928 as a national committeewoman was partly because of Raskob's appointment.

THE FORGOTTEN CATEGORY.

Rear Admiral Moffett, who served as technical adviser on aviation at the London naval conference, returned to this country with some sound advice on the upbuilding of American sea power. Let the government build fast merchant ships, he said, in sufficient numbers to give us at least as many ships of this class as any other power possesses. They should be designed for conversion in time of war for duty as cruisers or airplane carriers. Let private companies operate them in peace time, subject to instant transfer to the navy should an emergency arise.

This program will appeal to all who regard the questions of parity and naval limitation realistically. The limitation of cruisers is an advantage to the nation which has the largest merchant fleet capable of being commissioned as ships of war. Great Britain has least to fear and most to gain from cruiser and carrier limitation. Great Britain, with her merchant fleet, sat through the naval conference with an ace in the hole. America is indebted to Rear Admiral Moffett for calling attention again to a category of ships in which our relative weakness may prove costly.

Carrying the thought a step farther, we should see that parity in fast merchant ships might be achieved more rapidly if, by treaty or enactment, our government should lay down the principle of reciprocity in trading privileges. For every British merchant ship, for example, which enters our ports we should insist upon an American ship of approximately the same class entering British ports. This rule we should make applicable, of course, to all the maritime nations. It should result in a rapid increase in our merchant fleet and possibly in a gradual reduction in the fleets of the foreign nations.

The arrangement is not without precedent. The same principle has been applied by foreign countries in their regulation of the importation of moving picture films from the United States. For every American film admitted, they say, Americans must take a specified quota of film produced in the importing country. This arrangement has been insisted upon by foreign governments desirous of building up their moving picture industries at the expense of ours and might well be adapted by us to our needs in seeking to build up an adequate merchant marine.

BUY THE GALAPAGOS.

As a natural preserve for wild life the Galapagos islands are unique on earth. Astride the equator, 600 miles west of Ecuador, they are traditionally the world's end, where few ships go and few men care to live. On their black volcanic slopes are living things unknown elsewhere. The marine iguana, the flightless cormorant, the dwarf penguin, the Galapagos albatross, the Galapagos mocking bird, duck, crab, and other living species there find their sole existence. The land tortoise, the sea lion, the flamingo, the land iguana, the sea turtle are as tame as little children there. The frigate birds and boobies eat from the hand. The gulls light on the traveler's shoulder.

But this natural Eden of the animals will not endure. Fishing parties come more frequently. Hunters land to kill and capture easy game. The animals of the Galapagos must be protected if they are to endure. Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Commander Eugene F. McDonald Jr., and other travelers have suggested recently that the islands or some part of them be made an animal preserve and sanctuary.

To Ecuador the islands now belong, but to that country they have small value. For the United States to buy them should not be difficult or costly. And as property of the United States they would bring more yearly trade and travelers to Guayaquil, in Ecuador, the nearest port, than now come there in ten years.

As a wild life preserve, as a meteorological and scientific station, as a casual refuge for American ships of war and peace, the islands and the deep bays of the Galapagos would have enduring value to the United States. Only one land like this exists. Before it is too late it should be preserved.

SHOCKING AN INDIANA SENATOR.

Among papers taken from the files of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment Senator Robinson, dry Republican of Indiana, found copies of letters from T. W. Phillips Jr., candidate for governor in Pennsylvania, to Justice Stone and the late Justice Sanford of the Supreme court in which there were statements criticising dry law legislation as tyrannous and predicting the doom of the government "if the judiciary lies down on its job."

Senator Robinson said this was the "most amazing thing I ever heard of." Senators from other states might have been amazed by the effrontery of a man writing in such a tone to the justices of the Supreme court, but the senator from Indiana could be astonished only because the sentiment was against and not for prohibition. The senator from Indiana is senator from Indiana by grace of two dominating organizations which have controlled elections in his state, one the Klu Klux and the other the Anti-Saloon league. The late Rev. Mr. Shumaker as superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league was sentenced to the prison farm for contempt of the Indiana Supreme court, he having tried to intimidate it by intimations of political reprisals unless its decisions conformed to prohibition desires. Senator Robinson has seen his supporters in Indiana try to punish independent judges by political action and his sense of propriety has not been offended. Any pretense of indignation from him in the case revealed in Washington would be quite shameless.

A LAW TO PROMOTE PAIN.

Representative Stephen Porter of Pennsylvania has introduced a number of bills at this session of congress for the control of the traffic in narcotics. One of the bills, establishing a bureau of narcotics, has already passed the house. A companion measure would forbid even a physician to dispense narcotics unless he was licensed to do so by the federal bureau.

The creation of a bureau of narcotics we regard as a doubtful expedient. The limitations on the right of a doctor to give drugs where he believes they are indicated we regard as something more than inexpedient; it is unsound in principle and is likely to cause much needless suffering in practice.

The tendency among legislators is to vote for any measure of narcotic control that the racketeers of the uplift propose. Congressmen fear that a vote against such measures will be regarded as a vote in favor of the dope traffic. They assume from the reading of much superheated propaganda that narcotics are wholly evil and that there is no legitimate use for them. The assumptions are false. Narcotics have caused much suffering to those addicted to their use, but viewed in perspective these drugs are a blessing rather than a curse to mankind. They have blotted out pain which could scarcely have been endured otherwise. They have saved many more lives than they have cost. Every medical school in the country gives careful instruction in the proper use of narcotics and every practitioner knows their habit forming character.

There is little danger in permitting doctors at least their present freedom in prescribing opiates, but there is much danger that additional red tape will mean additional human suffering which might have been relieved but for the government's interference.

IZAAK WALTONS.

"We pledge ourselves to restore for posterity the outdoor America of our ancestors," chants the Izaak Walton league from one coast to the other. The new chief, George Vincent, former head of the Rockefeller Foundation and of the University of Minnesota, will bring to the outdoor cause an evangelism and brilliancy of high order.

Already the league during its eight years of operation and the Izaak Walton Conservation Foundation under George E. Scott have brought strong hands to the defense of natural America, and the future promises even greater service. The great refuge of the upper Mississippi, comprising 300,000 acres of game lands and waters; the elk refuge of the Jackson Hole country, the Horicon marshes of Wisconsin, the Royal Gorge of Colorado, the Superior forests, the western duck refuges, the black bass laws and the stream pollution campaigns, the national forests for the east and middle west are monuments to their good will and vision. The campaigns under way for a national system of wild life refuges, the salvage of the Cumberland and the Potomac falls, of Currituck sound and Back bay in Carolina, the Capitol park system, show the great work to do. The pioneer loved and destroyed nature. Modern Americans, through the symbol of the Izaak Waltons, have resolved on its conservation.

Into the needs and structures of the modern era the Walton program fits in two important ways not often noted: As a field for constructive leisure a wholesome outdoor life offers high advantage, and in an industrial world, where leisure becomes more and more a cultural and an economic problem for producers and consumers both, this outdoor field is increasingly significant. To conserve the wild life and the woods and waters is to conserve also the best of human leisure and human living. On the farm problem, with its surplus acreage, the Walton programs also have a good effect. Saving swamps from drainage, restoring forest lands, saving the watersheds and river shores, turning the marginal acres under cultivation back to the woodlands, are of unquestioned value to the depressed farmer. The Izaak Walton league becomes of high significance in our national economy and culture.

The Walton league takes the problem of natural restoration back to the small communities where it first of all belongs. Three thousand Walton chapters are scattered across the continent. They labor locally as well as nationally for the defense of America's natural beauty. It is labor for a fine and patriotic cause.

Editorial of the Day

APPLAUSE AT CONCERTS.

[New York World.]

Messrs. Stokowski and Toscanini have at various times signified their displeasure with unduly enthusiastic applause, Mr. Stokowski having once gone so far as to deliver a harangue about it from the desk. Now in Philadelphia a number of concertgoers have been polled as to how they feel about it, and 900 have voted in favor of applause, with only 200 voting against it. We incline to side with the 900. Music, if it is anything, is an emotional experience, and emotion, if it is to be fully realized, demands an outlet. Applause furnishes this, imperfectly, perhaps, but satisfactorily enough in a large auditorium. Then what is the point in trying to repress it? To insist on silence during the whole progress of a concert is to change profoundly the whole nature of the performance; instead of being a gathering for the spontaneous enjoyment of music, as at present, it becomes a sort of ritual, and with considerably less point than a religious ritual. That is to say, instead of the musicians playing for the benefit of the audience, the audience would listen for the benefit of the musicians; and one suspects that most of the musicians had rather take the afternoon off and see a baseball game. It is very hard to shake off the feeling that preoccupation with the conduct of the audience on the part of these two gentlemen is a result of taking themselves a little too seriously at times.

POLITICAL ECONOMY.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the gibes fall where they may. W. M.

Farmers, You Must Plant Trees—because Chairman Legge says you must. You must plant trees instead of wheat, then if there is not so much wheat the farm board won't have to buy it in. You can plant any kind of trees you wish, farmers—hickory, pine, redwood, poplars, or anything else. But, farmers, if we were you we would plant mahogany. If you plant mahogany trees, then after they grow up you can chop them down and make your own pianos. Think how much cheaper it will be if you raise your own pianos than going to the store and buying 'em.

But wait, farmers, perhaps you had better plant cocoanut trees. Then you can get milk from the cocoanut and won't have to go out to the barn on a cold morning in January and argue with bossy. The cocoanut yields its rich, creamy milk quite freely and never puts its left hind foot in the milk pail or slaps you in the eye with its tail. There is a certain low cunning coupled with positive rudeness in a cow. She would rather kick over the milk bucket than chew her cud, but you needn't bother with her any more if you take our advice and plant cocoanut trees instead of wheat.

Coffee trees might be a good idea, too; then you would not have to bother to sell your wheat to buy coffee; you would raise your own. Perhaps you could graft the coffee tree on the cocoanut tree and then you could grow your own coffee with the cream already in it. It's a grand idea, farmers, and we hope you think it over.

DESERT ALIENS.

Have you seen the dawn come creeping to the Dune from Yesterday?
Have you watched those pagan nomads as they face the East to pray?

Flung across the sundering oceans flaming mirages appear,
And the beaten drums of summer, or the winter trumpets blown,
Bring again the solemn music of the deserts they have known.

And, although the remark is not recorded, Mr. Cain probably said: "Well, if he had behaved himself he wouldn't have been in there. It's his own fault." Even as you and I.

LIME WATER AND MILK.

THE old custom of adding lime water to the baby's milk has been abandoned because milk of itself is rather too alkaline to be easily digested. In recent years the effort has been to find ways of acidifying milk to be used by babies, and by many adults as well. One of these methods is by souring with various forms of bacteria. Another is by making use of buttermilk and sour milk resulting from the usual changes.

Another line of endeavor is to make milks more digestible by the addition of orange juice, lemon juice, or other fruit juices. A method that has met with the approval of some experienced baby specialists is the addition of lactic acid. Great advantages for lactic acid milk have been claimed and proved.

Drs. Gouce and Templeton propose the use of citric acid, the acid found in the juice of oranges, lemons, and other fruits, instead of lactic acid. The principal point of superiority they claim is ease and convenience. A quart of cow's milk is boiled. As it cools, but before it is cold, sixty grams of citric acid is added. In making lactic acid milk the milk is boiled, then chilled, and, lastly, the acid is added slowly and skillfully. The method, however good it may be, cannot be used in homes where there is no refrigerator, or no ice, and some skill and care in adding the acid is a requirement. Citric acid milk can be made in homes where there is no ice box [and this means in most of the homes] and rarely does the acidifying go wrong.

Drs. Gouce and Templeton used citric acid milk in feeding a considerable number of babies under good control. In some instances it was given to babies but a few months old. It was found to be easily digested, not to cause nausea, and not to harm the kidneys. If these physicians have done nothing more they offer baby feeders one promising addition to the group of methods from which to make choice.

NO PROOF OF "CATCHING."

Z. B. writes: Is arthritis catching in any sense of the word? Would one be apt to contract or get a germ by sitting in a room with a chronic case for eight hours a day?

REPLY.

We have tried to prove that rheumatism is communicable, but with little success. People in certain families, in certain houses, and in certain trades have more than their share of rheumatism, but that is poor proof. Certainly there is no danger in sitting in the room with a case of what you call chronic rheumatism.

SPINAL MENINGITIS PERIL.

Mrs. E. W. M. writes: We are having some spinal meningitis in this country. Since it is more or less prevalent all over, won't you please run a general article on what is known of its inception, spread, prevention, treatment, and control; and as to the season it may be expected if it is seasonal? Write something practical that the layman can grasp.

REPLY.

March is the meningitis month. As the cold and wet loosen the disease becomes less prevalent. The disease has been increasing in prevalence for two years. We hope next summer will find us beyond the peak. You cannot control the weather, but you can control another important cause of meningitis, and that is crowding, and particularly of boys and girls of college age. Sleeping two in a bed or even two in a room should be prohibited when meningitis threatens. If the dormitory method of housing is necessary the beds should be set far apart and part way screens should separate them. Heads should never be close together. Assembly in mess halls, chapels and study halls should be prevented or controlled.

These are the only methods of meningitis prevention that have proved of any great value.

IT WILL GROW BETTER.

Mrs. R. G. writes: My 2½ year old boy has myocarditis as an after effect of diphtheria.

1. Is it serious?
2. Will it get worse as he grows older?
3. What can I do to help remedy it?
4. He rested in bed for seven weeks and is now ready to get up. Do you think he has rested long enough?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. If he is properly cared for it should grow better.
3. Have a plan of living mapped out for him by a physician with experience in such cases. See that the boy follows this plan. Have the physician examine the boy periodically.
4. The most important part of the plan is regulation of exercise and play. The boy will play as much as his endurance will permit of.

HEREDITY PLAYS A PART.

D. O. C. writes:

1. Is height hereditary?
2. Is there any exercise to encourage growth?
3. I am 17 years old. What is the normal height for my age?

REPLY.

1. Yes. We may inherit stature from either parent or either grandparent. Occasionally inheritance harks back farther still.
2. Proper diet and ordinary exercise in moderation may help somewhat.
3. I could not answer your question without knowing your sex, race, your build, the size of the ancestor whose stature you seem to be inheriting.

SCHOOL BOUNDARIES IN AIRPORT IMPROVEMENT.

Chicago, April 24.—[Friend of the People.]—Now that the bond issue of $450,000 for the improvement of the Municipal airport has passed, would ask that you state the boundaries of the school section of land that has been under consideration in the enlargement plans for the airport. W. A. B.

The property owned by the board of education is bounded on the north by 55th street, on the east by Cicero avenue, on the south by 63d street, and on the west by Central avenue.

Acting Chief Clerk, Board of Education.

Chicago, April 23.—[Friend of the People.]—If a woman who was born in the United States marries a foreigner who has only his first papers does she automatically lose her citizenship? A. N.

Under the act of Sept. 22, 1922, any American woman who marries an alien on or after that date does not lose her citizenship, but if the marriage occurred before that date she assumed the citizenship status of her husband.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director of Naturalization.

SEE YOUR ALDERMAN.

Chicago, April 16.—[Friend of the People.]—Would it be possible to have signs erected on Racine avenue between 90th and 95th streets prohibiting heavy trucks from using this street? Inasmuch as Racine is in a residential district I cannot understand why heavy trucks are allowed to use this street.

MRS. W.

The prohibition of heavy traffic from a city street is a matter for action by the city council. The suggestion is made that the writer communicate with the alderman of the 19th ward. JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Deputy Superintendent of Streets.

TEXT BOOKS FOR CITIZENSHIP

Chicago, April 24.—[Friend of the People.]—Can you tell me where I may procure a book which gives the information that is necessary in order to take out final citizenship papers? I have had my first papers for about two years. J. A. H.

The government does not issue text books for distribution except to those candidates for citizenship who attend the free public evening schools.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director of Naturalization.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 29, 1865.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Secretary of War Stanton made this announcement: "A dispatch from Gen. Grant, dated Raleigh, N. C., April 26, states: 'Johnston surrendered the forces in his command, embracing all from here to the Chattahoochee, to Gen. Sherman on the basis agreed upon between Lee and myself for the Army of Northern Virginia.'"

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In a proclamation, President Andrew Johnson changed the date set by him for a day of special humiliation and prayer in consequence of the assassination of President Lincoln from April 25 to June 1.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Nearly 2,000 persons perished on April 27 when the boilers of the steamer Sultana exploded and the vessel burned and sank three miles below Memphis. On board were 2,000 Union soldiers who had been prisoners and were exchanged, and about 1,000 civilians, including twelve women and children.

CLEVELAND, O. — The funeral train of President Lincoln reached here this morning. Nothing occurred to mar the trip from Buffalo. A magnificent procession, composed of military and civic organizations, awaited here to meet the remains. A new building has been erected in the public square as a depository for the body while it is in the city. The remains will be on view from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., and it is estimated that 150,000 will move past the bier.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The excitement which prevailed here over the killing of J. Wilkes Booth, assassin of President Lincoln, has considerably subsided. While all regret the assassin, owing to the rashness of the soldiers engaged in the capture, was not taken alive, they at the same time felt grateful that the murderer had paid the penalty of his crime. What disposition was made of Booth's body it is impossible to ascertain, but that a disposal in keeping with his ignominious career was made is certain.

APRIL 29, 1900.

CHICAGO.—Deciding to meet the charges that have been brought against them, Chairman John W. Gates and President John Lambert of the American Steel and Wire company left for New York. Only the threat of prosecution took the head of the company east so soon. Mr. Gates refused to discuss the charges, but Max Pam, counsel for the company, issued a statement in New York. It said: "The publication of the institution of criminal proceedings cannot remain unnoticed. There is absolutely no foundation for such proceedings."

CHICAGO.—Admiral George Dewey will become the guest of Chicago tomorrow morning. The elaborate plans for his reception which have been under way for months were completed last night. The city has assumed its holiday attire and its people will unite to do honor to the great naval commander. The celebration in honor of the victory at Manila bay will last three days.

CHICAGO. — State Representative John F. O'Malley, who shot former Ald. William H. Lyman during a political quarrel on March 23, was indicted on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Lyman appeared in court on crutches.

CHICAGO.—The quadrennial conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, bringing together 725 delegates from all parts of the world and attracting an attendance of 15,000, will open in Chicago this week.

CHARLESTON, S. C.—George R. C. Todd, a brother-in-law of President Lincoln, died in Barnwell.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Arthur Edwards was elected president of the Chicago Woman's club to succeed Mrs. Penoyer L. Sherman. The Catholic Women's National league elected Mrs. J. B. Thorndyke president.

APRIL 29, 1920.

EL PASO.—American troops in El Paso were ordered to be prepared for action if events in Juarez or elsewhere in the neighboring section of Mexico bring danger to the border. Military police in the city have been issued rifles and ammunition, and the city police have made arrangements to patrol a deadline in the lower part of the city beyond which civilians will not be permitted to go in the direction of the Rio Grande. All troops at Fort Bliss were ordered into camps and barracks. Carranza forces in Chihuahua, capital of the state of that name, have driven out the rebel faction. The revolt is flaming all over northern Mexico.

THE SUGAR TARIFF.

Chicago, April 25.—I have just read the article published in your department which stated that a tariff on sugar was of advantage to the farmers of Utah but nobody else. I am afraid that the author of that article loses sight of the fact that the middle western farmers' troubles are not caused so much by the loss of markets for cotton, corn, and wheat as they are by the fact that states that used to import large quantities of these products are now actually producing a surplus.

There are hundreds of thousands of acres of land which could produce sugar cane and sugar beets which now are planted to cotton, corn, or wheat. Last year the American farmer produced almost one-third of all sugar consumed in the United States. If the tariff on sugar was increased to, say, four cents a pound the American farmer would produce practically all sugar consumed in the United States. The greatest benefit from such a tariff would not be the extra 200 million dollars from the sale of sugar, but it would be the taking of millions of acres of land out of competition with the farmer in the production of wheat, corn, and cotton and similar products. P. E. S.

MEXICAN LABOR.

Chicago, April 14.—Chicago and the Calumet district might well emulate the example set by an Iowa city having one of the largest cement plants in the world and formerly using mostly alien Mexican laborers. Through the efforts of Hanford McNider, the first American Legion commander, they were finally compelled to give native workers the preference, and I notice this company still operates and seems to make a profit. At this time especially, when millions are looking for work of any kind at any price, it seems rather strange that Mexicans are employed in the steel mills in Gary, Whiting, Indiana Harbor, etc., by the thousands while native workers, better equipped physically, would be glad to do the work at the same wage. CITIZEN.

THE YACHT CLUB.

Chicago, April 18.—If the Chicago Yacht club building to be erected on the lake front is on government property, I would like to know who gave this club permission to use this government property and how much they paid the government for this valuable site for a $2,000,000 structure. Or can I select a spot on the lake front and build a place there for myself, too, free? WORKINGMAN.

65 YEARS AGO.

Chicago, April 25.—Sixty-five years ago April 25 the remains of our martyred President Lincoln lay in state at the Chicago courthouse and about 30 German singers gathered and sang appropriately at the bier. These singers launched soon after the Germania Singing society and I believe only one charter member is alive today. This may be of historic interest to our generation. W. BODEMANN.

TAX REFORM.

Chicago, April 12.—Imagine a farmer who will increase the size of his woodlot by reforestation under an ad valorem tax. How asinine to ask a lumber company to restore forests under a system where they pay taxes on the land while the forests are being grown to maturity.

Imagine the absurdity of asking people to pay 5 per cent taxes on a savings account which nets them 4 per cent. Consider the asinine idea of taxing a home owner who takes care of his house, paints it, keeps it in good repair, maintains an attractive flower garden and lawn, when his taxes under those circumstances are higher than the house that is rented for revenue where the tenant just simply lets the place go to the dogs.

Wouldn't it seem reasonable to make a survey of the value of government protection and services to the residents of the state of Illinois on the basis of value received, including also those who do business in the state and enjoy similar governmental services without the payment of a dime in taxes commensurate with value received?

Isn't it about time that we approached the matter of taxation from the standpoint of encouraging thrift and saving and industry rather than penalizing it? Isn't it about time that we made a survey of the state situation as it affects the metropolitan area of Chicago so that a proper, just and equitable program might be worked out in order to restore progress and prosperity?

I am told that state banks and state bank stock cannot be taxed in any state more than the same amount of taxes as is levied against national banks. In Illinois this is by tacit understanding. Have we the courage to approach and adjust details on the basis of sound economics, or are we to lose valuable time and endure adversity when fair play and equity should rule? AXEL LONEQUIST.

THE CHILDREN'S CRUSADE.

Chicago, April 21.—Thousands of children are cleaning up the city's dirt. What are these children's fathers and mothers thinking about to let them clean up the muck and filth that they themselves are paying to have done by the city? What is the health department thinking about to let these children mingle with such conditions?

London papers please notice.

JIM CLARKE.

NOT ON THE PAY ROLL.

Chicago, April 23.—In reply to letter in your column, signed by Edward T. Milliken, in which he states that he worked as a watcher at the polls for the election commissioners' office and has now been told that he cannot be paid before two weeks, I beg to advise you that the records of this office have been consulted and we do not find the name of Edward T. Milliken appearing therein as one of the official watchers of this office on primary day, April 8, 1930.

CULLEN'S SLUSH CHARGES DENIED AT PARK HEARING

Inquiry Is Started by Shanahan Committee.

Denials that the pay rolls of the west park system are padded with political job holders sponsored by the city hall group, as charged by James J. Cullen, a member of the park board, were made yesterday at the first meeting of the committee appointed by Gov. Emmerson to investigate the charges. The committee, headed by State Representative David E. Shanahan, met with the commissioners in the board rooms at Garfield park.

W. R. James, president of the board, and John Pelka, treasurer, presented evidence to refute the charges made by Cullen. Commissioners Theodore Bunte, John P. Garner, Eden T. Brekke and Philip E. Gilbert, denied there has been any pay roll padding or that any one had been carried on the pay rolls without having work to do.

Makes Charges in Writing.

Cullen presented his charges to the committee in writing. Shanahan remarked that the statement did not include evidence of the charges. Cullen replied that he was submitting what he had heard and he did not have further proof to offer at this time, but said he would have more evidence at the next hearing.

After hearing testimony for two hours the committee adjourned to examine the board's records. Shanahan said the committee will meet with the commissioners again, probably on Thursday.

After the hearing, Cullen said he would submit his charges and a record of the day's testimony to the state's attorney with the request for a grand jury investigation of the records. He told the committee that its investigation would not bring out the facts because the park employés are not testifying under oath.

Cullen charged that the monthly pay rolls have been increased nearly $25,000 during March and April. George Barrett, attorney for Pelka, declared that instead of an increase there has been a marked reduction in operating expenses despite the fact that 110 employés have been hired to take care of eight new buildings and seven miles of new boulevard opened within the last year.

Tells of Economy.

This was made possible Barrett said by discharging a number of unnecessary employés at a monthly saving of $8,700. Barrett also stated that a number of temporary employés were hired last month to clear the boulevards and walks following the blizzard, and others were employed to prepare the parks for the spring activities.

In reply to Cullen's charges that Pelka has acted as president of the board during James' absence in place of Bunte, the elected vice president, Bunte said he had asked that Pelka handle the routine work because he knew more about board affairs.

In one case, cited by Cullen as a violation of the park board's civil service rules a cripple, with several year's experience as a clerk in the park offices, had been discharged as an economy measure but was rehired as a gardener, at the request of James, and permitted to perform his old duties as a clerk, at a reduced salary.

Ald. Arthur F. Albert, who was engaged by Cullen as counsel, was not present at the meeting, but will attend the next hearing, Cullen said.

AUSTIN H. S. BOY, MISSING 2 WEEKS, SOUGHT BY KIN

The police were asked yesterday to search for Frank Donofrio, 15 years old, a pupil of the Austin High school, who has been missing from his home for the last two weeks. The police learned that he had attended school on April 9. From that date his parents have had no trace of the boy. His father, Michael, fears that he may have met with a serious accident.

WHIM SLAYER BALKS QUIZ BY STATE ALIENISTS

August Vogel, so-called whim slayer, refused to allow Dr. Francis J. Gerty and Dr. H. Douglas Singer, state alienists, to examine him as to his sanity, it was learned yesterday when Assistant State's Attorneys Charles Mueller and Walker Butler asked Judge Walter P. Steffen in the Criminal court to enter an order compelling the examination. Vogel filed an insanity petition on the eve of his scheduled electrocution for the murder of Lyle Perrenoud.

Judge Steffen ruled that under the precedent set in the Russell Scott insanity hearing he could not compel Vogel to give evidence against himself. The Supreme court in that case reversed the jury's verdict of sanity because Scott was forcibly examined. Judge Steffen said that he could only enter an order permitting the alienists to enter the jail.

Suspect Exonerated in Killing of Policeman

Stanley Wandarski, 27 years old, 2437 West Adams street, arrested Monday night on the suspicion that he was Stephen Cygon, wanted in connection with the murder of Policeman John Chiska, who was killed in 1928 by two bandits, was released yesterday by the Cragin police when they learned that Wandarski was in a hospital at the time of the murder.

Joseph Kadziolka, 43 years old, 4306 Crystal street, sat in the defendant's chair in Judge Daniel P. Trude's court yesterday and heard his two sons tell a jury how he had threatened his wife, Mary, for weeks and then had stabbed her to death. His younger son, Edward, 11 years old, saw the stabbing and described for the jury the final scene between his father and mother.

Kadziolka, who worked for 15 years for an engineering company on the northwest side before he was jailed as the slayer of his wife, talked for a few minutes to Edward just before the boy was called as the main state witness. When a recess was declared between the time the jury was sworn in and the calling of witnesses the defendant, with a bailiff following him, walked to the front row of spectators' seats and started to talk to his son.

"We object to the defendant talking to our witness even if he is the boy's father," said Prosecutors Owen West and Harold Keele to Judge Trude.

Kadziolka was sent back to the cellroom and Edward, wearing his first pair of long trousers, was called before the judge and questioned as to what his father had said to him.

"The defendant is your father and it was your mother who was killed," Judge Trude said to the boy. "You are to tell the truth and nothing but the truth no matter whom it hurts when you take that witness stand."

The jury was called back into the room and the boy told his story. He answered all questions directly and volunteered no information. Many of his answers consisted of a curt "Yes" or "No." He showed no disposition to shield his father, who sat with his head in his hands. The boy was also questioned by Attorney Thaddeus C. Tudor, representing the father.

The Boy's Story of Slaying.

"Father said to my mother, 'Pack my clothes, I am leaving.'" testified Edward. "Mother said: 'Do it yourself.' Father then handed her his will, and I don't know where he got the knife, but he stabbed her. That is all."

Edward and his brother, Matthew, 14 years old, who was the second state witness, also told of previous threats made by the father to kill their mother. Kadziolka wrote out his will, leaving all his possessions to his sons before the stabbing, the jury was told. Mrs. Kadziolka had left him three days before and started divorce proceedings, according to the boys' story.

Attorney Tudor told the jurors that he will plead that his client became temporarily insane and intended to kill both his wife and himself. Jealousy of another man, Tudor said, was the cause of the trouble.

SENATE PASSES UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF BILLS

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—Two of three unemployment measures sponsored by Senator R. F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.]—one to speed a 150 million dollar public building program and another to provide for the gathering of accurate statistics—were passed by the senate today without a dissenting vote, and the third, proposing to create a federal employment agency, was made the unfinished business by a vote of 37 to 32.

Consideration of the latter, which would authorize an appropriation of $4,000,000 for the operation of a federal employment agency to coöperate with state agencies, was vigorously opposed by Senators J. E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], the majority leader, who protested against "disruption" of the steering committee's legislative program.

Create Stabilization Board.

The first of the three bills would create a federal employment stabilization board, consisting of the secretaries of the treasury, commerce, agriculture, and labor, which would map out a long program of public works construction for periods of depression. Data on employment conditions and business trends gathered under the second bill would be furnished to the public as well as to the stabilization board.

Senator A. H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], while expressing sympathy with the Wagner program, pointed out that the proposed 150 million dollar appropriation for public buildings during depressions would "increase tax burdens at a time when they should not be increased."

Walsh Criticises President.

Senator D. I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.] interjected a criticism of President Hoover for "failure to deal with the situation," which the Massachusetts senator declared "is infinitely more important than the subjects we have been discussing—naval limitations, the world court, and the prohibition problem."

League of Women Voters Convention Faces Fight Over Birth Control Issue

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 28.—[Special.]—That vaunted southern hospitality, soft spring weather, and prospects of unruffled harmony this morning enveloped the vanguard of the 1,000 delegates expected here for the tenth anniversary gathering of the National League of Women Voters, opening today. But by noon only the Kentucky welcome remained unblurred.

For the smiling skies frowned suddenly and loosed a drenching shower on the groups of smartly attired women scuttling into and out of convention headquarters in the Brown hotel.

The New York delegation was reported heading for Louisville with a proposition sponsored by Mrs. Chauncey J. Hamlin, first vice president of the state organization, to place birth control on the program of the league. It will bring a bitter battle. Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under Wilson, and one of the main speakers, was announced to be bedfast and unable to fill the engagement.

The initial speaker, Representative William Williamson of Rapid City, S. D., loosed a lengthy and caustic criticism against what he termed the "rutted, unprogressive bureaucracy," the "multiplied layers of barnacles" on governmental administration at Washington, clogging federal administration with gordian knots of red tape. Williamson is chairman of the house committee on expenditures in the executive departments.

Bureaucracy Is Assailed.

"Like Topsy," he pointed out, "the government has grown till nothing short of the surgeon's knife can bring it into a semblance of a coördinated whole. To supply the knife is the business of our committee.

"There is only one large scale employer in the country, so far as I know, that is not engaged in business for profit, and that is the federal government. Upon its pay rolls at present are approximately 590,000 employés. This is a staggering total for peace time operation of the government.

"Few of these people give any attention to working out more efficient methods or make the slightest effort at economy. The tendency is to expand the personnel and diminish the output of the individual. Enlargement adds to their feeling of importance and occasionally aids in boosting their salaries.

"If the government could adopt methods that obtain in every successful business I am confident that at least one-fourth of our personnel could be dropped with no detriment whatever to the services rendered.

"Reorganization, however, languishes. The bureaucrats still dominate the situation. Political dynamite still is hidden in every cranny and crevice."

Public understanding and public opinion backing administration efficiency and reform constitutes the most powerful weapon that can be employed in this situation, Representative Williamson told the convention.

Rowell Discusses Naval Parley.

Weighing the success and the failure of the recent naval conference at London, Chester H. Rowell of Berkeley, Cal., asserted regarding the three power and the five power pacts, "these two contracts, which might be set aside in court as not obligating anybody to anything, are a very valuable accomplishment. Secretary Stimson and his colleagues are entitled to commendation for what they have done.

"The direct failure of this conference to accomplish more," he continued, "may be laid on the broad shoulders of Mussolini. He will be delighted if the world blames him for it. Like our 'jingoes,' he regards the condemnation of foreigners as the highest praise.

"It will be enough if we agree to do nothing—absolutely—in the event of a blockade of the high seas by other nations against a treaty breaking aggressor. Unless we are willing to do that, the only other national course is to build a navy that can 'lick the world.'"

Calls Defense "Nonsense."

Dr. John Henry Gray, head of the department of economics of the graduate school at the American university, Washington, this evening lambasted the present tariff bill and incidentally denounced national preparedness before the general assembly of the convention.

"The safety of any nation today," he declared, "depends on good will, friendship, and coöperation, not on military and naval armaments; the stronger the nation the truer this is; the talk of military preparedness and being ready to defend one's self is pure nonsence.

"In the midst of tension and fear of this country, we are apparently about to pass the most outrageous tariff bill ever proposed in any nation, a bill which if enacted and enforced, brings domestic hardships and suffering to every nation in the world."

Over 97% of "L-M-C" Policies renewed annually

. . automobile insurance that wins and holds policyholders

Year after year more than 97% of "L-M-C" policyholders renew their policies. That's a striking record in a field as highly competitive as automobile insurance.

The "L-M-C" writes more than double the amount of automobile insurance of any other Illinois company and writes more automobile insurance than any other mutual, stock-participating company, inter-insurance exchange or Lloyds in the United States.

Here, briefly, are the factors that have contributed to this unusual result . . .

1. A substantial dividend to policyholders every year—never less than 25% of the automobile insurance premium.
2. Nationwide claim service—wherever you go there is an "L-M-C" branch office or claim service representative near at hand.
3. Complete protection—"L-M-C" is an acknowledged leader in automobile insurance. Cash assets total over $11,500,000.00.

Confidence—the basis of all business, the foundation of all permanent growth—has created in Philadelphia a newspaper condition which exists in no other great metropolitan market in America.

The confidence of the Philadelphia home has given The Evening Bulletin a circulation coverage that is unique in newspaper history: A market of 572,600 homes; a circulation of 555,711 copies daily, almost entirely concentrated in this metropolitan area.

The confidence of business gives The Evening Bulletin, year after year, more retail store advertisements than all other Philadelphia newspapers, daily and Sunday, combined.

The confidence of advertising agencies and advertisers, everywhere, gives The Evening Bulletin, in six days, more national advertising lineage than any Philadelphia daily and Sunday newspaper.

A great city has been won to this newspaper by thirty-four years of day-after-day performance; beginning in 1895 with a mere handful of readers; growing through a third of a century to undisputed leadership in the Philadelphia territory, to a place among the great newspapers of America.

A permanent growth in which premiums or prizes, coupons or circulation contests had no place, in which scare headlines or sensational news treatment played no part.

Philadelphia, today, presents an outstanding merchandising opportunity. Here in America's Third Largest Market, with its annual "billion dollar" volume in retail sales, one newspaper reaches nearly every home in city and suburbs, at an unusually low advertising cost.

P. B. McCULLOUGH TO QUIT AS STATE G. O. P. CHAIRMAN

Committee Will Meet in Springfield Today.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Perry B. McCullough of Lawrenceville announced at Springfield last night that at today's meeting of the Republican state central committee there he will not be a candidate for re-election as chairman.

"While a number of the members of the committee have arrived in Springfield, I do not know of any agreement or understanding as to who will be elected to succeed me," Mr. McCullough said.

McCullough, who represents the Twenty-third congressional district on the committee, was chosen two years ago to head the Emmerson campaign because this is Gov. Emmerson's own district. Since that time he has been appointed state superintendent of foods and dairies, and he says his duties in this position preclude his taking an active part in the fall campaign this year.

Brandon May Also Quit.

It also is reported that Gov. Emmerson has said he feels that members of his official family shouldn't be kept in control of the party machinery of the state, a remark believed to forecast also the retirement of the committee secretary, Rodney H. Brandon, now director of public welfare. Mr. Brandon could not be reached last night.

While Chairman McCullough was vague concerning the selection of his successor, gossip at the capital continued to dwell on the name of Cornelius J. Doyle, former secretary of state, who was elected to the committee from the Twenty-third or Springfield district three weeks ago today.

Chairman McCullough explained the reason for calling today's meeting, a subject that had puzzled many of the Cook county members.

"The primary law requires that the state central committee must organize within thirty days after its members are elected," he said, "and therefore it was my duty to call this meeting although we haven't received our certificates of election."

Delay in Cook County.

It is probable the Cook county members will not have their certificates of election until next week because of delays in the official canvass.

The election board worked far into the night examining judges and clerks whose returns were tangled. The only development of general interest was an indication a final count will give Congressman "Leaky Trunk" Michaelson a slight lead for the renomination over James C. Moreland. With one precinct missing Michaelson was leading by 49 votes, the count being: Michaelson, 28,783; Moreland, 28,734. Moreland is preparing to file contest proceedings in the Circuit court.

WATERWAY BILL UNDER ATTACK OF VANDENBERG

Senator Says Measure Needs Changes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—[Special.]—Senator A. H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] today launched an attack upon the Illinois waterway and Erie canal provisions of the $111,000,000 rivers and harbors bill, which was passed on Friday by the house. Senator Vandenberg, a member of the senate commerce committee, which is now considering the bill, served notice that he will attempt to hold up the entire measure unless it is materially amended. The commerce committee will meet tomorrow to decide upon its program in connection with the bill.

"I do not believe that the senate will approve the fat rivers and harbors bill in any such form as it was jammed through the house at a single high pressure sitting," said Senator Vandenberg. "Too many projects are traveling incognito. They are too mysterious to be safe or acceptable. There are too many presents on the Christmas tree. The bill must be debunked."

Wants Diversion Limited.

With respect to the Illinois waterway provision Senator Vandenberg, as a representative of one of the lake states which have opposed Illinois and Chicago on the water diversion question, will demand the inclusion of a proviso limiting the ultimate diversion to 1,500 cubic feet per second, the amount specified in the Supreme court decree, unless a greater flow is authorized through a compact of the lake states. Senator Vandenberg is not satisfied with the proviso now in the bill, under which the army engineers would be required to construct the waterway so as to use "the smallest flow of water with which said project can be practically accomplished in the development of a commercially useful waterway."

Points to Court Ruling.

"For 30 years the Great Lakes states have been fighting the illegal water diversion at Chicago," said Senator Vandenberg. "Canada has found this diversion to be a reason for hesitating to proceed with the St. Lawrence program. The Supreme court finally sustained us on April 14, 1930. One week later this bill was introduced. Under cover of pious but elastic language, which pretends to reserve our legal rights, it licenses whatever minimum flow of diversion is necessary to develop 'a commercially useful waterway.'"

SAYS 600 MILLIONS WOULD STOP FLOODS ALONG MISSISSIPPI

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—A prediction that the expenditure of 600 million dollars for construction of storage reservoirs would "end forever" disastrous floods on the Mississippi and its tributaries was made before the house flood control committee by Representative Sears [Rep., Neb.].

Quoting several governors of western Mississippi valley states as being favorable to this plan of flood control, the Nebraskan, who is author of a bill to authorize an appropriation of $750,000,000 to construct the reservoirs, said work should be started at once.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., April 28.—Carl Reynolds was the main wild man in a wild ball game here this afternoon. The Sox won, 9 to 7, and Carl's part was a triple, after which he scored the first run of the game, a single which was a factor in a four run rally in the sixth, and a homer with one on in the seventh, which brought the Sox from the rear where they had been cast by a five run Tiger onslaught in the sixth.

It was the fifth game won by the Sox and the first which the Chicagoans have taken by a margin of more than one run. The one run idea would have prevailed at that, if Ted Lyons hadn't made up his mind to go around the bases in the ninth inning.

Bush expects to send Faber to the box tomorrow, while Whitehill is scheduled to hurl for the Tigers.

Jolley Drives in Reynolds.

J. Smead Jolley was the runner-up in the awakening hero stuff. Smead drove in the first run of the game with a sizzling single in the fourth and drove in two runs with another crash in the sixth, later scoring himself. But his batting wasn't all. He made a throw to third for a double play that made the Tigers' hair stand on end.

Nary a Comiskey reached first base off a 21 year old rookie named Whitlow John Wyatt until one was down in the fifth. At this point, however, Reynolds collected with a fast one, a perfect triple in dead right center. Clancy lined to McManus for the second out, but Jolley tore off Aker's glove with a smoky drive, Reynolds scoring. Kamm then fanned for the second time.

It was in the last of the fourth that Jolley demonstrated that the slighting things they'd been hearing about his fielding prowess were not meant to apply to his throwing. Gehringer opened with a double to left, McManus sent a fly to Jolley to deep right, and Gehringer sought to go to third after the catch. No artilleryman could have made a better shot with a cannon. J. Smead threw out Gehringer by three feet. Alexander ended the inning with a fly to Reynolds.

The Sox hung up their second marker in the fifth without the aid of a base hit. Moore was hit by a pitched ball and was forced by Smith. Smith stole second, then stole third, and came home on Autry's sacrifice fly to Funk. Henry was out, Alexander to Wyatt.

Sox Take Lead.

In the last of the fifth the Tigers made four hits in a row to tie the score.

The idea of making four hits in a row with none out appealed to the Sox and they tried it themselves at the very first opportunity, the first of the sixth. Cissell singled to center and stopped at second on Reynolds' single to left. The bases were full when Clancy beat out a bunt to McManus. Jolley stepped and smacked the first pitch for a single to center, scoring Cissell and Reynolds, Clancy stopping at second.

Herring relieved Wyatt. The runners moved up on Kamm's sacrifice bunt. Smith sent a sacrifice fly to Funk, Smith scoring and Jolley taking third and proceeding home when Funk's throw got away from Hayworth.

In the sixth inning Henry was hammered from the box during a rally which netted the Tigers five runs. He was replaced by Lyons.

It didn't take the Sox long to resume the lead. Lyons walked, passed while Cissell popped to Gehringer, and trotted home when Reynolds got his homer off the top of the scoreboard in left center. Gehringer threw out Clancy and Carroll threw out Jolley.

Lyons opened the ninth with a single, went to second on a wild pitch, to third on an infield out, and scored on Clancy's sacrifice fly.

DERBY CANDIDATES

Something about the starters in the $50,000 race at Churchill Downs which will be renewed for the 56th time on May 17.

Flying Ebony, daddy of Flying Heels, won the Kentucky Derby of 1925. Earl Sande booted him home just after a rainstorm had soaked the track and some 70,000 spectators. Flying Ebony's sire was The Finn. Other noted sons of The Finn were Kai Sang, Coventry, and Zev, the latter the highest money winning horse of all time.

As a 2 year old Flying Heels started 10 times. He won seven of his engagements and was second in his other three starts. The Beasel beat him at Jamaica on Oct. 5, Caruso dusted him off at Saratoga on Aug. 15, while Peto whipped him at Empire July 27. He never hooked up with Whichone, Boojum, or Gallant Fox. His victories included the Futurity at Tia Juana early in the spring of 1929 and the Pimlico Futurity last Nov. 1. He won in every kind of going.

Flying Heels hasn't started this spring but his workouts around New York lately have been sensational. His trainer is Henry McDaniel, who is able to point a horse for a race and get him to the post in top condition.

RIOS, EVANS, AND NORMAN, O'DOWD BATTLE TO DRAW

Tommy Rios, South Chicago middleweight, and Jimmy Evans of San Francisco last night fought a draw in one of the eight round bouts of a double windup at White City. Rios weighed 151¾ and Evans 152½.

The other eight-rounder also resulted in a draw between Edgar Norman, Norwegian light heavyweight, and Tuffy O'Dowd of Pocatello, Idaho. Norman outweighed the Idaho fighter six and one-half pounds, scaling 170 to 163½ for O'Dowd.

A scheduled six round encounter between Jimmy Gibbons of St. Paul, a protege of Mike Gibbons, and K. O. Kitts of Chicago was stopped at the end of the second round and declared "no contest." Kitts appeared to be no match for the St. Paul heavyweight.

Andy Shanks of Chicago knocked out Art Malay, also of Chicago, in the first round. They are heavyweights. Phil Ross, Chicago welterweight, pounded out a four round decision over Paul Schiffer, Chicago.

BRITISH PATIENCE DOESN'T EXTEND TO FAKED SPORTS

They Won't Even Tolerate Scalping Racket.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 28.—Although the cup final or championship soccer game between Arsenal and Huddersfield at Wembley stadium last Saturday, drew 100,000 people, including King George in person, and would have drawn 100,000 more customers if there had been room for them, none of the dispatches from London has made any mention of a ticket scalping scandal. For that matter, one never hears of a ticket scalping scandal in connection with any English sporting event, and one steeped in the American tradition of showmanship is given to wonder why this is.

It cannot be that the English showmen are not smart because they invest their major exhibitions with a swank that even Mr. Rickard himself, who frankly admired the rich for their wealth and the prominent for their prominence, never was able to imitate. Mr. Rickard felt honored and was inclined to boast if he had a scattering of millionaires and half a dozen governors at one of his prize fights, but he never had the President of the United States among his guests.

It's Just a Political Duty.

It is true that the President sometimes attends the world series ball games, but when he does he seems to regard it as a duty to his party and, while lending his physical presence, his attitude indicates resignation, not interest. In England the king not only attended the cup final Saturday afternoon but walked out on the football field and shook hands with the players of both teams, pausing as the dispatches said, to say a few words to each one. He did this without apparent sacrifice of dignity, but I don't believe any one in this democracy ever has had the gall to suggest that the President should leave his box at a world series game and shake hands with the members of the contending teams.

I suppose the English showmen know all about the American practice of scalping tickets to the customers at such times as the demand exceeds the supply, for the English are very alert to the operations of the law of supply and demand in all lines of commerce. It may be that they have an old fashioned conception of the showman's duty toward the customers who keep him prosperous, but I have an idea that it is the English customer himself who regulates matters and keeps the promoters honest.

It's a Matter of Temperament.

Mr. Rickard used to say that any promoter who would refuse to sell blocks of seats for cash to speculators for resale to the customers at a great advance in price was a bad business man, arguing that the speculators' money was as good as any other money and that it was none of his business what the speculators charged the ultimate consumer. But the temperament of the American customer is quite different from that of the Englishman, who would be likely to do without his prize fights and his musical comedies if he were turned away from the box office and then discovered seats on sale across the street for 50 per cent or 100 per cent more.

I wonder how many tickets the English would have bought for the cup final of last Saturday if an American showman had had charge of the price scale. There would have been a great temptation to bear down on the people and to slip out blocks of tickets through some side door into the hands of a speculator who would be willing, in turn, to split profit with the promoter or the promoter's box office man. The American customer resents this, but his resentment is never expressed in anything more effective than a grumbling comment that he is being denied his rights.

Not only in the matter of ticket scalping but in the other, more serious impositions on the clientele, the Americans are noted for their patience and their forgiving nature. If Primo Car-

Boy Student Learns How to Chip, Putt

Herbert Brin, one of the four boys in THE TRIBUNE'S novice golf contest, began to learn the game yesterday under the tutelage of Jimmy Weager, professional at Edgewater. Weager started Herbert on those shots which have won and lost so many championships, the chip and putt.

First, of course, Weager began with the grip, for, like most boys, Brin grabbed a mashie as if it were a baseball bat and he was intending to knock a ball over the fence. With a mashie in the normal position for a golf shot Weager had 15 year old Herbert grasp the club with the fingers of his left hand, the thumb crossing the shaft. Then he turned his hand inward so the V formed by the thumb and first finger pointed directly toward the center of his torso.

Weager Illustrates Grips.

Impressing on the lad that the club must be held in the fingers, Weager put Herbert's right hand on the grip below the left hand, again holding the club in the fingers. Sliding this hand up, Weager loosened the little finger until it slipped over the first finger on the left hand, the thumb again crossing the shaft and not on top of it. Then he turned the right hand inward until the V between the thumb and first finger wos directly in line with the V of the left hand, both pointing to the center of the body.

With the grip firmly set Weager moved on to the chip shot. Dumping a bag of practice balls a short distance off the green, Weager proceeded to the second principal part of the first lesson—the business of learning to hit with the club head. He ignored explaining the wrist action to avoid confusing the youngster, preferring to get the correct snap of the wrists through correct action of the club head.

Starting with the stance Weager posed Herbert with his feet quite close together, his arms hanging straight, and then began to let him hit short chip shots to the hole, bringing his hands back easily and only a short distance. Weager's own words, as he criticized and explained what

STAGG DEFENDS PREP TOURNEY FROM ITS FOES

Says Most High Schools Favor Cage Meet.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago explained last night why he fights to retain the university's national basketball and track competitions.

"When I am convinced high schools are opposed to meets sponsored by universities and colleges I will withdraw by plea for them," he said.

Mr. Stagg referred to the ban of the National Federation of High School Associations on invitational prep meets. It prohibits all high school sports activities supervised by colleges and universities. Northwestern cannot hold its track, wrestling, and swimming meets. The University of Wisconsin's academy basketball tournament and invitational high school track meets held in connection with the Drake relays are included.

Order Members to Stay Out.

The federation has two means for control.

State associations have ordered members not to compete in invitational tourneys. However, teams from states not affiliated with the federation continued to attend these meets. These schools largely composed the national basketball meet this year.

The other bar to interscholastic tournaments is the proposed resolution of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. This would prohibit "member colleges" from conducting meets. Failure to obey "shall be taken into consideration in accrediting any higher institution of learning." Credits of offending university would not be accepted. The resolution in final form will be presented at the next meeting.

Thinks Majority for Meets.

The University of Chicago is a member of the North Central association. Last Saturday the university's committee on athletics met to decide whether invitational interscholastics should be continued, and Vice President Frederic Woodward, chairman of the committee, was authorized to appoint a subcommittee for further investigation. Coach Stagg pleaded for a continuance of the meets.

"I feel I have made progress," he said last night, "and I believe the investigation will show a majority of high schools favor interscholastics.

"I do not believe the men representing the state associations in the national federation reflect the attitude of their schools," Coach Stagg continued. "Until I am convinced, I will not withdraw my plea.

"My opponents say interscholastics overemphasize sport.

MAKING GOOD

Thumbnail sketches of new major league baseball players of promise—where they were developed and their attainments.

GUS SUHR.

Barney Dreyfus, owner of the Pirates, so far has no reason to regret the expenditure of the several thousands of dollars that brought Gus "Goose" Suhr to his team.

Suhr was purchased from the San Francisco club on the theory that he could hit big league pitching and handle the first base defensive labors in acceptable fashion. With the season a couple of weeks under way, he has shown that the advance dope on him was not exaggerated. He has fitted perfectly into an attack that even before he came had the respect of all the pitchers in the league.

Suhr is 23 years old. He began to take baseball seriously when he was a mere kid growing up around the open spaces of Frisco, where more than one major league notable had his start. When he was 17 the Frisco club picked him up just as it picked up Kamm, P. Waner and a dozen others. He was green, but had possibilities, so he was sent to the Three Eye league for a brief workout. He then was recalled to spend almost four years with his home town team.

It was only last season that the spot for which he was intended was located. He was tried at short, at second, and at third. The fielding at these posts was a bit too complicated for him. But he could hit, so the Frisco experts decided he was a first sacker. He was. Last year he not only fielded well enough to keep the job away from other aspirants, but also delivered fifty-one home runs. He also rolled up quite a record as a run scorer and for driving others home.

BASEBALL CHIEFS TO SEE 1ST GAME PLAYED AT NIGHT

Des Moines, Ia., April 28.—(AP)—Under giant floodlights, turning night into day, Des Moines and Wichita of the Western league will open the Demons' 1930 home stand on Friday before the greatest gathering of baseball's elite ever congregated in Iowa.

Headed by Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high mogul of all baseball, executives of major and minor leagues will be in the stands when Lee Keyser sends his Demons against the Aviators in a game which is being hailed as the greatest experiment in modern baseball history.

Keyser himself believes the game will mean the "salvation or the ruination" of minor league baseball.

"If the game is successful, as we have every hope it will be, I look for most of the minor leagues to follow the example of Des Moines and install floodlights for night baseball," he said today. "If it is unsuccessful, it will mean that sooner or later the minor league clubs will have to go out of business, due to the steady decrease in patronage."

REDS CONSIDER PLANS.

Cincinnati, O., April 28.—(AP)—Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, has evinced an interest in night baseball. He plans to go to Des Moines Friday to make a personal inspection of the working of the system installed by the Western league club there.

"So many people are unable to attend in the afternoon, except on Sundays and holidays," Weil said, "that I am much interested in the experiment. If it works in the minors it might be a good thing in the majors, too. Anyway, a new idea in baseball is always worthy of investigation."

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The title holding Cubs revived the custom of hitting for distance yesterday, and the results were highly satisfactory. They exploded four drives which cleared the Wrigley field barriers and in other ways picked up three additional runs for a grand total that let down the Pirates 7 to 4 in the second of the series.

The home run party of which Gabby Hartnett was the organizer with two, Cliff Heathcote and Charley Root assisting, probably was staged as a welcome to the two intermittent cripples—Rogers Hornsby and Lester Bell. The Rajah was back on second and Bell on third. Their presence undoubtedly revived the team morale, but the heel of the former is still bothersome and the arm of the latter shows only a flicker of life. Hence the length of their stay is indefinite.

Root Handcuffs Pirates.

Root not only offered a homer in behalf of the champions' cause, but also contributed some excellent hurling, barring two innings. For four rounds he didn't even permit a Pirate to reach base. Meanwhile, the homers of Heathcote and Hartnett, with a triple by Cuyler thrown in, had given the champs a 3 to 0 start on Jess Petty, who confined himself to four innings of labor.

When Root finally weakened he did it with emphasis. He was assaulted for five hits, which scored three runs, in the fifth. He was hammered more in the sixth, one run giving the Pirates the lead. Gabby's second homer grabbed this back in the home half, making the count 4 and 4. Then Root sailed through easily, the northsiders in the meantime getting a couple of bargain runs off Spencer in the seventh and one in the eighth when Root proved that a pitcher can hit—occasionally.

Today Sheriff Blake will try to follow in Root's footsteps, at least as a pitcher. The enemy probably will turn up with old Ray Kremer.

Heathcote Wallops First Pitch.

After Root had fanned two of the three men who faced him in the opening inning, English accepted three strikes from Petty to mark the start of the Cub attack. Heathcote touched it off by selecting Petty's first pitch and driving it into the right field seats. Hornsby went to base when a pitched ball brushed his pants leg. Wilson went back to the bench after flying to center, but Cuyler brought the Rajah in out of the cold by tripling into the left field corner. Grimm then hit one squarely on the nose, but Suhr pounced on it to close the inning.

Root's display of effective pitching in the second consisted of two meek infield grounders and a strikeout. The Cubs, or rather Hartnett, then stepped up and took another whack at the gray thatched Petty. After Bell had been tossed out, Hartnett pushed his first four base blow into the bleachers in left. Root fanned, and English was hit. Heathcote then tried his luck against another first pitch, but this one went into center where Flagstead flagged it.

Root climbed to his greatest height in the third. He whiffed Hemsley, Engle and Petty in succession. He also dropped three hostiles in a row in the fourth. Meanwhile, the Cubs were making harmless gestures at bat. In their portion of the third Wilson clipped a single into center after Hornsby had fanned. Hack was forced by Cuyler, who stole second and died when Capt. Grimm failed to come through. The home fourth produced a better chance. Bell led off with a single through Engle, but the next three batters didn't get the idea at all.

Root's Charm Broken.

The end of Root's perfect performance came when Comorosky opened the fifth with a scratch hit to Hornsby back of second. Suhr popped out and Bartell scratched a single past short. Hemsley's fly to Wilson made the rest look easy for Root, but it wasn't. Engle shot a single to left. Comorosky scoring. Lloyd Waner made his season's debut by batting for Petty and singled, Bartell scooting home. Flagstead's single to left sent Engle in with the tying run, and there would have been more if Heathcote hadn't dashed over to the line and made a real catch of Grantham's fly.

The Pirates assumed a one run lead for a few minutes in the sixth, and they would have picked up a few additional runs if they had produced about one more hit. Paul Waner started the inning with a single to left and was forced on Comorosky's roller to Root. Suhr lined a hit to center, sending Comorosky to third, whence he scored on Bartell's fly to Heathcote. A fresh rumpus broke out on Hemsley's double which put Suhr on third. Root elected to pass Engle and trust to his luck against Spencer. The strategy was successful. The pitcher struck out.

Hartnett's homer in the sixth would have been worth more than a tying tally if a hit and run attempt hadn't gone wrong. Grimm opened the inning with a single over short and, with Bell at bat, the hit and run signal was flashed. Bell didn't connect, so Capt. Charley was nailed easily going down to second. Bell was put out of the way on a fly to center, after which Gabby exploded the second of his round trippers for the day. He planted this one in the right field seats.

Score Without Hit.

The first two factors in the dissolution of the 4 to 4 tie in the Cub seventh were passes to English and Heathcote. Hornsby bunted with the idea of moving the runners to third and second, but did better than he expected. Spencer picked up the bunt and had ample time for a force play at third, but pegged wild, letting English score and Heathcote go to third. Hornsby went as far as second. Wilson then slapped a wicked liner to center and Flagstead had to leap to grab it. Heathcote scored after the catch.

Only a couple of things of interest were unfolded in the two remaining innings. One was Root's homer into the right field bleacher in the eighth. The other was a toss engineered by Heathcote in the ninth. Engle opened the final round with a drive down the right field line and he figured it was good for two bases. Heathcote showed him it wasn't by whipping the ball to Hornsby to nail the daring runner by the proverbial mile.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

POT POURRI.

ANY idea that the Cubs would step right out from the barrier and tiptoe their field, to borrow turf expression, in the race for the pennant so generally conceded to them, has been dissipated. Such possibility was pretty well discounted, as pointed out in The Wake when Hornsby's heel came under suspicion. One cannot help remembering that we won the pennant for the first time in years when Rogers was regularly in the lineup.

Aside from lack of consistent pitching, there is nothing alarming in the north siders' position only two weeks after the season opens. New York has been registering its victories against the supposedly weaker teams of the eastern end of the circuit. Pittsburgh always was figured as a contender. Cub fans may be disappointed. Considering handicaps, there is no reason for thick gloom yet.

Arlington Park directors, we understand, became concerned over the amount of publicity the proposed $100,000 international race was assuming. Ordinarily, no purveyors of sport or amusement for the public are averse to publicity, but this was publicity for something which may not take place. Perhaps you note how carefully the event has been qualified with "ifs" in official announcements recently.

That is playing square. Arlington, of course, wants to hold this proposed international race if foreign horses of class are secured as entries. It will not hold a so-called international race if the probable field does not merit the title.

Action on Stagg's interscholastic basketball and track meets was deferred by the University of Chicago athletic council. Further investigation will be made of the advisory resolution against such meets adopted by the North Central association of colleges and secondary schools. If the subcommittee finds what we think it will find, it will recommend holding the meets another year.

And tawny grains assail my cheeks,
It pleases me because I feel

Hitter's Style Sets Infield, Hornsby's Tip

This is the second article written by Rogers Hornsby, who will give a personal demonstration of how to hit and play second base at Wrigley field Saturday morning.

BY ROGERS HORNSBY.

You frequently hear the question: How far should a second baseman play away from the middle bag? There is no set distance. The same holds for the other infield positions. Probably the second sacker will move around more than the others in the course of a game. One reason for this is that, under certain conditions, he must be prepared to cover two bags.

The second baseman will station himself at the spot he thinks will give him the greatest edge. He is guided by the hitting style of the man at bat. He must take into consideration the kind of balls a pitcher is throwing.

A left handed batter naturally pulls a ball to right field. There are exceptions, of course, and it also must be borne in mind that a hitter will pull a ball against one kind of pitching and not against another. So long as the average favors a left handed batter, hitting toward the right side of the diamond, a second baseman will try to offset this by playing a bit closer to first base than he would for a right handed hitter.

An example of a left handed hitter who pulls almost every ball he hits is Cy Williams of the Phillies. For years whenever he came to bat the entire defense, battery excepted, would shift so far as to leave the left side of the field almost vacant. The second sacker would go half way to first base. The shortstop moved behind second. The third sacker would go to short. The same in the outfield.

This was done because Williams' habits at bat soon became well known. This is mentioned because it points out the value of always learning as much as possible and as quickly as possible about the batters of a team you are going to play.

The infielder also must watch the catcher's signs on every pitched ball. A batter won't hit a curve ball the same as he hits a fast one. Neither will a ball pitched inside to a hitter be hit the same as one pitched over the outside corner. As a pitched ball nears the plate the infielder can tell about where it is going to cross, and he can start to shift accordingly, allowing, of course, for the kind of ball it is and on what he knows about the batter's habits.

federation, has made that charge. Mr. Whitten has controlled high school athletics in Illinois for seven years. His state does not limit the number of games each school may play. Many teams compete in 40 or 50 contests each season.

"May I ask Mr. Whitten why he has not crusaded against overemphasis during the last seven years?

"'Tournaments are recruiting centers for colleges.' This is another charge made by high school men. However, state meets which produce revenue keeping these men in office will be continued. The cooperation of state universities is necessary, and these institutions will be permitted to conduct tournaments."

Blames Minority for Attack.

"The minority, which controls high school athletics, has tried to influence our committee. Vice President Woodward has received letters opposing our meets. I do not believe these represent the wishes of the many. Their inspiration has sprung from one source.

"I have received many letters from those who want me to continue my fight.

"The committee's investigation will be complete. If it convinces me high schools oppose interscholastics, I'll withdraw my plea. Until then, I will continue."

SANDY FORD, 32-1, WINS $26,000 DIXIE HANDICAP

Inception, Beaten by Head, Pays $99 to Place.

Baltimore, Md., April 28.—(AP)—The eastern 4 year old, Sandy Ford, a rank outsider in the betting, carried the colors of William Shea to victory today in the renewal of the $25,000 Dixie handicap as the Pimlico season opened here. Regan McKinney's Inception, another long shot, was second, with Sir Harry, from the Canadian owned Seagram stable, third. Sandy Ford paid $67 to win, while Inception returned $99.60 for a $2 place ticket. Sir Harry brought back $11.50.

Year's First Big Stake.

It was the first great stake race of the season for the older handicap performers, and among those which trailed the long shots home were: Mike Hall, Toro, Sortie, Dr. Freeland, Beacon Hill, Montanaro, William T., and Solace.

Sandy Ford was ridden by Frank Catrone and came to Maryland this spring from the winter tracks in Florida, where he performed in consistent fashion. He was a recent winner at Havre de Grace, but despite that good performance and a victory over the crack 3 year old Desert Light he was overlooked by the big crowd at Pimlico this afternoon.

Catrone sent Sandy Ford away from the barrier in the lead, and held it all the way to finally win in a desperate stretch drive by a head from Inception. Sir Harry was five lengths back of the two leaders.

Toro Finishes Fifth.

Toro was the favorite and rounding the last turn moved up with one of his old time rushes. Sandy Ford was far in advance of him, however, and Toro faltered near the end, winding up in fifth place.

The race was worth $26,025 to Owner Shea, and Sandy Ford ran the mile and three sixteenths in 1:59 4-5.

ILLINOIS NINE WHITEWASHES PURPLE, 14 TO 0

Champaign, Ill., April 28.—[Special.]—Falling upon Maury Fyfe, Northwestern pitcher, for sixteen hits, while Ell Hazzard, Illinois sophomore, held the Wildcat batsmen to three singles, Illinois shut out the Purple today, 14 to 0.

The Illini ran wild in the second when six hits, including Fuzak's triple and doubles by Fencl and Hazzard, netted eight runs. Lundgren's batters concentrated their efforts again in the fourth and seventh to add to the total.

Northwestern's scoring chance came in the second when Oliphant singled but was cut off at home on a return of Prange's hit. Hazzard, pitching his first Big Ten game, struck out 11 and had good control.

GREYOLA, WINNER OF AGUACALIENTE DERBY, DIES

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—Greyola, a 3 year old daughter of the famous Grey Lag and probably the best of that noted horse's get, died today in her stall at Belmont park from a fever contracted while being shipped here from Agua Caliente. She was the property of Raoul Walsh, but had been bred and raised at the Rancocas farm of Harry F. Sinclair in New Jersey.

Her most conspicuous victory was in the Agua Caliente Derby on March 9 last, when she captured $29,200 for her owner, who bought her the day prior to the race for a reported price of $15,000.

was wrong with each shot, tell the story.

"Make the club head do the work; let it come forward to hit ball; let it cut under the ball. [He explained later he wanted Herbert to hit under the ball to get the club head leading his wrists.] Stand square to the line of the shot," he added as Herbert hit one off line, "see an imaginary line from the ball to the hole and then hit along that line. Your club should follow that line both on the backstroke and the downstroke.

Herbert Tops One.

"Play from the bottom of the club," Weager added, emphasizing the use of the club head. "You can widen out the stroke for longer shots later. The line of the shaft to the ball must be straight, the topline of the blade can't be at right angles to the shot, for clubs aren't made that way."

Meanwhile Herbert was adding a few comments of his own. Rapping one over the green he commented, "That's too big." A minute later he topped the ball, and when Jimmy told him to keep his eye on the ball he said innocently but seriously, "Oi You're supposed to look at the ball."

From those chip shots Weager moved Herbert up to the putting green and again Herbert added a bit of comedy by his disappointment when thirty foot putts wouldn't drop. He'd rap one up a couple of feet from the hole and if Jimmy complimented him would reply in dismay, "But it didn't go in." When Weager explained such long putts as that were only expected to put the ball close to the hole to be tapped in, Herbert said, "O! That's why they talk of two putts to the green."

Before that, however, Weager had given him a stance much similar to the chip shots, but slightly closer to the ball and playing the ball just inside the left heel. He taught him to bring the putter back much as he had in the chip shots, but to keep the blade close to the ground both on the back stroke and the forward stroke, and to hit the ball smartly and cleanly.

Then as a sort of dessert, Weager let the boy hit a dozen or so longer shots with a mashie, merely bringing the club a bit further back than on the chip shots, keeping the left arm straight and close to the body.

TUFFY GRIFFITH AT CROSSROADS IN GAGNON BOUT

He'll Be Title Contender or "Has Been."

Tuffy Griffith's big moment arrives tomorrow night.

When the young heavyweight climbs into the Stadium ring and squares away with Jack Gagnon for ten rounds he'll finishd a championship contender or a "has been." And all because this Jack Gagnon, ex-sailor, professional football player, and sturdy rough and ready fighter, stopped Tuffy in six rounds in Philadelphia one month ago.

Before that setback Griffith seemed headed for a championship battle, and the money and glory it brings. He pointed to his series of victories in the last year, and to Jack Sharkey's refusal to fight him last winter.

Gagnon Two Fisted Hitter.

Then, according to Jack O'Keefe, Tuffy's manager, Griffith let down in his training during his barnstorming trip in the east. When Al Friedman gave Tuffy a busy evening in Boston, it should have been sufficient warning. It wasn't, however, and Tuffy went on to Philadelphia and defeat.

Gagnon can hit with either hand. Tuffy found that out in the third round when he tumbled three times. The sailor played taps in the sixth with his right to Tuffy's head.

Tuffy and Jack were rematched. "That's fine," Tuffy's friends said. "He'll beat this sailor man and start again in full stride."

Griffith a Better Boxer.

But will he? That's what Tuffy will find out tomorrow night.

Those who have watched Gagnon working at Barry's gymnasium are of the opinion that Tuffy can outbox him. Gagnon apparently is an easy target. Tuffy can avoid his right hand and outpoint him just as he did with Von Porat and others. Perhaps Griffith can't hit quite as hard as Jack, the fans say, but he can hit hard enough to win a ten round decision.

But a decision will not counterbalance Tuffy's technical knockout in Philadelphia. If Tuffy would redeem himself he must serve Gagnon the same medicine. And as the ring experts point out, when Tuffy comes in, swinging his right and left, striving to knock Jack into Madison street, his defense will be forgotten. He'll be a ready mark for Gagnon's right.

Tumbling Match Expected.

Then there's Gagnon's point of view. For the first time in his 70 fights he has glimpsed the gold mine that waits the championship contenders.

Gagnon is serious. In other bouts he seemed to consider himself a fortunate lad to receive money for fighting, which he considers a pleasure in itself. Jack is 28, married, and has two children. If he would reap a harvest, he must do it now.

Yesterday Gagnon limbered up a bit, then boxed two indifferent rounds, one each with Tom Jones and Hugh Gibson. There was little to applaud.

The prediction now is that 19,000 will watch Tuffy fight his most important battle.

British Nature Won't Endure Sport Larceny

nera were to be freighted back to New York next month and matched with Victorio Campolo or Jack Dempsey, the boys would be certain to draw a full attendance at the Polo grounds or the Yankee stadium, although the customers are quite aware that Primo has been engaging in irregular practices on his western tour and, in the celebrated California case, was convicted of unethical conduct.

One never hears of faking in the English ring and I believe that in the simple interpretation of justice in England a faker would not be merely suspended and denied the right to fake any more in some limited local jurisdiction, but would be indicted and sent to prison for entering into a conspiracy to defraud.

A Case for the Jailer.

If the Carnera-Chevalier bout had taken place in London and a member of Primo's gang had been placed in Chevalier's corner in the guise of a second to throw in the towel, and the boxing commission had reached the same finding that was reached by the California commission, then Primo and all his various managers and Mr. Bob Perry, who threw the towel into the ring, would have been arrested at the ringside and by now would be residing in some uncomfortable jail.

One sometimes feels inclined to blame the various prize fight commissions for their inability or neglect to keep the boys reasonably ethical, and while it is quite true that the prize fight commissions are more comic than majestic it is also true that the customers encourage the boys to impose on them.

King Isn't Beset by Pests.

The idea that the President of the United States might leave his box to shake hands with the athletes of the two ball teams at the start of a world series never would have occurred to me if I had not read of the king having done this at Wembley last Saturday. But one will discover in Washington a whispering awe for the Presidential person which makes the attitude of the English for their king and of the king for them seem democratic almost to the point of chummy familiarity.

This probably has been due to the number, the insistence and the shrewdness of the lobbyists, social as well as political, who infest the capital and by their activities have driven the successive Presidents gradually into seclusion. The king, not being of the people, never has been beset by such pests and consequently has not felt it necessary to bear himself in the manner of Presidents. An act which would be regarded as a charming show of royal condescension in him might be interpreted as a bit of political showmanship or vulgar familiarity with the rabble in a President.

President Might Condescend.

Still, I should think a President might now feel confident of his propriety in greeting the athletes personally in the presence of the crowd at a world series or an Army-Navy football game. Baseball has recovered its reputation for honesty and is nowadays the most democratic, the most popular, and the least larcenous of the professional sports, in addition to which it has always been popularly regarded as the national game. And while such a scene might be criticized on the ground that the presidential influence should not thus be lent to a strictly commercial enterprise, one might argue also that there is nothing in the Constitution which forbids the President to encourage native industries, of which the baseball business is one.

I still understand that the Army and Navy will play a football game next fall and I can imagine no gesture that would be quite as helpful in healing the wounds to the corps spirit of both academies as a visit from the President to each man of both teams, drawn up on the field, before the start of the game.

The outboard motor which was used by J. E. Wilkinson in winning the Albany-New York race last Saturday arrived at the Motor Boat show on the Navy Pier and was placed on display yesterday with a runabout similar to that used in Saturday's race.

The selection of the site for the annual championship outboard races, which will be held at the close of the present season, will be chosen at a meeting of the National Outboard association directors at the pier this morning.

Today all the cruisers, speed boats, runabouts and other crafts which are being demonstrated at the pier will take part in a marine parade which will leave the pier at 5 o'clock this evening for a trip down the Chicago river to Adams street and back.

Gen. G. M. Paul, Nebraska Guard commandant, is to receive the Boy Scout of America certificate of heroism.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, April 28.—(AP)—Cotton goods were steadier and higher prices are being asked for contract deliveries, following very general announcements of a six week's curtailment of production planned by Southern Mills. Raw silk markets were dull, and weaker in Japan. Silk goods are selling in moderate volume for spring shipment. Worsted yarns have been in better demand. Wool goods are quiet. Burlaps were steady to firm at Calcutta.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Shubert Theatres.

The Shubert Theaters corporation is expected to turn in a very favorable earnings report for the first three months of this year. Net, it is said by those who have been following the company's affairs closely, will be well in excess of that of the preceding three months.

American G. & E.

American Gas and Electric, which is now selling at a new 1930 high, is easily moved because of the limited amount of stock available for speculative purposes. In the two hour session of Saturday, for example, the stock rose more than five points on a moderate turnover. Electric Bond and Shares is supposed to have acquired a 71.2 per cent interest through a bonus arrangement.

R-K-O Rights.

The Radio-Keith-Orpheum rights on the curb have enjoyed appreciation, in sympathy with the strength of the stock on the big board. Trading has been active in these privileges and, according to advices from the floor, considerable outside speculative interest has been attracted to them. They are now available a little below the high for the year.

Newmont Mining.

Please give me an analysis of Newmont Mining, listed on New York curb.—C. J. P.

Newmont Mining corporation is an important unit in the mining industry. Prior to 1925 it was known as Newmont corporation, which was organized in 1921 to succeed a company formed in 1916. It is engaged in investigating and financing mining properties, and maintains a staff of engineers and geologists who conduct research work. It buys and holds stock of many outstanding companies in the metal and oil groups.

Profits have fluctuated greatly during the last few years, depending largely upon the profits taken on sale of securities.

In 1929 net income was $11,777,648, equal to $22.24 a share on 529,646 common shares, an increase of 58 per cent over net of $7,438,358, or $14.78 a share on 503,224 shares in 1928. In 1927 net income was $14,493,449, and in 1926, $4,113,671.

As of Dec. 31, 1929, market values of securities owned amounted to $51,888,535, against $62,203,588 a year before. The balance sheet at the close of 1929 indicated a book value of $85.54 per share of common stock [par $10], compared with $70.46 per share on fewer shares at the close of 1928.

Cash dividends are $4.00 per year. In addition special stock dividends of 5 per cent have been paid each year since 1927.

After payment of dividends totaling $2,016,096 in 1929 there was a surplus for the year of $9,760,952. On Dec. 31, 1929, earned surplus was $35,781,922.

In addition to holdings in this country, the corporation has extensive interests in South African copper properties and in Canadian developments.

The stock is not regarded as suitable for funds that should not be exposed to some speculative risk.

Muncie Gear.

Any information that you can furnish me with as to Muncie Gear preferred stock now selling around 4 will be appreciated. I have some of this stock.—J. W. C.

Muncie Gear company, manufacturer of auxiliary transmission parts and gears, mechanical gear shifts, and outboard motors, reported net income of $3,878 for 1929. This was equal to only 10 cents per share on the 37,500 shares of $2.00 cumulative class A stock outstanding and represented a loss of $1.26 per share on the common. Net income in 1928 was $228,506.

The management hopes to increase the company's business and earnings during the current year through the sale of a recently developed and moderately priced outboard motor.

No dividends have been reported on the class A stock since July 1, 1921, and none have been paid on the common. The class A stock is speculative and the common is highly speculative.

Still Leading
CASH DISTRIBUTIONS

For the calendar year 1929, Corporate Trust Share cash distributions exceeded those of any other of the fixed type of investment trust. Total 1929 distributions were $1.96⅔ per share, equal to more than 17% on the average price of the shares for the year.

Corporate Trust Shares will make another substantial cash distribution to shareholders on June 30th 1930. Accumulations already in the hands of the Trustee, or expected to be received between now and June 30th, added to the 1929 payments, will result in a total distribution for the 18 months period substantially in excess of any other investment trust of the fixed type for the same period.

Moreover, the historical record of Corporate Trust Shares, covering the past 17 years, shows larger distributions and greater percentage of return on investment than any other of the fixed type of investment trust now being offered, assuming existence of the shares during such period.

1. The splendid earning records of the 28 strong companies included in the portfolio.
2. The fact that holders of Corporate Trust Shares receive all income from the trusteed portfolio, including interest on the Cash Reserve Fund.

For investors who want maximum income, with minimum principal risk, we unhesitatingly recommend Corporate Trust Shares. Underlying these shares are the common stocks of 28 of America's greatest corporations, listed at the left, trusteed with The Equitable Trust Company of New York. No substitutions are permitted in the list of stocks. Distributions are made semi-annually, June 30th and Dec. 31st, against coupons attached to certificates. Reinvestment of excess distributions is made possible through issuance of "rights" on coupon date.

INDUSTRY SAYS... AMERICA MUST SAIL THE SEAS!

American industry's prosperity at home depends in no small measure on its ability to market abroad its surplus products. To do this, industry must be able to meet competitive merchandise prices. Dependable transatlantic shipping rates, therefore, become a vital factor in foreign trade. Without the large and efficient all-American transatlantic fleet of the United States Lines, Inc., as most representative of our American Merchant Marine, on the traffic lanes . . . we would ever be confronted with unstable rates. No one realizes this more than American industrialists.

Able, efficient management . . . wisely administered . . . scientifically organized . . . United States Lines, Inc., is an outstanding established American carrier, certain ever to expand its facilities. Its Participating Preference Stock offers a sound and profitable investment for you.

PREPARE NOW FOR FUTURE, IS THOMPSON VIEW

Plan Expansion of Restaurant Chain.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Now is the time to prepare for future improvement in business. This is the belief of John R. Thompson Jr., president of the John R. Thompson company, and he translated it into action yesterday by announcing a $1,000,000 expansion program for the company's group of restaurants, which number 121 in 43 principal cities.

J. R. THOMPSON JR.

"At our last annual meeting the directors favored acquisition of additional locations in some of the cities where our present facilities are inadequate to meet the demand," Mr. Thompson explained. "Our expansion is predicated on this substantial public demand and our desire to meet it in a satisfactory manner.

"We are further prompted to launch our program at this time by the firm belief that in so doing we will be contributing a measurable share toward prosperity through employment of labor."

Will Broaden Scope.

And so the company plans to broaden the scope of its operations in Chicago, New York, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, St. Louis, Detroit, and Cincinnati. In Chicago a second Henrici restaurant is under construction and is expected to be opened at 209 South Wabash avenue in August. Also plans have been revived to build a five story building, containing a restaurant, at 11 West Randolph street. Still another new restaurant will be opened at Clark street and North avenue.

A new $100,000 restaurant will be opened in Pittsburgh next month, making the ninth in that city, and negotiations are pending for additional ones. Two additional restaurants also will be opened in St. Louis in July and August, making ten in that city.

Another cheerful bit of news yesterday was the announcement of the F. W. Woolworth company, chain stores, that sales in Easter week this year set a new high record. The total was $7,460,515, a gain of $176,855, or 2.42 per cent, over Easter week last year. But because Easter came in April this year and March last year, last month's sales of $31,042,691 were 8.33 per cent below March, 1929, and first quarter sales this year were 1.04 per cent below last year.

"April sales will run well over $25,000,000, a gain of more than $3,000,000 over April, 1929," President H. T. Parsons said. "The first four months of this year will yield business of about $86,000,000, which would be about $2,500,000, or 3½ per cent, better than in the same period last year."

Department Store Sales.

Department store sales in 273 cities last month were 13 per cent smaller than in March, 1929, and first quarter sales were 8 per cent below the corresponding period last year. Sales in Chicago last month were 22 per cent below a year before and for the quarter showed a decline of 13 per cent. These data were issued by the federal reserve board yesterday.

Meat packing operations last month were 6 per cent below February and also lower than a year ago, the Chicago Federal Reserve bank finds. Employment showed a decline of 6 per cent in number of workers, 3 per cent in hours worked, and 5 per cent in pay rolls, compared with February. Sales declined 5½ per cent from February and 10½ per cent from March, 1929. Packers' inventories were lower on April 1 than either on March 1 or April 1, 1929.

Two additional automobile companies made reports yesterday. The Marmon Motor company reported net earnings of $832,889 for its fiscal year ended Feb. 28. These earnings were after extraordinary expenses of $1,670,274, and were equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $2.93 a share on 260,000 no par common shares.

The Reo Motor Car company reported a net loss of $176,437 for the first quarter of this year, compared with net profit of $537,514 in the same period in 1929.

BY SCRUTATOR.

Forestry problems in the United States are viewed from two widely divergent angles by government officials and agents and by the lumbermen.

The government men, and more especially those in the department of agriculture, are interested in replanting of forests as a convenient means of relieving the farming industry of submarginal lands as well as a means of adding to the future supplies of timber.

In the 1929 year book of agriculture it is stated that the number of acres required per capita to furnish agricultural products is steadily going down, that the abandonment of farms through tax delinquency is adding to the tax burdens of farmers who remain, and that "a serious shortage of timber can be prevented only by extensive reforestation, particularly near the principal centers of consumption in the east and south."

Doubt Feasibility.

Lumbermen, as a class, do not believe in the present feasibility of private efforts to reforest. Their stand is that they need greater assurance that the future will bring them a continued good market for their wood. They hold, now, that their industry is in a depressed condition and that they need protection against foreign competition worse than they need anything else.

Only a few days ago the directors of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association passed resolutions in Chicago stating that imports from Canada and from Russia were contributing to the industry's ills in this country. They called attention to the important stake of the farmers who own a hundred million acres of timberland, to the use of oriental labor in western Canada, and forced labor in Russia, and demanded tariff protection.

There are still 335 million acres of privately owned forest land in the eastern half of the United States, the year book asserts, and adds that it is probable the larger part of it must be taken over by public agencies—national, state, and local. Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota alone have fifty-seven million acres of forest lands, of which thirty-three million acres bear no forest growth of value.

The federal government has taken over about a million and a quarter acres of lake states land and is planting at the rate of 10,000 acres a year. The forest service has urged that this be speeded up to 40,000 acres a year.

Favorable Tax Laws.

It can hardly be denied that the governmental agencies are the only ones now striving to reforest on a great scale. They are the only ones who really can afford to do so. It may appear something of an anomaly that the lumber industry considers itself injured by the importation of woods, a business that conserves one of our own diminishing resources. As a matter of fact, it is not anomalous. There is no use growing timber when even the supply we have cannot be marketed at a profitable level; that is the economic side of the discussion.

If lumbering were prosperous and the question of supply uppermost in the minds of the managers in the industry they would be busy with their plans, as the government is busy with its own. Whatever else may be the merits of the question, it is regrettable that an overwhelming proportion of the forest lands in the whole country seems destined to pass into governmental control. At least tax laws should be made as favorable as possible to induce the lumbermen to take their own measures of reforestation.

NATIONAL TUBE GETS $15,000,000 PIPE LINE ORDER

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 28.—(AP)—The Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company has placed an order "estimated at $15,000,000" for manufacture of pipe with the National Tube company here, J. J. Kennedy, general manager of sales of National Tube, announced tonight.

Kennedy said that any announcement as to reports that the order was for a Texas to Minneapolis gas line would have to come from the offices of the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company.

He said the order called for 375 miles of 24 inch pipe, 350 miles of 22 inch pipe, and numerous lateral pipes of varying sizes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 28.—Substantial increases in switching rates on freight traffic moving between points in the Chicago switching district and between Chicago Heights and the Chicago switching district are proposed in a report of examiners of the interstate commerce commission made public today.

The recommendations follow an investigation of switching rates in the Chicago district. The examiners, Howard C. F. Auland and W. B. Wilbur, for the Chicago switching district, propose a rate of three cents a hundred pounds for single line hauls, as compared with the present rate of two and a half cents. For two line hauls a rate of three and a half cents is proposed, as compared with two and a half cents at present. For hauls over three or more lines a rate of four cents is proposed, as compared with the present rate of three cents. A minmum weight of sixty thousand pounds a car would be imposed in connection with the charges.

Other Proposals.

For traffic moving between points in the Chicago district and Chicago Heights the examiners propose rates of four and a half cents for hauls over two lines and five cents for hauls over three or more lines. These are increases of one cent.

A few exceptions as to certain commodities are proposed, the chief of which is railway equipment on its own wheels. Rates on excepted commodities are to be worked out later.

Shippers and carriers endeavored to reach an amicable adjustment of the rates on all commodities moving within the Chicago district and rates filed to become effective by the carriers thereafter were suspended by the commission and the general investigation was begun. The recommendations of the examiners are subject to protest by both shippers and railroads.

High Court Grants Review.

The Supreme court granted a review today of the suit brought by southwestern railroads attacking the new basis laid down last June by the interstate commerce commission.

The controversy affects the revenue of railroads covering nearly one-third of the area of the United States.

The order of the commission made a new division of the revenue from joint rates on certain roads in southwestern territory, at points on some roads in certain eastern territory. Its effect was interpreted as giving the western trunk line carriers a higher percentage in the division of the rates.

A statutory three judge federal District court for western Missouri sustained the order of the commission as applied to traffic moving via Kansas City and St. Louis, Mo., and certain gateways in Illinois.

The government also appealed, contending that the order which had stayed the readjustment of rates pending a final decision by the Supreme court should be set aside.

R. K. O. Quarterly Income Nearly Equals Year's Profit

New York, April 28.—(AP)—The Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation earned almost as much in the first quarter of this year as it did for the full year of 1929. The earnings report, made public tonight, showed net profit, after the payment of preferred dividends, of $1,607,622, or 87 cents a share, as against $384,749, or 20 cents a share in the first quarter of 1929, and $1,669,564, or 90 cents a share, for the full year 1929.

Sales Flood Washes Gains Away.

BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, April 28.—Wall street's tottering stock market finally caved in today. An outpouring of selling orders in the last hour of trading bore down the last creaking bull props and values crashed from 1 to 10 points throughout the list.

Two or three of the more volatile cutups did even worse. Ingersoll-Rand took a headlong plunge of some 12 points and Case Threshing Machine, scooting for lower ground like a bull yearling with the heel flies after him, dropped more than 18 from its week-end rating.

It was one of the most tearful days the constructive forces have had since they got things going their way so nicely back around the Christmas holidays.

There was little or nothing in the day's news to upset trading confidence

"Our Customers have Invested nearly a Billion Dollars with us"

Nicholas Roberts, President

S. W. STRAUS & CO. have originated and placed in the hands of cautious, thrifty men and women, 1142 bond issues totaling $981,782,500 —nearly a billion dollars.

This represents the origination and sale of an average of more than one issue a week for twenty-one years.

Of this $981,782,500, the total amount which has come due in principal alone is $359,162,400, every dollar of which with interest in full has been paid to bondholders promptly on the due date.

These figures do not include the many millions of dollars of individual mortgages in which we dealt exclusively for twenty-seven years following the inception of our business in 1882, all of which have long since matured and been paid. Neither do they include hundreds of issues of public utility, railroad, industrial and foreign bonds originated by other houses, in which, during the last few years, we have taken participations for retail distribution in amounts up to $3,000,000 in a single issue.

Today there are 564 issues of our own origination amounting to $622,620,100 outstanding in the hands of our clients, who are regularly receiving interest at from 5½% to 7% per annum.

"It seems to us that these figures, which embrace every bond issue ever originated by S.W. Straus & Co., indicate the reason for the confidence that our 175,000 customers have in us."

IN OTHER HANDS WHEAT HOLDINGS MIGHT BE CORNER

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A realization that the government holdings of 50,000,000 bu or more cash and May wheat is sufficient to give it control of the market, and that under normal conditions there would be talk of a corner, seems to have come to the grain trade. It was understood that further purchases of May wheat were made here and at Minneapolis yesterday and there was also talk of cash wheat being taken over at Omaha in exchange for the futures.

Wheat prices had a drop of ½@1c at the opening due to selling on fairly general rains over the winter wheat belt, but heavy commission house buying developed which quickly absorbed the surplus in the pit and a bulge of ⅞@3¼c from the inside figures followed, a leading local and a New York operator being credited with covering shorts on a large scale. The finish was at the top, with net gains of 1⅜@2⅜c, with May $1.04½@1.04⅝ and July $1.06⅞@1.07¼. Minneapolis showed more strength than Chicago and gained 2⅝@2¾c for the day, while Winnipeg was 1⅜@2c higher.

News Generally Bearish.

Selling against offers and by longs was a factor in checking the bulge in wheat. Local operators who sold early were forced to cover toward the last, but sentiment remained bearish, due to the favorable weather conditions for the new crop. Forecast was for further rains over the entire grain belt, and there was precipitation during the day at numerous points in Oklahoma, Kansas, and Nebraska.

Liverpool falled to respond to the strength in North America on Saturday and was fractionally lower at one time, only to advance sharply and close 1¾@1¾d higher with Chicago. There was a lack of demand for cash wheat abroad, although world's shipments of 6,440,000 bu for the week were the smallest of the season, and the lightest of any week since June 7, 1922. Supplies on ocean passage of 35,104,000 bu are also the smallest at this season in many years.

As a result of the prevailing cash wheat situation foreigners have come into the market for supplies on a large scale, taking 1,000,000 bu in all positions from North America yesterday, making 10,000,000 bu or more secured since the buying movement started a week ago. Cash houses were free buyers of May wheat here against sales of July at 2¼@2½c difference, while longs sold May and bought the deferred deliveries, pit observers claiming that the liquidation was the heaviest of any day so far.

Corn Higher With Wheat.

A decrease of 3,404,000 bu was shown in the domestic visible supply of wheat, making the total 136,090,000 bu, against 114,787,000 bu last year, but it failed to have much effect on the market, as the total is a record for this season, and the trade looks for a big carryover at the end of the crop year.

Trade in corn was mainly of a local character, with the market stronger in sympathy with wheat, short covering being in evidence toward the last. Final trades were at net gains of 1⅝@2c, with May 81⅞@81¾c and July 82⅝@83¼c. Charters were made during the day for 250,000 bu to Buffalo and 200,000 bu to Georgia Bay. A decrease of 1,773,000 bu was shown in the visible supply, with the total 21,963,000 bu, against 28,134,600 bu a year ago, and is the smallest at this season since 1924.

LARD AND BELLIES LOWER

Holders of lard, particularly the May delivery, were fair sellers yesterday and there was changing of contracts from May to July and September. Sufficient pressure existed to carry prices down 5c below Saturday's finish at the last on May and September, while July was unchanged. Bellies lost 2½ to 7½ cents. Trading in all was light. Lard in Liverpool was 3d to 6d lower, and Cumberlands and hams 1s lower, with bellies 1s higher.

Exports of lard for the week were 10,206,000 lbs and of bacon, 5,252,000 lbs. Last year lard exports were 8,559,000 lbs and bacon, 5,262,000 lbs. Hog prices were fairly strong, with supplies at western points lighter than a week ago and below receipts of a year and 2 years ago. Prices follow:

SAYS CLEVELAND FIRM SPENT $9,000,000 FOR SHEET & TUBE STOCK

Cleveland, O., April 28.—(AP)—Samuel E. Bool of Pickands, Mather & Co., Cleveland, testified here today his company spent $9,000,000 buying stock in the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company shortly before books were closed for the recent Sheet and Tube stockholders' election, which voted approval of the billion dollar merger of Sheet and Tube with the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

Mr. Bool said he had paid as high as $160 a share for some of this stock.

The testimony given by Bool was taken in the form of depositions which will be used by attorneys in connection with the petition for injunction to restrain the merger, which was filed in Common Pleas court at Youngstown last week.

Second Injunction Suit.

Youngstown, O., April 28.—(AP)—A second suit to enjoin the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube company with Bethlehem Steel corporation was filed today by Myron C. Wick Jr. and the International Share corporation.

The suit is identical with that filed by the same plaintiffs last week except that it names the officials of Sheet and Tube as co-defendants and sets forth that the suit is brought in behalf of the plaintiffs and all other shareholders.

NORTH AUSTIN LUTHERAN TO BUILD ADDITION

BY AL CHASE.

Plans have been completed and actual construction now awaits authorization by the congregation for a $250,000 church edifice for the North Austin Lutheran church at the northwest corner of North Mason avenue and Le Moyne street. Ivar Viehe-Naess & Co., architects of the original church building, have designed the new structure, which will be Gothic.

If the congregation approves the building program at a meeting to be held tomorrow the present church edifice, now facing on Mason avenue, will be turned around and front on Le Moyne street. The new unit will then be erected to the north of the old church and will front on Mason avenue. Three bungalows now occupied for Sunday school purposes will be wrecked to make way for the new edifice.

Has 3,000 Members.

The combined seating capacity of the two units will be 1,800. The church, which is said to be one of the largest Protestant congregations in Chicago, has a membership of 3,000. It was founded by the Rev. F. W. Otterbein, the present pastor, ten years ago. The present church edifice was completed five years ago.

The three apartment building at 7729 Essex avenue has been sold by James T. Stevens to Charles M. Seagraves for a reported $34,500. The eight room residence at 6515 Woodlawn avenue was given in part payment. Edward H. Burke & Co. were brokers.

Medical School Buys Building.

The Chicago Medical school has purchased the four story building at 710 South Lincoln street, formerly occupied by the Frances Willard hospital, according to Dr. Bayard Holmes Jr., president of the school, which is now at 3830 Rhodes avenue. The new quarters will be occupied the last week in June.

The United Cigar Stores company has leased the entire basement space in the Woods Theater building at Randolph and Dearborn for a ten year term to Gus Georgulis for a pool and billiard hall. H. O. Stone & Co. were brokers.

Increased receipts at Chicago today, 6,000 cattle; 26,000 hogs, and 13,000 sheep.

Increased receipts depressed the market for cattle and lambs yesterday, while hogs ruled stronger on moderate supplies. The extreme top and general average of hogs moved up 5c at $10.25 and $9.90, respectively, both prices standing highest in five days.

All interests were on the market earlier than usual, paying the full strength, and only 3,000 penholders and inferior grades remained at the close. While receipts were smaller than any corresponding day in a number of years, shipping demand was largest of the month. Outsiders bought third of the number left on the market after directs had been deducted.

Hog Futures Slow.

Trading in hog futures was slow and slightly lower yesterday. May light sold at $10.30. Offers and bids were far apart in most other months. June light were offered at $10.40 at the close and bid $10.15, while light for September delivery were bid $10.20 and offered at $10.50.

Eleven carloads of June heavy were offered at $10.00 and above, but the best bid was $9.60. On the "to arrive" market lightweights for today's delivery were bid $10.20.

Last week's satisfactory market for cattle attracted 24,000 to Chicago yesterday, the largest run of the year. It compares with 14,610 the previous Monday. Losses of 25@50c were general all day, and some large lots were still unsold at the finish, the low point.

The best steers on the market were some of the last to sell. Prime weighty beeves reached $14.65, although two loads of long fed steers were being held at $14.75 at the close. Bulk of steers sold at $10.50@13.25. Butcher stock broke 25@50c, choice 628 lb heifers selling at $12.65. Best calves were steady and others weak to lower. Stockers and feeders were scarce and slow.

Sheep Receipts Larger.

With top lambs above the $10.00 line late last week, there was an increase in marketward shipments. Today's arrivals at Chicago at 24,000 compared with 14,695 last Monday, with 16,012 a year ago and with 15,471 two years ago. Prices ruled steady to 15c lower, top kinds showing the least weakness.

A scattering to shippers reached $10.15, while most good grades sold around $9.75. Lambs that were shorn a few days ago sold at $8.75 and below. Aged sheep were scarce and steady. The few yearlings available ruled weaker. Feeding and shearing lambs held steady.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 6,000 cattle, 26,000 hogs, and 13,000 sheep, against 7,082 cattle, 34,713 hogs, and 19,468 sheep the previous Tuesday, and 8,601 cattle, 23,470 hogs, and 12,608 sheep a year ago.

beyond a fresh batch of railway earnings, which admittedly made poor reading, but the stage has been all set for a reaction for some time and probably it had to come in the natural order of things. As Epictetus or some old know-it-all once said, "It's a long lane that has no turning," and this new market has been pushing ahead without any serious attempt to turn for a lot of joyous weeks.

Oil shares made a most valiant effort to keep the home fires burning, but the close found most of them handicapped with minus signs.

Rails Weaken.

The rails were conspicuously weak from the start. The quarterly earnings reports are not helping these stocks a bit so far as the record shows. Recessions ranging from 1 to more than 5 points were the rule in issues like New York Central, Atchison, Norfolk and Western, Rock Island, Chicago and North Western, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific. The remarks of C. A. Donnelly, head of the Northern Pacific, who said among other things that he expected April, earnings of that road to be off proportionately with the first quarter no doubt served to accelerate selling to some extent.

All of the recognized leaders including United States Steel, American Can, Radio, American Telephone and Telegraph, Bethlehem Steel, Westinghouse Electric, and Public Service of New Jersey were under heavy pressure. The close found Steel showing a net loss of 3 points, while Westinghouse was down more than 9.

New Low Ground.

National Cash Register slipped into new low ground for the year under weight of steady selling, showing a loss of around 3 points or so at the bottom.

Just as some doubtless bought stocks during the early months of the year in the hope of a business revival in the spring, many now seem to be selling because of disappointment. The market reflected in part the optimistic sentiment of January and February and also by its action was responsible for creating a good deal of optimism that now is proven to have been premature. The trade revival forecast by the stock market in the first three months has failed to materialize, but well informed observers agree that is no reason for becoming pessimistic at this time. It was scarcely to be expected recovery would come so soon and the sooner the stock market becomes reconciled to the idea that 1930 will not come up to last year the better it will be for all concerned many now believe.

An outstanding factor in the Natural Gas Industry
is showing a substantial increase in revenue during 1930, due to the important position in the natural gas industry that two of its subsidiaries occupy.
Though earnings amounted to $3.51 in 1929, no income from Southern Natural Gas Corp. Common and but a small amount from American Natural Gas Corp. were included. With the inclusion of these earnings in 1930, the earnings of Tri-Utilities Common should be substantially increased.

CHICAGO STOCK SELLING SPREADS PRICES DECLINE

Bendix Reports Income; Votes Dividend.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stocks were taken for a bumpy ride on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. The weakness which has been confined largely to the motor and accessory shares during the last few days spread to the utility and the industrial groups.

Some resistance was shown by the utilities in the early trading, but the continued flood of offerings had its effect. Closing prices throughout the list were off from 1 to 12 points.

Bendix Aviation was the target for a good deal of selling and the price closed down 3 points at 42. The company made public its quarterly statement last night, showing net earnings for the period of $751,681, equal to 36 cents a share on the 2,097,420 shares of capital stock. The regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents was voted by the directors.

More Brake Company Employés.

Severe nonrecurring expenses in connection with plant changes were experienced by Bendix Brake company, Vincent Bendix, president of the parent company said. He added that the brake company is now employing 20 per cent more producing help than at any time in its history.

Auburn tumbled 12 points on light trading. Pines Winterfront broke sharply to close at 36 and Allied Products finished down 3½ points. Smaller losses were suffered by Borg Warner, Foote Brothers Gear, and the Houdaille Hershey issues.

Among the industrial the losses were not as severe. Art Metal, Electric Household, General Theaters were off a point or so. Super Maid declined 2 and National Standard sold off 3.

Utility stocks which have been holding up well in recent sessions were caught in the general current. North American Light and Power "A" slipped back to close at 78½, a net loss of four points. Commonwealth Edison lost 8 and United Gas on a few sales declined 2½. Cities Service and United American each dropped a point.

Loses Early Gain.

Grigsby made a good showing in the early trades but lost all of its gain before the day was over, closing down to 24⅝. Nearly 40,000 shares of the issues changed hands. Majestic opened off 1½ and gradually worked down to finish at 53, a net decline for the day.

The "A" stock of Associated Telephone and Telegraph was dull and about unchanged. The company pamphlet for 1929, issued today, shows net earnings for the year of $4,687,187, as compared with $3,037,860 in the previous year. Gross income amounted to $13,321,582, compared with $10,701,622 in 1928. The earnings are equivalent to $17.43 a share on the "A" stock, compared with $4.81 on the same number of shares in the preceding year. Consolidated net assets of the company and subsidiaries as of Dec. 31 were given as $68,289,199.

Chicago Curb Exchange Stocks

Market leaders on the Chicago curb were under pressure yesterday. Losses were well limited, however, Stinson closing 2½ points lower for the chief decline of the session.

PLAN MEETING TO DISCUSS BLUE SKY ACTIVITIES

D. H. JACKSON.

Members of the state securities departments of Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Ohio, and Missouri are to attend a series of meetings which will be held at the Palmer house here May 8 and 9 for the purpose of discussing investment matters and securing greater coöperation among the states on blue sky activities.

David H. Jackson, head of the Illinois securities department, suggested the meetings and he has received assurances that representatives of the above mentioned states in the Chicago metropolitan district will attend. Among the subjects to be discussed will be: Listed securities, first mortgage bonds, long distance telephones, and dope sheets.

Mr. Jackson, in discussing the meetings, said that an effort would be made to find better ways to educate the publice regarding dishonest financial offerings, rather than to suggest new laws and police methods. He said that laws have not always worked to check the activities of financial crooks, and suggested education as the best way to protect the interests of the public.

Tax on Revocable Trust Income Is Sustained

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—That section of the 1924 revenue act which taxes the income from revocable trusts was sustained today as constitutional by the Supreme court. It was attacked by Charles A. Corliss of New York. In 1922 he made a revocable trust for his wife, and a tax of $44,000 was imposed. The decision today upheld the lower federal courts.

SEN. COUZENS' NEW RAIL PLAN IS SUBMITTED

Washington, D. C., April 28.—(AP)—The revised Couzens railroad resolution, submitted to the senate interstate commerce committee today in executive sessions, would ban direct or indirect unification of railroads involving "substantial reduction of competition."

The original proposal of Chairman Couzens of the interstate commerce committee, was to suspend all railroads consolidations until congress enacts further regulations.

He redrafted it to meet objections registered in extensive hearings. The modified resolution would also set a personal penalty of $5,000 fine or as much as three years' imprisonment, or both, for participation in unification of railroads by the "overhead" and unauthorized method of pooling holding companies stocks.

The revised resolution would have effect only until March 4, 1931. The original draft provided that the measure obtain until congress acted. The resolution would allow union of short lines or branch or feeder lines with trunk lines.

The commission would be directed to prescribe, in orders authorizing unifications, terms and conditions necessary to prevent demotions and reductions of labor, and to provide for compensation of property losses sustained by laborers as the result of transfers following consolidations.

The new resolution would also prescribe that application for any unification involving the general unification plan of the interstate commerce commission might be made under that paragraph of the transportation act covering consolidations.

U. S. MAY TAKE 100 MILLIONS OF WORLD BANK LOAN

Finance Heads to Meet Thursday to Map Move.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 28.—Following the signing of the accord between Hungary and Bulgaria and the little entente in regard to the reparations problems, the bank for international settlements today announced an extraordinary meeting to be held at Brussels on Thursday for the discussion of the forthcoming German annuity loan of $300,000,000. The United States was originally allotted $75,000,000 of these bonds, but is expected to take close to $100,000,000.

Thomas W. Lamont, a partner of J. P. Morgan company, now in Paris, will attend the meeting as one of the creators of the world bank and the Young plan. Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, will also be present at the meeting. Knut A. Wallenberg, Swedish foreign minister, and financiers from Holland, Switzerland, and allied countries as well as Germany, will also attend.

U. S. Share Easily Absorbed.

Mr. Lamont today stated that the American financial market is favorable to the emission of the bond issue and said that he has no doubts that the United States' share will be easily subscribed by the Morgan group.

The loan is to be issued in nine countries, the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Sweden, Belgium, Holland, Switzerland, and Italy. France, it is reported, will in all probability take up as large an amount as America. As for the rate of interest on the bonds, estimates of from 5½ to 6 per cent are being made.

The signature of today's accord enables Italy to ratify immediately the Young plan. Czecho-Slovakia, according to the decisions made at The Hague parley last August, must now pay Rome the amounts necessary for Italy to discharge her obligations to Britain. Italy delayed ratification of the Young plan until the eastern agreement gave her this security.

British to Ratify Young Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 28.—The British government, which has been awaiting a successful outcome of the Czecho-Slovakian-Hungarian negotiations at the eastern reparation conference in Paris before taking up final action on the Young plan, is all ready to ratify.

Parliament reconvenes tomorrow after the Easter vacation, and it is likely that the Young plan will be ratified Wednesday or Thursday. There will be no debate, and all that is necessary before the actual ratification is King George's assent.

Mr. Harry Liverman, President of Lane Bryant, Inc., summarizes his letter dated April 16, 1930, as follows:

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: The proceeds of this issue of Debentures are to be used in connection with the acquisition by Lane Bryant, Inc., of the Coward Shoe business (except real estate), operating two stores in New York City and one in Boston. The Coward Shoe business reported net sales in 1929 of $4,457,929.

HISTORY AND BUSINESS: Lane Bryant, Inc., is the result of the continuous growth of a business originally established in 1901 in New York City. The Company now owns and operates, directly or through wholly-owned subsidiaries, a chain of twenty stores dealing in women's and infants' apparel. The retail stores are located in New York City and Brooklyn, N. Y., Philadelphia, Baltimore, Detroit, St. Louis, Newark, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Des Moines, Chicago, Waukegan and Decatur, Ill., Oshkosh and Green Bay, Wis., Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Okla., and South Bend, Ind. The Company also conducts a mail order business in New York City. Through subsidiaries, the Company has complete facilities for the manufacture and distribution of the "Adapto" shoe, which it has extensively advertised and which it is distributing on a major scale. All the Lane Bryant stores are situated in important shopping centers of the respective cities.

The Coward shoe business was established in 1866. Its acquisition gives Lane Bryant, Inc., an organization for the sale of special types of orthopedic or "comfort" shoes, for men as well as women and children, sold under the well known "Coward" trademark. With this acquisition, Lane Bryant's shoe business will be increased from approximately $2,000,000 to $6,500,000, the figures in each case being based on sales for 1929.

SALES AND EARNINGS: Net sales and net income of Lane Bryant, Inc., after depreciation but before Federal income taxes, have been certified by Messrs. Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery, Accountants and Auditors, for the five years ended May 31, 1929, and for the twelve months ended November 30, 1929, as follows:

Twelve Months Ended	Net Sales	Net Profits (before Taxes)	Times Interest Earned on $2,000,000 Debentures to be presently outstanding
May 31, 1926	10,003,741	339,355	2.82
May 31, 1927	10,768,931	350,682	2.92
May 31, 1928	11,115,289	479,688	3.99
May 31, 1929	14,255,402	876,176	7.30
Nov. 30, 1929	15,561,336	865,612	7.21

These figures do not include the operations of the Coward Shoe business which for the twelve months ended December 31, 1929, reported sales of $4,457,929 and net profits after depreciation but before Federal income taxes, of $290,507.

FINANCIAL CONDITION: The consolidated balance sheet of Lane Bryant, Inc., and wholly-owned subsidiaries, as of November 30, 1929, after giving effect to the present financing and the application of the proceeds to the acquisition of the assets of the Coward Shoe business (except real estate), and the assumption of its liabilities as of December 31, 1929, as certified by Messrs. Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery, shows total net assets, exclusive of these Debentures, of $6,030,578, equivalent to $3,015 per $1,000 Debenture; net current assets being $2,034 for each $1,000 Debenture to be presently outstanding. 7% Secured Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

Coffee Realization Loan 1930

Due October 1, 1940.

Dated April 1, 1930, interest payable April 1 and October 1. Principal and interest payable, without deduction for any present or future Brazilian taxes, in New York in United States gold coin at the office of Speyer & Co. or of J. Henry Schroder Trust Company or, at the option of the holder, in London, at the office of J. Henry Schröder & Co., in Sterling, at the fixed rate of exchange of $4.8665 to the pound Sterling, or at the offices of Lippmann, Rosenthal & Co. in Amsterdam, Crédit Suisse in Zurich, Stockholms Enskilda Bank in Stockholm, and Banca Commerciale Italiana in Milan, in local currencies at the current buying rates for sight exchange on New York. Coupon bonds in denominations of $1000 and $500, registerable as to principal.

Sinking fund, beginning July 1, 1930, sufficient to repay at least one-tenth of these Bonds annually, to be applied to the semi-annual redemption of Bonds by lot at par, the first redemption to be on April 1, 1931. Sinking fund payments may be anticipated.

These $35,000,000 Bonds are part of an International Loan of an authorized principal amount equivalent to £20,000,000 ($97,330,000). Of the balance, £10,000,000 Sterling Bonds are being offered simultaneously as follows: £8,000,000 Bonds in London by Messrs. Baring Brothers & Co., Ltd., N. M. Rothschild & Sons and J. Henry Schröder & Co., and £500,000 Bonds each in Amsterdam, Stockholm and Milan. £500,000 Bonds are being placed privately in Zurich. Banco do Estado de São Paulo has contracted to purchase the remainder of the Loan, equivalent to £2,807,973 ($13,665,000) principal amount.

His Excellency Dr. A. C. de Salles, Jr., Secretary of Finance and of the Treasury, has authorized the following statement in behalf of the Government of the State of San Paulo; having been transmitted by cable, it is subject to correction:

The Government of the State of San Paulo, in order to dispose of the accumulation within the State of large amounts of unsold coffee, and to prevent such accumulation in the future, has adopted a new plan, to become operative July 1, 1930, by which it undertakes to liquidate gradually the present unsold coffee and to place future crops on the market currently. The Government has agreed that it will not directly or indirectly, accumulate any coffee during the life of this Loan except, in agreement with the Bankers, as further security for the Loan.

PURPOSE: Under this plan the liquidation of the accumulated unsold coffee in the State on July 1, 1930, which is expected to amount to approximately 16,500,000 bags, is to be financed through the issuance of an International Loan of an authorized principal amount equivalent to £20,000,000 ($97,330,000). The proceeds of the $35,000,000 Bonds and £10,000,000 Bonds, now being issued, are to be used to finance approximately 14,000,000 bags as follows: £4,500,000 ($21,899,250) will be applied toward the purchase by the Government, prior to June 1, 1931, of 3,000,000 bags of coffee, and approximately £11,000,000 ($53,531,500) will be used in refunding existing advances of £1 per bag on about 11,000,000 bags of coffee. The remainder of the unsold coffee on July 1, 1930, estimated to be approximately 2,500,000 bags, will be financed by advances thereon of £1 per bag with the proceeds of, the £2,807,973 ($13,665,000) principal amount of Bonds which Banco do Estado de São Paulo has contracted to purchase. Should the above remainder not amount to 2,500,000 bags, the reserved Bonds will be sold only to the extent necessary and any surplus Bonds will be cancelled.

COFFEE SECURITY: The Loan will be the direct obligation of the Government of the State of San Paulo and will be specifically secured by pledge, to the extent of 50 shillings ($12.166) per bag, of the above 3,000,000 bags of coffee to be purchased by the Government, and by pledge, to the extent of £1 ($4.8665) per bag, of the approximately 13,500,000 other bags of coffee referred to above. The value of the total 16,500,000 bags at current Santos prices equals about $198,000,000. Should the unsold coffee not amount to approximately 16,500,000 bags on July 1, 1930, the principal amount of the Loan will be correspondingly reduced. The pledged coffee will be deposited in warehouses in the port of Santos or in other parts of the State of San Paulo. Documents of title for the pledged coffee will be deposited with Banco do Estado de São Paulo in trust for the Bankers' representatives in the State of San Paulo. Documents of title for newer coffee of at least equal quality may be substituted at any time for documents then on deposit.

The Government has agreed that, beginning July 1, 1930, the pledged coffee is to be liquidated at the rate of 1,650,000 bags in each year, and from the proceeds thereof £2,000,000 ($9,733,000) will be applied to the redemption of Bonds, and £100,000 ($486,650) will be placed in a Reserve Account. Any deficiency in the proceeds will be made up by the Government, and the Government may, in agreement with the Bankers, anticipate in whole or in part these annual liquidations and redemptions.

PLEDGED REVENUE: The interest on the Loan will be secured by a first charge on the receipts from a new tax on all coffee transported from any point within the State for export, to be levied initially at the rate of 3 shillings ($0.73) per bag and thereafter at rates decreasing as the outstanding amount of the Loan is reduced. The receipts from this tax, based on the minimum quantities of coffee which the Government has agreed to have transported to the port of Santos, together with available amounts in the above-mentioned Reserve Account, are estimated to exceed in each year the interest requirements on the amount of the Loan then outstanding.

MARKETING OF COFFEE: The Government has agreed that, during the life of this Loan, the minimum quantity of coffee to be placed on the market in each month thereof shall be equal to the following: (1) In the year July 1, 1930 to June 30, 1931, to one-twentyfourth of the aggregate of the coffee crop of said year plus the estimate of the aggregate of the coffee crop for the succeeding year, which shall include 137,500 bags of pledged coffee (1,650,000 bags of pledged coffee per annum) as above stated; (2) In each year thereafter, to one-twentyfourth of the aggregate of the coffee crop for that year plus the estimate of the aggregate of the coffee crop for the succeeding year, plus 137,500 bags of pledged coffee (1,650,000 bags of pledged coffee per annum) referred to above. In every year beginning July 1, 1930, the Government undertakes that such minimum quantities shall aggregate at least 10,000,000 bags per annum, any deficiencies being made up with additional pledged coffee, the liquidation of which will accelerate the redemption of Bonds. The Government may make new advances on coffee from the proceeds of liquidation of pledged coffee in excess of 4,950,000 bags in any year. The Government has further agreed that the stock of coffee in Santos for sale shall be at all times a minimum of 1,000,000 bags and that no coffee inferior to No. 8 Santos quality is to be exported from the State.

DEBT: The external funded debt of the State, including this Loan, amounts to about $203,000,000. The State in effect guarantees loans amounting to about $47,000,000. The internal funded debt, as of December 31, 1929, amounted to about $41,000,000.

STATE REVENUES: The total revenues of the State for 1929 are estimated at about $55,000,000, or about 4½ times the requirements during the year for interest and sinking funds of the State's funded debt, both external and internal.

GENERAL: San Paulo, the principal agricultural and industrial state of Brazil, has about 6,000,000 inhabitants, chiefly of European extraction, and occupies an area of over 112,000 square miles, or about the area of the State of New York and the New England States combined. Over one-half of the world production of coffee is grown in the State. During the past ten years (ending June 30, 1930), San Paulo coffee crops have averaged 11,100,000 bags per annum and exports of coffee have averaged 9,350,000 bags per annum. Other leading agricultural products include cotton, tobacco and sugar. Cattle raising and meat packing are important industries and rapid progress has been made in textile and other industries. San Paulo is served by over 4,800 miles of railroads, of which about 1,400 miles are owned by the State.

Conversions from milreis into dollars have been made at the rate of 11.7 cents per milreis, approximately the current rate of exchange. Other currencies have been converted at par of exchange. One bag of coffee contains 132 pounds.

Application will be made to list these Bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

All proceedings in connection with the issuance of the above Bonds are subject to the approval of our counsel, Messrs. Curtis, Mallet-Prevost, Colt & Mosle.

We offer the above Bonds for subscription, if, as and when issued and received by us, at 96% and accrued interest, to yield to maturity 7.56%.

(Average yield, based on minimum retirement through sinking fund, 7.92%).

We reserve the right to close the subscription at any time without notice, to reject any application and to allot a smaller amount than applied for. Amounts due on allotment will be payable at the office of Speyer & Co., 24 & 26 Pine Street, in New York funds, on or about May 8, 1930, as called for, against delivery of Interim Receipts exchangeable for Definitive Bonds when ready.

SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston, on her way to Paris, meets Geoffrey Macadam in the dining car on the Paris train. Macadam is an Englishman who lives in Paris. Catherine tells him that she is going to visit her cousin's widow, Mme. Belmont Bender. She is a little apprehensive about the coming visit because she had received just before sailing a letter from Hermione Cushing, who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a lawyer and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs, but he doesn't know the widow very well. He had heard that she was ill. Arrived in Paris, Catherine is a little disappointed when her cousin's chauffeur is not at the station to meet her. Geoffrey sees her into a taxi, giving her his address and telephone number. He tells her that he will be anxious to know how things are at the Bender apartment and she promises to call him. Arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment, she is treated coldly by the servants, and Jeanne, Mme. Bender's maid, suggests that she go to a hotel. Catherine insists on staying in the apartment, as she is suspicious of the servants. Jeanne tells her that Mme. Bender attempted to commit suicide the night before. The next morning Catherine goes in to see Germaine Bender, who is pathetically glad to see her. She tells Catherine how she had taken poison by mistake.

Geoffrey invites Catherine to dine with him and it is a relief for her to get out of the apartment and to tell him of her vague fears. He is disturbed, too. Geoffrey escorts her back to the apartment. The door is locked, but Geoffrey arouses Eduardo, who says he thought Miss West had come in long before.

The next morning Catherine calls on Miss Cushing, who takes her to her milliner, and she sees there a man she has seen hanging about the Bender apartment.

INSTALLMENT XXVI.
A DISAGREEABLE SUSPICION.

This curious subservience of Mme. Bender baffled and exasperated Catherine beyond measure. Sometimes she told herself that if Jeanne had declared black to be white her mistress would have hastened to say that it was so. Reluctantly she began to see that there were some grounds for Miss Cushing's view of affairs and that for good or for bad her relative was to an alarming extent under the maid's influence.

"I suppose it's only to be expected in the circumstances," she reflected. "So long as there's no harm in it one oughtn't to care."

On the latter point she could not quite make up her mind. She continued to hold a high opinion of Jeanne, but as the days went by little doubts crept across her mental sky like clouds, each leaving its shadow beneath. Perfect as the woman showed herself in her devotion to the invalid, in other respects she was not so flawless. It became more and more evident that the establishment was badly run, that the maid did not trouble in the least what happened outside the patient's own room. The second week passed and the sheets on Catherine's bed had not been changed. The windows wanted cleaning, not only in her bedroom but all over the apartment. The food served to her was carelessly cooked and all but insufficient. This neglect in a rich woman's dwelling was inexcusable. In spite of herself Catherine could not help thinking of the singer's declaration that Jeanne was pinching and saving in order to put money into her own pocket. It must be so, for what other reason could there be for so niggardly an economy? Petty pilfering, for which one must not use too harsh a term.

Meanwhile she was enjoying Paris. She presented introductions, made many acquaintances, and went about shopping and visiting picture galleries to her heart's content, eager to make the most of every moment. Each day brought a fresh invitation, so that soon she was caught up in a gay and active life. More and more often she saw Geoffrey Macadam, and it was somehow gratifying to note the frequence with which he sought her society, yet, although she was getting to know him extremely well, he continued to preserve towards her an unbroken attitude of matter-of-factness as impersonal as that of a brother. Sometimes the feminine part of her was piqued by this unexciting behavior, but presently she came to regard him as one of those beings preordained for bachelordom and, having settled this to her satisfaction, felt even more than before that she could confide in him with freedom. Undoubtedly there was something solid and worthwhile about him which counted higher than the facile attractions of the other men she had met, and, though he seldom paid her a compliment and had never once tried to hold her hand, she began to look forward eagerly to her meetings with him, sure of mental stimulation and sympathetic accord.

Existence flowed on, outwardly serene, yet there was a sub-current to affairs which rendered Catherine ill at ease. Was she imagining things or was it perhaps true that Jeanne, under cover of her unremitting labors, was conducting some secret game for her own advancement? She could not be sure.

Take the single instance of Mme. Bender's car. Not once had she set eyes upon it, although her cousin appeared to assume that it was always at her disposal. What had become of it? No effort, she was sure, was being made to engage another chauffeur. Naturally she did not broach the subject to Jeanne, for at all cost she was anxious to avoid friction.

For the same reason she kept silent when, with a shock of surprise, she found that several of the best rooms in the apartment were under lock and key. Why was this so? Sometimes lying in bed at night she puzzled over the circumstance, unable to come to any conclusion. With one exception she had no desire beyond that of curiosity to penetrate the closed portions of the flat. Their contents did not concern her, but it was true she would have liked to go into the picture gallery on the ground floor. Here were hung all the best of Harry Bender's collection, which included many interesting examples of the modern French school—a number of the Barbizon group, a couple of Claude Monets, a fine Cezanne, and three or four Renoirs. In particular she recalled with a thrill of pleasure a small still-life of apples and pears executed by Manet during his sojourn at Boulogne—a gem of a painting, highly treasured by her dead cousin.

Several times she was on the point of asking Jeanne for the key, but always something—an instinct, premonition, she was not sure what—held her back. In the end something occurred to render the request unnecessary.

Returning home one afternoon, she saw in the street outside the private entrance a luxurious Rolls Royce standing by the curb. For a moment she wondered if some one were calling upon Mme. Bender, but that could hardly be, for there was no sign of a chauffeur. Then she noticed that the car was black, inside as well as out, and the knowledge flashed on her that it was her hostess' own. What was it doing here, and who was going to drive it?

As she fumbled for her key the question was answered. The door opened and Eduardo came hastily out, wearing his overcoat and hat and carrying a long, cylindrical parcel wrapped in newspaper. He seemed a little disconcerted at encountering her face to face, but he did not stop and, heading straight for the motor, climbed into the driver's seat.

So now she knew! The car was being used, but for the convenience of the servants. Indignation filled her, but she had scarcely time to digest the unappetizing fact when a second item of interest rushed to greet her. There, a few yards away, she described with delight the door of the picture gallery standing ajar.

What luck! At once she pushed it open and stepped inside, then stood looking round her with blank disappointment.

Every painting was shrouded in ghostly muslin, not an inch of frame visible. Chairs and canapes, too, wore covers of linen, while even the carpet—a valuable Aubusson, if she remembered rightly—was hidden by an enormous dust sheet.

"What a shame!" she murmured aloud.

If only she could remove the concealing wrappers! However, without a ladder it was a feat impossible to accomplish. Still, some of the smaller paintings hung within her reach. The little Manet, for instance—she might have a look at that.

"I can put the cover back afterwards," she thought, trying to recall where the still-life had hung. "No one can object to my snatching a glimpse of it."

"That must be it," she decided, there at the opposite end. She approached, slipped off the muslin bag, then uttered a cry of dismay.

The gold frame rested against the wall intact, but it inclosed emptiness. The canvas was gone.

Good Morning!

This picture, I am told, has not been faithful to the original novel—a fact that will not sit so well with the Zane Grey devotees who are sensitive concerning liberties taken with the works of their favorite author. When one likes Zane Grey, one apparently LIKES ZANE GREY, thinks his writings could in no way be improved on, and raises nose to skies in mournful howl over film adaptations that do not hew to the line.

Such being so, "Light of Western Stars" probably will make no hit with avid readers of Mr. Grey. Others will find it an interesting prairie picture. All must admit that the scenery is something to make one catch the breath and yearn for a western vacation.

Mary Brian and Richard Arlen in the romantic leads make a pleasing team. Fred Kohler is, as ever, one grand bad man. Harry Green furnishes comedy aplenty that is often funny, and supporting players are adequate to their rôles. Direction is able and photography excellent.

Miss Brian is seen as an eastern girl who goes west to take charge of her murdered brother's ranch. (In the novel Brother Jim is still living.) She is met at the station by Dick Bailey (Richard Arlen), who, much inebriated, insists that she marry him pronto. In the book the ceremony is performed then and there. In the picture—well, see for yourselves.

Ruth finds herself up to her neck in all sorts of difficulties which are gradually and glamorously solved for her by—again we drop the curtain.

I liked "Light of Western Stars," all right, but then I never had the Zane Grey fever. (Much.)

(SILENT.)

Spanish production.
Directed by Robert Wiene.
Presented at the Cinema theater.
Featuring Lily Damita and Warwick Ward.

KIND: Spanish drama you will probably mistake for farce.

QUALITY: Poor.

ACTING: Minor rôles are better played than the principal ones. Lily Damita's characterization is amateurish. Warwick Ward is terrible.

PHOTOGRAPHY: Disappointing.

DIRECTION: It's hard to believe that the man who made "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari" megaphoned for this production. A clumsy piece of work!

STORY: Properly handled it might have been interesting. Concerns a dancer who falls in love, gives up her career, and because of her love—and attendant heartbreak—returns to the stage a greater artiste than when she went away. A dose of Warwick Ward enables her to dance her specialty number, "The Dying Lily," as it has never been danced before. Only, you see, she doesn't feel about him the way you do. You could die, too—for different reasons.

OPTIENCE APPEAL: Draws frequent laughs that are not the sort of laughs to which a creator likes to listen.

Baby Week Starting, with May 1 as Day Dedicated to Health

Its smallest citizens claimed the attention yesterday of Chicago for Baby week, which is being observed nationally, began with special programs. May 1 has been proclaimed Child Health day by President Hoover.

Yesterday, mothers began asking themselves if they are giving the babies the right kind of care. The Central Free station of the Infant Welfare society, at 1744 West Harrison street, held open house starting at 9 a. m., so the public might see how that society helps the mother to train her child.

Twenty-one other Infant Welfare stations will be at home to the public during the week. The society cared for 15,780 expectant mothers and children last year in the overcrowded sections of the city, and had a death rate of only 1.1 per cent for babies under two years.

At the Fair, State and Adams streets, Baby week will be observed both morning and afternoon. Authorities on child care will talk there. The Infant Welfare society, Art institute, Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education, Children's Garden club, Goodman theater and other groups are coöperating.

Mrs. Davis McCarn, extension worker for the Chicago Association for Child Study at the afternoon session urged parents to be more intelligent in training children.

Church People Urged to Help Jobless Persons

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Prayers offered by Protestant churchmen for the alleviation of the present unemployment situation will be aided by organized activity of the Chicago Church federation. At least such plans were urged yesterday morning at the Union Ministers' meeting, Central Y. M. C. A., by James Mullenbach. He is chairman of the church and industry commission of the federation. His proposals are that church members of the city furnish odd jobs for unemployed men with families.

Speaking of what he called "an unemployment crisis which is the most serious economic evil the American people have to face," Mr. Mullenbach declared many "tide over" jobs, such as cleaning, renovating, repairing, and the like that the spring season provides in thousands of homes greatly would help, if the jobs and worthy unemployed could be connected.

Mr. Mullenbach stated that next Sunday has been set apart by the 800 churches of the federation as "Unemployment Sunday." He asked the ministers to appeal to the congregations to help in finding jobs. Statistics were cited in which he declared that the loss in purchasing power, due to unemployment, during the first three months of this year in the United States amounts to $750,000,000.

The special speaker at yesterday's meeting was the Rev. Dr. Harold C. Phillips of Cleveland. He was the preacher Sunday night at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall. In his address to the ministers yesterday he supported Mr. Mullenbach's appeal, stating that the modern pulpit must pay attention to practical matters.

"In the past, preaching dealt entirely with the future," Dr. Phillips said, "but now the pressing materialism of life makes it necessary to deal with present day affairs. A man cannot be made to fear a future hell if his mind and body are more interested in a present hell on earth."

Walter R. Mee, executive secretary of the Church federation, will carry on plans during the week for the observance of Unemployment Sunday, May 5.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

Do you nibble bits between meals?

The Answers.

Miss Lenore Robinson, 125 North Waller avenue, clerk.—I do, but I don't want to and I try not to. I like sweets, of course. Ice cream chocolate sodas, that is my weakness. Anyhow, they are worth their cost in cash, and the possible gain in weight because of the additional amount of work one can do cheerfully.

Howard Bernhagen, 910 Lawrence avenue, salesman—Certainly. I don't eat very much for breakfast and lunch, and during the day I nibble. During the forenoon I get a sandwich and malted milk and occasionally some nuts. In the afternoon raisins and possibly a chocolate bar.

Miss Irene V. Zwiefka, 4832 North Melvina avenue, stenographer.—I certainly do. I live a long way from the office—an hour and a quarter away. So at the close of work I think I am entitled to a cup of coffee and a sweet roll. Late in the evening coffee and cake, or bread, butter and jelly suits my palate.

Emil Wells, 4870 Lipps avenue, bell boy.—I always do when I have a chance. At home I eat bread and butter, and as much jelly as I dare put on, and a glass of milk. At work it's candy, any kind that comes my way.

Miss Dorothy Okun, 4819 North Drake avenue, secretary.—I prefer not to, because it interferes with my appetite, though there's nothing at all wrong with my appetite. I prefer to eat three times a day, and if I eat between meals I am apt not to enjoy fully the following meal.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

HERE is a neat bit of comic elegance from Vienna, Englished by the waggish Wodehouse, staged by the magnificent Mr. Miller, and acted in its three major rôles with distinction and graceful humor. "Candle Light," they call it, following the season's custom in giving keen comedies dull titles, and the place is the Princess, which seems bent upon becoming an art theater. With Eugenie Leontovich, Reginald Owen, and Alan Mowbray playing a game of cross purposes in this worldly little harlequinade, last night's premiere was a blithe occasion.

You may refer to the old adage, "Choose neither woman nor linen by candle light," for an interpretation of the title. You may go back to the old Italian puppet shows and the farces of Goldoni for the source of the plot, for they dealt extensively with tricky valets masquerading as their masters and pert parlor maids pretending to be great ladies. But the piece itself is as new in manner as its "art moderne" furniture. It is as jaunty as the latest hat shop along the boulevard. There is nothing dim or vague about "Candle Light"; it is bright, bold and buoyant.

Miss Leontovich, who gave a spirited account of her talent as a comedienne as Mr. Pepys' "poor wretch" in "And So to Bed" not so long ago, returns as a star in this play. She represents a rare quality in the Russian temperament—a sunniness of mood. She is adept in carrying off scenes of banter and frolic; she has charm and piquancy of manner. Altogether, she is clearly a stellar personality, and she is admirably cast in the central rôle of "Candle Light" as a pretty servant girl out on the tiles, calling herself a baroness, hunting a prince, and winning the prince's valet, himself a masquerader. This part was played in New York by Gertrude Lawrence; but there is no hint of "second company" quality in Miss Leontovich. [By the way, for correct pronunciation, her name is accented on the penult.]

Whenever there is a quizzical and ultra-aristocratic prince to be acted, Reginald Owen should be the man summoned to rehearsal. The mellow irony of his voice and the superbly human high-hattedness of his manner make him our First Comedian so far as the Almanac de Gotha is concerned. He removes the curse that Michael Arlen put upon titles of nobility. You will remember him from "The Swan," so you need not be reminded too emphatically that he is exactly right, and extremely diverting, as Rudolf the Rake in this Leontovich frolic.

Alan Mowbray pairs with him in the honors, playing the valet who thinks he is having an affair with a high born lady. This is a rôle that calls for bland effrontery, for the snobbism of a suit of livery, for cringing fears and frightened gallantries. It could be clowned extravagantly, but Mr. Mowbray plays it with the reticence that denotes the thorough artist. This valet answers his master's remark, "After all, we are both human beings," with the deference due a demigod, "No, I am a human being." He is the most amusing servant to be found in the drama since the English butlers stopped being funny.

The atmosphere of the piece is thoroughly Viennese, proving that the Theater Guild has no monopoly upon fine points of Danubian culture. Most of the play is straight Vienna urbanity, but once in a while a wild witticism of the adapting Mr. Wodehouse, as British as Punch, crops out in the dialogue.

Royalty's Four Receptions Are Strong Magnets.

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 28.—As the 1930 social and sporting season opens London has discovered that merrie England is about to be invaded by the biggest mob of American visitors who ever set foot on this island.

The managers of the capital's smartest hotels, the landlords of luxurious apartments in the swankiest sections of town, and owners of dressmaking establishments are preparing to be especially hospitable to the overseas guests, although thus far there are few indications of London's leading hostesses making drastic changes in their usual programs.

The advance reservations for hotel suites and furnished apartments is unprecedented and landlords are expressing gratification at the discovery that they can rent apartments at almost any figure they wish to name.

It is learned that a number of large apartments in the fashionable west end already have been leased for the summer at $1,000 a week by American mothers with debutante daughters. Hotel rooms in the center of town are at a premium and hundreds of prospective visitors have already been forced to engage rooms at Maidenhead, Seven Oaks, Henley, Windsor, and other nearby spots.

The tourist bureau figures show that the 1930 invasion will show an increase of 25 per cent over previous years.

"Every year the interest taken by Americans in the London season increases," said the manager of a travel bureau. "They do not seem to care what they pay to be 'in the swim.'

"Lots of Americans even buy cars here for use during their visit and then sell them when they leave for any price they can get."

The attractions for Americans with sporting inclinations and social aspirations are to be multitudinous this year. Infinitely above all others, so far as the women are concerned, will be the four courts to be held at Buckingham palace, the first two on May 14 and 15 and the second two on June 27 and 28. Presentation at these courts represents the most ambitious dream of American social leaders.

Royalty, Society Shine at Opening Opera of London Season

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 28.—Brilliant dresses and flashing jewels featured the opening of the famous Covent garden grand opera season tonight. The historic house was crowded, with not a vacant seat.

Princess Mary and the countess of Harewood occupied the royal box which King George and Queen Mary have taken for the season.

Princess Helena Victoria and Princess Marie Louise also were in the royal box. Other notabilities attended, including former King Manuel and former Queen Augusta Victoria of Portugal. British peeresses wore the latest fashionable robes, long skirts, flowing draperies.

The gallery enthusiasts were present in force, hundreds of them having waited more than 30 hours, since 11 o'clock Sunday morning, in a long line with folding stools for the great event.

"Die Meistersinger," an earlier and more genial Wagnerian opera, was chosen for the opening performance.

BEG YOUR PARDON

CANNES, France, April 28.—(AP)—Sir Walter de Freece has informed the Associated Press correspondent here that Lady de Freece, internationally known on the stage as Vesta Tilley, is convalescent and that he hopes she will be able to return to England within a fortnight.

On March 20 the Associated Press carried a dispatch concerning the removal of Lady de Freece from a nursing home, where she had been several weeks under treatment for temporary derangement due to a nervous breakdown. This dispatch, obtained from what was believed to be a reliable source, erroneously said the transfer was to a hospital for the insane. This correction is made, together with the further report from Sir Walter that his wife is on the road to recovery. She now is at her home in Monaco.

All Illinois Art Society Offers New Exhibition

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts is sponsoring at present an extremely decorative exhibit of paintings by three artists in the Revell galleries. Charles Minghi, who is a pupil of Leon Lundmark, shows a group of marines; John McDonnel offers landscapes and portraits; Benjamin J. Beck submits a group of still lifes.

Of the three painters the least professional is Mr. McDonnell. He is an active member in the Palette and Chisel club, but painting is not first and last his career. He is a doctor, the art is an avocation. It is as well to straighten this out in the beginning for his work smacks of the amateur and one might be more harsh than necessary without this knowledge that with him the profession of colors is something in the nature of a game.

The best of his paintings is by all odds the "Peaceful Sunday," a tranquil moment under a spreading tree on a quiet village corner. The "Covered Bridge" is another pleasant success on a small scale. The most of the other landscapes are a bit sentimental. His pastels of women are soft and overly tinted, particularly "The Pose" is reddened delicately at extremities which force one to think entirely of the ladies who adorn or used to adorn calendars and distressing advertisements.

The still life paintings by Beck are much more promising. The "White Swan" is very well done; the "Chinese Vase" is effective with some glorious fruit to its credit; "Tulips" is decorative and the "Russian Urn" is beautifully painted and possesses, too, excellently turned fruit. "Cracker" is the delightful portrait of a romantic cat with huge eyes. She sits casually but electrically alive on the watch for a movement from two puzzling blue glass birds which have dared to light on the window seat just ahead of her.

Douglas Fairbanks came to town yesterday in the rôle of a golfing fan rather than a movie hero. And Mary Pickford wasn't with him. Doug is on his way to New York, where he will sail with the Walker cup golf team on the Mauretania. Mary is out in Hollywood working on her next picture: "Forever Yours." Doug, who was impatient to get to a telephone booth to put in a long distance call to his wife, found time to remark that he guessed he and Mary wouldn't play opposite each other any more, because "Mary thinks I play too much and work too little." Mr. Fairbanks expects to confer with Vladimir Eisenstein, Russian director, while abroad.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Molasses Is Molasses.

There are certain recipes which are printed more or less often in this column which commence to make history immediately after each printing. Bits of this history often come to me and arouse my interest in one way or another, either because they furnish some historical material or tell me of a mistake made in following the formula.

The recipe for the softest gingerbread, which has been printed here more or less often, is one that has brought a good many bits of information of a varying type to me. Some one said to me the other day that she had tried that recipe and she did not like the results because the gingerbread was tough. Straightway I asked her what molasses she used, and she had not used molasses at all. She had used a corn sirup, which is really a glucose, as I understand it, though I would not claim to be an authority on the subject. This sirup is something that does not ferment or does not ferment readily, while molasses does. That is why a preservative of a sort is used with molasses, but if you have ever pried open the top of a can of molasses and had it burst into a fountain, hitting the ceiling, you know that molasses sometimes will ferment in spite of everything.

It is this very quality in molasses that makes it the excellent and indispensable thing it is for gingerbread. With the baking soda, it really makes a leaven of a pronounced sort, although we use eggs in making the gingerbread. Not even sorghum, which is sometimes called sorghum molasses and "long sweetening," will make a good gingerbread, or at any rate a gingerbread that is like one made of molasses and is the gingerbread most people make.

Different brands of molasses vary in quality or in their characteristics, seemingly. The old time American cook knew how to use molasses and worked out some preparations in which it was indispensable. The Boston brown bread, to be bona fide, must be made with molasses, and so must gingerbread. The best corn balls are made with cooked molasses, and our grandmothers sweetened their pumpkin pie and many another dessert with this sweetening. The famous old drink of the haymakers called "switchel" was a compound of molasses, ginger, and water.

Crêpe silk dresses will be popular with the smartly dressed girl to wear with a separate coat, carrying out the ensemble idea. Chicago Toy Fair Opens at 3 Hotels; Games, Dolls, Beasts

Toys of new and thrilling design, dolls by the thousands, staring and smiling at nothing at all, new games, some of them favored by royalty, and enough animals to furnish a complete animal fair, are filling a great deal of floor space in three Chicago hotels, the Hotel Sherman, the Morrison, and the Palmer house.

They are not being played with by children at present. They are being discussed soberly, and purchased in carload lots. It is the annual Chicago toy fair, in which 250 manufacturers throughout the United States and from Europe, show their wares to dealers. It opened yesterday and will last two weeks.

"See that model there?" some man will ask, jerking a thumb in the direction of a young doll with carefully spread taffeta skirts and the trusting eyes of, for instance, Peggy Hopkins Joyce. "She's a best seller."

"I want something a little better class," says the other man, looking over a Jack and Jill with a cold eye.

Society Couple Mixes Science with Travels

BY THALIA

The latest stopping off place of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Crane is in California. They have been sojourning at the Coronado hotel at Coronado Beach. There Mrs. Crane lived formerly with her stepfather and mother, Capt. and Mrs. Clark Woodward, who now are stationed in Panama.

Since the Cranes were married last October, just after Mr. Crane returned from a cruise on his yacht, Illyria, to the south seas for Field museum specimens, they have been in Europe, in Bermuda, in Chicago for a short visit, and stay at Christmas time with Mr. Crane's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane, and several other places.

From California they will go back to New York City, and later to visit the senior Cranes at their summer place at Ipswich, Mass. Their yacht is now being overhauled at Gloucester, Mass., for their use in the American cup races at Newport, R. I., this summer. Meanwhile, construction is continuing on the place on one of the islands in the Bermuda group that Mr. Crane purchased for a residence for his bride. She was, you remember, Mrs. Cathalene Parker Browning before she became Mrs. Crane.

The Tavern's "April Fooleries," produced by members of the club at the Goodman theater last night, was a lilthesome and spirited program, revealing the copious talent the membership possesses.

The special entertainment committee that arranged the affair included Ernest Byfield, John W. Root, John Westworth, John R. Winterbotham jr., Frank Breckenridge, James Weber Linn, Alfred Shaw, William Welsh, Roman Bohnen, and Lambert Mullin. The "acts" included "Stu" Prince's and Bert Mullin's banjo and piano number, a wisecracking stunt by Tommy Wheelock and Johnny Lock, another one by Walter Frazer and John R. Winterbotham jr., still another by Russell Forgan and Louis Tilden, with his accordion and several short playlets. The Wheelocks, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Harris, Walter Frazer, the Boyde Hills, and the Hugh Gardens were among the members who had dinner parties at the Tavern before going to the Goodman for the program, which began shortly after 10 o'clock. There was an audience of more than 500 at the performance and for the supper dance thereafter.

Mrs. Charles H. Swift [Claire Dux] is to give a recital at the University of Chicago this evening, in Mandell hall on the campus. Faculty members of the university and "friends" of the university have been invited.

The Junior Friends of Art are to hold their last meeting of the season this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Blackstone hotel. The special guests are to be members of the Chicago Civic Light Opera company, and there is to be a gala program. Other affairs on the day's calendar are the fashion show which the Kenwood Social Service club is giving at the Moreland for the benefit of its infant welfare station and the Latin school alumnae's annual card party to benefit the Eli Bates fund.

We offer abject apologies to those who read in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE that the talkie of the opera personnel, "Behind the Footlights," was to be given yesterday afternoon. The program is for next Monday afternoon, instead.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Macy, who have been living in Evanston for the last 6 months, are returning to the east, to take up their residence at 151 East 79th street.

[Vanity Fair Photo.]

The marriage of Miss Janet Pullman Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy C. Pierce of Germantown, Pa., formerly of Evanston, to Edwin Irving Angell of Chicago, son of Mrs. Harriett E. Angell of Charles City, Ia., took place last Saturday evening in Goddard chapel at Tufts college, Mass. The former Miss Pierce is a graduate of Tufts college and a member of Sigma Kappa. Mr. Angell is a graduate of Iowa State college and a member of Phi Sigma Kappa.

Miss Virginia Chapin, Francis A. Drake to Wed This Evening

The marriage of Miss Virginia Chapin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simeon B. Chapin of New York City and Lake Geneva, Wis., to Francis A. Drake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy C. Drake of Chicago, will take place at 9 o'clock this evening at the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas in New York.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Kenneth B. Patterson, will be matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will include the groom's sister-in-law, Mrs. Carlos C. Drake of Paris, Miss Patricia Silverthorne, Mrs. John Louise de Ruyter, Mrs. John Ashley Merriman, Mrs. George F. Hackl jr., Miss Iris Sellar, Miss Mary Gertrude Finacune, Miss Jane Brand of Pasadena, Miss Helen Millington, Miss Louise Rorimer, Miss Dorothy Russell Havemeyer, and Miss Jane Erdmann.

Carlos Drake will be best man for his brother and the ushers will be Simeon Brooks Chapin jr., Kenneth A. Patterson, Albert Kepp, Alphonse Kenison jr., John Bertram Whitelaw, Hyde Gillette, John Cutler, Eben Knowlton, John R. Toop, Thomas Field, Walter Howe, and Hamilton Southworth.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Drake and their daughters, Miss Katherine and Miss Elizabeth Drake; Mr. and Mrs. William McClelland Drake, and Henry Bartholomay have gone to New York to attend the wedding.

SINGERS FROM KANSAS COLLEGE GIVE FINE SHOW, MOTOR AWAY

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Southwestern college of Winfield, Kas., is sending out its A Cappella choir on a motor bus trip to sing here and there in the middle west. The organization stopped off at Kimball hall last night and gave a concert under the baton of its director, the former Chicagoan, Haydn Owens.

It is another example of the hold that choral singing is taking among schools and colleges of this generation, and it is an especially inspiring one. The choir, surpliced and gowned, numbers between fifty and sixty. It has the exultance of healthy youth in its tone, but youth that is never boisterous and always disciplined.

The whole program was of sacred music divided into three sections. The first was ancient, Lotti, Bach, a Schumann of 1539, and a Nicolai of 1599, not the better known Schumann and Nicolai of the last century. The second part was Russian, the third modern, with the names of F. Melius Christiansen, Dudley Buck, and the two colored composers, H. T. Burleigh and Nathaniel Dett.

Ancient music, sacred or secular, is by no means a simple matter for singers, but these young artists from Kansas interwove voice with voice and oiled up masses of polyphony as though they and their ancestors had been doing it for centuries back. They were not only correct, but they maintained good tone and sang the words trippingly on the tongue. It was only an occasional vowel, "choose," or "refuse" or "lute" to which they gave the umlaut sound betraying the fact that they were not quite professional in their vocalism.

One of the most interesting numbers was in the Russian group. This was "Alleluia, Christ Is Risen," an Easter song of Little Russia. It is quite in the fast moving folk song manner until the end, when it bursts into a rather magnificent liturgical chant of "Alleluia," and the way that the choir intoned this succession of chords was one of the thrills of the evening.

Seventy-five boys and men of the Paulist choir will give their annual concert tonight at 8:15 o'clock at Orchestra hall, where the first concert of the organization was given in 1904. William Jordan, 13 year old south side boy, a freshman at Mount Carmel High school, will be the soloist. The Rev. Eugene O'Malley, C. S. P., is the director.

Some Speech Defects Are Errors Carried Over from Babyhood

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A "Play Booklet" by Mrs. Bevans for mothers of pre-school children will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Yesterday's article did not quite cover the causes of speech defects.

One other cause, perhaps less common, is observed to come about through allowing baby talk or cunning childish errors of speech to continue far past baby age—and then trying suddenly to correct them.

Now this does not mean that you must take alarm and begin to worry over the often charming, amusing original versions of plain English that your little son or daughter may be rendering at the present time. Speech is a delicate process—just how exquisite a coördination is required for it no one but a person who had analyzed the process could imagine. The surprising thing is that children acquire the fine muscular coördination it requires as rapidly as they do. So if they do not conquer every sound early we have no cause for alarm.

Children vary a great deal in this particular, depending upon many things—upon what sort of speech they hear to pattern their own on, upon how fine their sense of hearing or their involuntary attention may be, etc.

I remember one small boy who had a real gift for clear enunciation being quite stumped by the words automobile and elephant. For a long time they were "eemy" and "umpf" to him. And fire engine was "fan-je." Say fire engine yourself several times rapidly and you can see a little how he might have formed an auditory image that would result in "fan-je." Usually, however, children have themselves corrected these babyish errors by the time they have reached school age. But sometimes, because the funny little words seem cunning, or for some other reason, they are allowed to carry them over too long.

Suppose, then, to go back to our first thought, that a child has reached 8 years of age and is abruptly subjected to constant correction, perhaps with scolding and impatience, for errors he has always had. Conscious, somewhat ashamed, afraid of being make fun of [this all too common], apprehensive of reproof—he may begin to stammer or stutter.

Those in New York and Chicago who are interested in obtaining definite help for speech defects, or others who desire helpful reading on the subject will be given suggestions through this department.

Man Claims Too Many Wives Rag Husbands in Public

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Because he is a man, the speaker may be biased. But he says that woman's possessiveness and her disloyalty about her husband [curiously conflicting vices] cause the dickens [only he didn't say dickens, it was another word beginning with "d"] of a lot of married trouble.

More familiar with the possessiveness referred to than the meaning implied by disloyalty, we inquired and were thus enlightened. "I'll give you an example. No names mentioned, of course. Mrs. Blank, then, chooses a mixed dinner gathering at which are present men who are working or social companions of her husband. Given an opening wedge, she unfolds George Blank's weaknesses and his vices. Possibly they are no more heinous than my own or any other fellows, but coming from the lips of the woman who has to live with him, George's seem pretty bad.

"If Mrs. Blank happens to be pretty and can wear that martyred look that women adopt before a jury, George begins to look like a monster. That's what I mean by disloyalty. Telling anything about your husband that you're not proud of. And wives are becoming terribly addicted to this malicious habit, since it has become fashionable to be 'frank' about marriage.

"The thing we men don't understand about women is why they go on living with the monsters—and loving them," he added.

The guilty wives will have to solve that puzzle for our speaker. Neither can we understand the lack of decent reticence. Quite outside of the unfavorable light a husband is placed in because of the recital, where is woman's pride in her own possession? And why the blind stupidity of thinking it exalts the patient virtues of a wife? It does not. Such confidences about a mate simply make juicy bits for the teas, bridges and dinners that follow. And we are all familiar with the way in which a simple idle statement can be exaggerated into a notorious offense with gossipy tongues mulling it over.

There is a freedom of speech today about domestic affairs that at best can be excused only as excrutiatingly bad taste. But this particular form of speech freedom about husbands' faults, trivial, imaginary or real, goes beyond that. It is malicious in consequence.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Lessons in Stage Makeup.

"I am coming to you with an unusual request. Is there some one among your readers who is able and willing to give me a few instructions in the art of stage makeup? The parent-teacher association of our school is giving a play in order to raise enough money to buy a radio. We are trying to get along with as little expenditure as possible. All the parts are to be played by women, some of them impersonating men, others will be cast in juvenile parts.

"MRS. L. W."

If you are versed in this particular branch of stagecraft, would you like to devote a small part of your time in making up these women for the rôles they will be playing? I am sure such an effort on your part will help to make the performance a successful one.

Smart Women in Paris Select the Short Wrap

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special correspondence.]—There isn't much smart society in Paris at the moment, but what is there is very smart, indeed. Women are stopping over in Paris to dip into spring fashions and pull out a few fat, luscious plums of chic on their way southward. What they choose today Mrs. and Miss World will wear tomorrow, so fashion futures are being investigated by the inquiring style reporter.

One garment that these women have taken to with enthusiasm is the short summer evening wrap of velveteen, which Chanel and other great Paris dressmakers show in series. These evening wraps are just the thing for the spring evening in the southland when more than a little chill lingers in the star laden air. They will be quite as useful for the northern summer for the same reason.

Most of these evening wraps combine the cape and the coat, and they are made in bright or pastel shades to match some color in the printed frock that is worn with them.

The Germaine Lecomte evening ensemble sketched shows the velveteen cape coat at its best and the kind of evening frock that the smartest women wear with it. This wrap is made of velveteen the color of wood violets. It is easy to wear and to make, for all its tricky bands that descend from the two sides of the front and give a very much dropped shoulder line from which a short circular cape hangs. There is no collar. A bias band of velveteen outlines the closing.

The frock is made of pink chiffon printed with violets, and a bunch of velvet violets hangs from the right shoulder. The bodice is draped slightly in front, the dress is tucked at the sides, and the skirt made ample by petaled and ruffled panels.

Putting Her at Ease.

The most embarrassing moment of my life occurred one Sunday morning when I drove downtown to make a purchase at a drug store. It was sprinkling rain and the walks were wet. I alighted from the car and had reached the door to the drug store when I slipped and fell flat.

A strange man happened along and helped me up. On thanking him he replied, "O, that's all right! I've been tight myself," and went on his way.

MRS. SOPHIE P.: THE ONLY WAY to remove hair permanently from the face is by electrolysis. There are specialists in this line of work. Your family doctor will recommend one who has medical indorsement. The treatment is not expensive.

K. L. OLIVE OIL OR COCOA butter may be rubbed into the hands at night and allowed to remain on until the morning. After washing the hands use this lotion: Equal parts of camphor and glycerin. Booklet on the hands may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

MRS. L. O. H.: CROSSED EYES IN a young child may be straightened with glasses and exercises. When older, an operation is necessary.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Science finally has lit upon the answer to why is a woman grouchy.

She isn't sore at pa at all. She isn't mad because he didn't fix the plumbing. It's her feet. And science says that what feet with a grouch needs is a grassy plot to run them around on, which suggestion is just as helpful as one of Mr. Einstein's own personal theories.

Where to get the grassy plot? You tell 'em, for where I live our grassy plots are solid concrete or else they're wearing a sign to "keep off" them.

Pleading for wives to be let out in the pasture for daily grass footwork, a certain household economics council reminds husbands that they don't realize that their wives bump around hard floors from three to eight miles a day in the performance of ordinary household tasks. And if they have grouches around four o'clock when its getting-dinner-ready hour it's little enough for them to have.

Since there's not much hope of backyard full of springy turf being revived immediately, there's a helpful hint for tired feet that we can offer and thereby help dissipate the grouch and the four o'clock lowered resistance.

If you fill a footbath tub full of quite hot water, throw in a couple of handfuls of common salt, and let the feet stay there a few minutes, withdraw them and turn a spray on, letting it run from tepid to cold and colder water, rub with a coarse towel and finally powder them with a refreshing talcum or body powder, there just won't be any grouch. There won't be any burned steak or underdone potatoes.

Another contribution to the facial expression is not to wear old shoes around the house when doing housework. Don't wear out old party slippers that way, or bedroom slippers, or street shoes that are run down at the heel. Good shoes are needed, well fitted shoes, when you are walking.

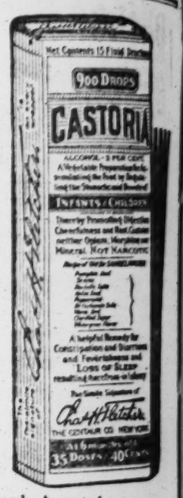
ARMAND CLEANSING CREAM

Restless Children



Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child. Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

TWO-TO-ONE TWO-TO-ONE TWO-TO-ONE TWO-TO-ONE TWO-TO-ONE TWO-TO-ONE

TWO-TO-ONE LEAVENING TAKES CARE OF ITSELF

Rumford starts its work when you mix it. You can tell by the lightness of Rumford dough or batter. When you put it in the oven it is two-thirds leavened. The remaining one-third takes place in the heat of the oven. That's why Rumford is called the Two-to-One Leavener and that's why Rumford leavening is always perfect.

DON'T HURRY

You get Two-to-One leavening only with a pure all-phosphate powder. The 2% to 18% of phosphate added to some powders does not make them ALL-PHOSPHATE powders nor assure Two-to-One leavening. The phosphate content of Rumford is 100%. That makes the big difference.

And in addition to its leavening power the phosphate in Rumford adds real food value to cakes and hot breads, supplying calcium valuable in building strong bones and teeth. FOR BETTER RESULTS USE—

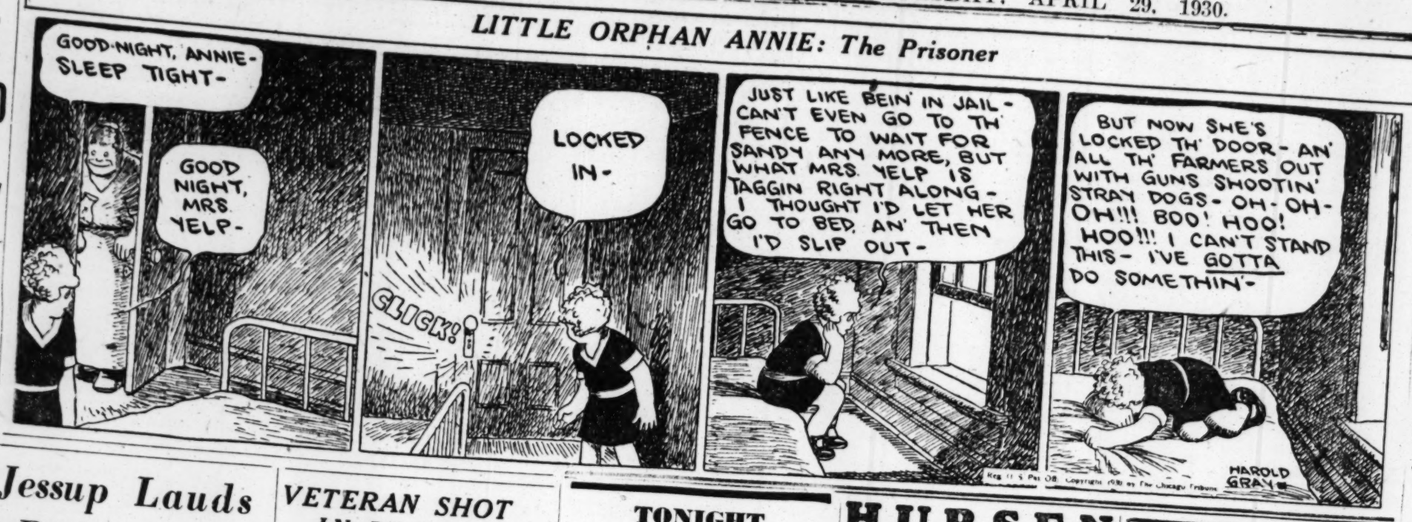
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Prisoner



DETROITERS ARE BACK MINUS THE POT OF INCA GOLD

Lured as Far as Cuzco by Story of Golconda.

New York, April 28.—[Special.]—The ship news reporter who met the Grace liner Santa Maria when it came in from South America today hadn't expected to see G. A. Langley and R. C. Jackson, Detroit business men, so soon again.

"Did you find the treasure?" he asked. "How about that gold chain made to enclose a city block and worth $50,000,000? Where's Inca Pito Cuzi, the descendant of the Incas?"

"No. Nothing about it. 'In jail,' they replied.

They and Inca Pito Cuzi left here about a month ago, the Detroiters having agreed to finance his hunt for a treasure worth about $500,000,000 when the gold, silver, and gems should be totaled up.

On the trip down Inca Pito Cuzi amused them with stories of how they'd drain a huge Peruvian lake and at the bottom, according to the information handed down through generation after generation of Incas, would find a golconda.

By the time they got to Cuzco the Detroiters were a bit suspicious of the whole affair, and they mentioned this to Inco Pito Cuzi after inquiries had convinced them that he was no Inca and hadn't any real name except Charles Rosell.

Their lack of belief annoyed Cuzi, they said, and he went out and got a revolver. He came in and waved it at them. They went out and got a policeman. The latter took Inco Pito Cuzi to jail. So far as the Detroiters say, they do not know or care if he is there yet.

SLEW EX-WIFE'S GUEST TO DEFEND SELF, HE SAYS

Frank Gascon Jr., 28 years old, 2230 Ogden street, who on Sunday night shot and killed Luther McWilliams, 38 years old, building manager at 2109 Sedgwick avenue, when he found McWilliams calling on his divorced wife, Mrs. Josephine Gascon, yesterday confessed the shooting to the police. He pleaded self-defense. The killing occurred in the flat of Mrs. Gascon's father, Edward Marcquenski, 646 Garfield avenue.

An inquest into McWilliams' death yesterday was postponed to May 6, at the request of attorneys for Gascon.

Gascon said he testified last week for Mrs. McWilliams when she obtained a divorce from her husband in Beardstown, Ill. Mrs. Gascon was named as co-respondent in Mrs. McWilliams' suit.

Mrs. Gascon and her father denied Gascon's statement that McWilliams had lunged toward him. They said he entered the flat with his 2 year old son in his arms, and when McWilliams said, "How do you do?" Gascon put the boy down, drew a gun and began shooting.

JUDGE REFUSES TO PERMIT SEX MOVIE SHOWING

A mandamus writ to compel the police censor board to allow the showing of the motion picture film called "Sex Madness" was refused to Louis Lawson yesterday by Superior Judge Michael L. McKinley.

"I don't know by what criterion the censor board passes upon the pictures," said Judge McKinley, "but I do know that some pictures that are wholly unfit to be seen are shown in Chicago, and some others not so bad are turned down by the board."

Commissioner of Police Russell said the title "Sex Madness" alone was sufficient to prevent the showing.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

The amount of entertainment provided by a radio program is generally considered the measure of its worth to radio. Jazz-syncopation held supreme until recently. Variety musical programs probably are the ace highs at present. But the chances are a close second would be the short address by able speakers.

Last evening President Walter A. Jessup of the University of Iowa gave an all absorbing address. It was entertaining and illuminating.

Mr. Jessup broadly surveyed the development of education in this country. He said radio is playing a large part in the educational development of the country. Also, that we are today the world's largest consumer of the printed page. He closed with the significant question: "Have we the imagination to make this the golden age in education?"

The Family Party program, from New York through W-G-N, 8:30 to 9, was devoted entirely to the works of Rimsky-Korsakoff. Mme. Maria Kurenko, Russian soprano, was the soloist.

The Rochester Civic orchestra, through KYW, 9 to 9:30, was sailing along nicely in a Wagnerian excerpt and into its always excellent concert program, but from WBBM at 9:10 Leon Bloom, pianist, was announced to play the first two movements of Beethoven's "Sonata Pathetique." For some twenty minutes this listener was oblivious to all else. Mr. Bloom has the happy faculty of being a vigorous and freshly original interpreter of pianoforte literature.

C. W. Putnam, Retired Aurora Publisher, Dies

Clarence W. Putnam, retired Aurora publisher, died yesterday at his home. He was 79 years old. Mr. Putnam formerly published the Aurora Blade, a newspaper now defunct, and later printed a dairy market weekly, which attained wide circulation. His widow and two sons, Dr. Glenn Putnam and Attorney Ralph Putnam, survive him. The funeral will take place tomorrow.

VETERAN SHOT IN DRY RAID DIES OF WOUND

Dubuque, Ia., April 28.—[Special.]—Revolver wounds inflicted on Edward Foht, 36, alleged moonshiner, by Sheriff Greer of Grant county, Wisconsin, during a raid on a Mississippi river island near Dubuque last Thursday, resulted in the death of the world war veteran in a local hospital late this afternoon.

An inquest to be held at Dubuque Tuesday afternoon will determine to a large extent whether or not any charges will be filed against the sheriff. District Attorney Manfred S. Block of Grant county announced.

Rum War Victim Dies.

Des Moines, Ia., April 28.—(AP)—Jack Harris, one of the victims of the rum war which flared here Saturday night, died late tonight. Coroner William Carpenter was called to perform an autopsy. One purpose was to find and deliver to Chief of Police Albert a bullet that penetrated Harris' body and lodged in the spinal column, paralyzing him.

William Robertson, Maker of Rail Equipment, Dies

William Robertson, president of William Robertson & Co., manufacturers of railroad treminal equipment with offices at 360 North Michigan avenue, died yesterday in the Ravenswood hospital after a brief illness. He was 63 years old. He is survived by a son, W. Kenneth Robertson. His residence was at 7348 Ridge boulevard. The funeral will take place at 4 p. m. tomorrow at Rosehill cemetery chapel.

Funeral to Be Held Today for Charles S. Neumiller

Funeral services for Charles G. Neumiller, manager of the lace sections of Marshall Field & Company, who died on Saturday, will be held at the residence at 168 North Garfield avenue, Hinsdale, at 2:30 p. m. today. Mr. Neumiller had been with Marshall Field & Company since 1881.
